Cort who opened his theaters exclusively to syndicate attractions for fifteen years said the method pursued by Klaw & Erlanger compelled him to join the independent policy of opening his houses to whomsoever had good shows. Concerning this point he said

"However I am perfectly frank in saying that the principal reason that I have taken the bookings out of the hands of Klaw & Erlanger and adopted the open door policy is because Erlanger was unable to furnish me with the line of attractions that I wanted

Battered Railway Bill Faces Crisis

Regulars in Congress Will Try to Pass Measure in Its Revised Form

WASHINGTON May 7—The badly battered railroad bill which was once recognized as the pet of the administration legislative program will again be the target on Monday when the Senate convenes. The leaders wanted to talk over the bill and its amendments with President Taft before they fired any more oratorical volleys at it [illegible]

The Regulars intend to pull the bill through as it stands now if they [illegible] do so next week. The administration supporters are no longer appealing for votes on the merits of the measure, but have turned to the more simple expedition of appealing to party loyalty

EARL OF CREWE

NEW KING IS CRITICIZED BY NOTED WRITER

Edward's Successor a Dyspeptic and Unpopular, Says William T Stead

(By WILLIAM T STEAD)

LONDON May 7—Today no men are talking or thinking of anything but the late King whose sudden and unexpected death has had a certain stunning effect upon the public mind but tomorrow the people will begin to ask what effect will the demise of the King have upon the constitutional crisis

An ardent Conservative with whom I discussed the matter today said he calculated that the death of King Edward would cost the Unionists thirty seats in the coming general election. This calculation is based upon the fact that the Unionists were hoping to exploit the popularity of King Edward in an electoral assault against the party which was putting pressure on him to coerce the House of Lords

The trouble is that King George is [illegible] He has no personal popularity indeed if the truth be told he has a good deal of personal unpopularity. He is neither tactful nor genial. He is very opinionated and somewhat brusque. He has none of the prestige of his father nor the experience of his grandmother. And what is perhaps more serious still [illegible] but [illegible] indigestion. The [illegible] causes his hands to become [illegible] and his lips to become livid

Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown but uneasy indeed is the monarch whose digestive apparatus is liable to get out of order at a moment's notice. George has not only to contend with the disadvantages of his comparative youth [illegible] experience and [illegible] has the misfortune to [illegible]

Of course he may [illegible] now that he has ascended the throne. But as Prince of Wales he made no secret of

GREAT GATHERING OF NOTED RULERS TO PAY RESPECTS

George V Is Proclaimed Monarch of Britain in the Simplest of Ceremonies

Tells Councillors His Wife Will Be Constant Helpmeet for Good of All the Subjects

By PAUL LAMBETH.

LONDON, May 7—Practically all the royalty of Europe will be gathered in London on the day of King Edward's funeral. It will be one of the most impressive and imposing ceremonies of the age. It is expected that the Czar of Russia will be present and that King Haakon and Queen of Norway have already left Christiana for London. Emperor William of Germany, whose uncle King Edward was, will come. King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and King Alfonso of Spain, also will be present

President Fallieres of France will attend. On account of the age of Emperor Franz Josef of Austro-Hungary doubt is expressed whether he will be present. King Albert of Belgium also will attend

The nations of Europe have entered into national negotiations for the most elaborate plans for safeguarding the visiting monarchs. Secret police from every continental country will, figuratively, join hands. The safeguarding precautions taken upon the occasion of a royal tour are nothing compared to the extraordinary plans which already are under way

Several Are Coming in Warships

From Austria, Italy, Spain and Russia police will foregather in England. Some of the monarchs likely will come to England on warships and these will be guarded by flotillas of destroyers and sub marines from the British, French and German navies

The royal cortege will be guarded with practically the policedom of the foreign world. An army of troops will patrol the route. Batteries of cannon will add solemn military honors to the monarch. While no indications have been given that foreign anarchists would attempt to take advantage of the late King's funeral, the precautions will prevent any secret plot that may be attempted by the feared secret societies

Marked by little of the splendor and pomp of ancient custom, George V was solemnly proclaimed King at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the throne room of St James Palace

The new monarch was visibly affected by grief at the death of his father the late King Edward VII. Several times in the course of his address his voice broke and he applied his handkerchief to his eyes

As the formalities were concluded guns boomed out a salute, one minute gun for each year of the late King's life.

The proclamation of the Privy Council will be proclaimed by heralds in the various centers of the Empire on Monday. The proclamation reads

Scene of Splendor and Grief

The scene in the throne room was one of splendor and grief. King George was nervous. As he announced his determination of maintaining under God's will the traditions of the kingdom he stopped several times

Thus in the forty fifth year of his life George V becomes ruler of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and the British dominions abroad King, Defender of the Faith and Emperor of India and sovereign of 400,000,000 people.

As King George addressed the Privy Council he said:

Under the guidance of God I will endeavor to maintain the high tradition of the English court and to fulfill to the best of my ability the trust imposed in me. It shall be my endeavor to follow the example of my father. My loss is more than the loss of my father. We have lost a father, a king and a friend.

Wants Peace and Plenty

"I will endeavor to keep my land in peace and plenty and to establish the wise policies of my father, our late ruler."

The oath was administered to the King by the Lord Chancellor Lord Loreburn and following the custom the Cabinet Ministers swore allegiance to the new ruler, at the same time tendering their seals of office

The British Kingdom is enthralled in gloom, for Edward was much beloved

Six young persons who on Friday were princes of royal blood awoke this morning with vastly more exalted titles of princes of England. They are the children of King George and his wife Queen Mary

There are five sons and one daughter. The oldest is Prince

AMERICAN WOMAN VERY SWEET SINGER

Mrs. Archibald S White Praised by Those Who Attend Her Musicales.

(By MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.)

PARIS, May 7.—I have just attended a most interesting musical given by Mrs. Archibald G. White at the home of Penberg, the composer. Mrs. White is a very beautiful woman and sings delightfully. Her husband, an American millionaire, is president of the Cincinnati Gas company and a brother-in-law of [illegible] Taft. The program was excellent and included songs of Grieg, [illegible], MacDowell and of Benberg himself.

Among other notable society people I had the pleasure of meeting at this musicale were the Duchess D'Uzes, Mme. Madeleine Lemaire and her exquisite daughter, the Servian minister to France and [illegible]. Mrs. White's singing aroused great enthusiasm which [illegible] altogether deserved.

CONVERTS TO WAGNER

A rumor reaches me that Mr. and Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt have become converts to the simple life as demonstrated by Dr. Wagner. I am told these distinguished American multimillionaires actually live up to the [illegible] in its strictest conformity.

Prince of Monaco's only son and heir refuses to succeed to the throne of the gambling principality.

It seems that the suicides, broken hearts, ruined homes and countless unknown tragedies caused by the gambling of Monte Carlo have sickened and disgusted him. He says he will have none of it. Prince Louis of Monaco is the son of Prince Albert and his first wife, who was a daughter of the Duke of Hamilton. He is 40 years of age and inherits the strictly moral principles of his English mother.

MARRIAGE ANNULLED

Prince Albert and the Duchess of Hamilton had their marriage annulled, after which the Prince married the Duchess de Richelieu, formerly Miss Heine of New Orleans, from whom he has also been divorced.

Should Prince Louis persist in renouncing his rights to the throne of Monaco the heir will be the Duke of Urach, son of the Duke William of Wurtemburg and Princess Florentine of Monaco. He is a nephew of Prince Albert and is 40 years old. His wife is Princess [illegible] of Bavaria.

New Barracks Planned For Coast Artillery

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The chief of coast artillery of the army has prepared a statement of the needs of the coast artillery posts in the way of construction of barracks and quarters in order to accommodate the troops.

The coast artillery posts in the artillery district of San Francisco [illegible] removed from the barracks at the Presidio which they formerly occupied and crowded into other barracks sent out of the district [illegible].

NEW YORK, May 7.—More secrets of the Tantrik order of which Pierre A. Bernard, better known as Om (pronounced Ohm), is chief, were brought to light when his examination was continued this afternoon before Magistrate Breen in the West Side court. The witnesses today were Miss Gertrude Lee, who announced that she had been elevated to the high place of Nautch, or sacred dancing girl, and consort of Om, the high priest. Miss Lee recounted with detail her meeting with Om at the home of her sister, Mrs. Miller. She told of a trip taken by her, Bernard, Mrs. Miller and two other Tantrites from Seattle to Portland, thence to San Francisco and Oakland. Portland left then, she said, to come East.

Om explained, she said, that although it was the consent of the high priest she would occupy an exalted place in the temple, but as she would be his wife in the eyes of the cult she would not [illegible] something prevented his [illegible]. EXPERTS TO WAGE BITTER WAR IN HYDE CASE

Battle of Poison Squads Will Occupy Court Room After Monday

STATE STUDIES BIT SINCE GETTING JOLTS

Ready to Call Important Witnesses; Defense Will Take Stand.

KANSAS CITY, May 7.—But one witness was put on the stand today in the trial of Dr. B. C. Hyde. The morning was consumed in the taking of depositions at the home of Mrs. [illegible] Mc[illegible], who is ill.

In the afternoon Dr. J. W. Perkins, who was on the stand when court adjourned yesterday, was again called. Little of interest was brought out during his examination.

If the defense should rest its case Monday without calling Dr. and Mrs. Hyde to the stand there will begin one of the most notable battles of experts in the history of American jurisprudence. This battle will be in the direction of witnesses in rebuttal and before it is ended it is possible that all of the big chemists of the country will be called into the case.

STATE STUDIES

The State has been studying up a bit since the jolts it received from Dr. Cross and Dr. F. E. Smith and since it has added to its list of scientists chemists from the Missouri and Kansas universities and it is said that there are several Chicago chemists who are prepared to come to Kansas City.

Dr. S. C. S. Weitzer of the University of Missouri is expected here Sunday for a conference with the attorneys for the State. The prosecution will lose no ground in its effort to back up the testimony of Dr. Vaughn that the fading purple test that he made was a definite test and that his statement as to the amount of strychnine found in the liver of Colonel Swope was correct.

The State has still other important witnesses. One of these is from Texas and another from London. They will testify if called upon to the length of time a person may live who has taken a lethal dose of strychnine.

DEFENSE NOT IDLE

The defense has not been idle. A Cornell professor may arrive here Monday or Tuesday. In any event he will be here if it is necessary to use him in rebuttal. [illegible] more chemists of national and State wide reputation will be called into the case depending largely on what statements the experts for the State make in their rebuttal testimony.

CAPTURES DELEGATION

Aside from the question whether the delegation has captured the President, it is certain that the President has captured the delegation. He has invited the members to dine with him on Wednesday night, when it is just possible that San Francisco may be the toast of the banquet.

The delegation has not confined its attack upon the national capital to its front movement on the White House. After and before seeing the President the members did a lot of missionary work with which former members of Congress now on the delegation are very familiar. Reports of the flank movement are just as favorable as those which come from the White House. Several important cities of the United States would be today prophesying absolute success had they half as much encouragement as is already to the credit of San Francisco through its ambassadors to Washington.

Governor Gillett made an admirable address at his banquet last night, at which he placed in concert and tabloid form the arguments for San Francisco in the presence of legislators who are to be reckoned with before a favorable bill passes Congress. Speaker Cannon, according to all accounts, is receiving publicly and privately for the Golden Gate city.

Edward Led World Powers From Brink of Deadly Strife

DEAD MONARCH WAS FACTOR IN WORLD'S PEACE

Splendid Diplomacy Smoothed Over Disputes That Presaged a War.

HANDLED THE KAISER WITH GREAT TACT

Made Lasting Friend of South Africa After War With the Boers.

(By PAUL LAMBETH)

LONDON, May 7.—What will be the effect of the death of Edward the Peacemaker on the relations between the great nations of the world, is the question being asked not only in London, but in every capital of the world. Only time can give the answer.

That Edward VII had been one of the most potent factors in maintaining the peace of the world for the past ten years is not questioned.

He has, by his fine tact and splendid diplomacy on more than one occasion, relieved the tension between the nations which had come dangerously near the breaking point. To him it has been attributed in very large degree the entente cordiale between Great Britain and France. The credit for the bringing of a lasting peace in South Africa after the Boer war is largely his. He succeeded in placing the relations between England and Russia on a more friendly basis than they had been since those two powers came in contact in the East.

BRINGS ABOUT PEACE.

In the dangerous crisis over Morocco when the contentions of Germany and France over the ancient African kingdom had brought them almost to the verge of a general war, King Edward played a most important part in bringing about a peaceful settlement.

When King Edward ascended the throne Great Britain had for years been linked practically, if not officially, with the Triple Alliance of Germany, Austria and Italy.

Germany through this alliance was fast becoming the dominant power in Europe. Great Britain began to feel grave disquietude at the growth of the new naval power in the North Sea.

LOOKS INTO SUBJECT.

King Edward, more far-seeing than his people, who only thought of an increase in armament to offset the growing menace, cast about for a means to prevent the possibility of a conflict due to that cause. The task before him was the old task of British statesmanship of seeking in the balance of power a security against invasion.

The understanding with Russia and France brought this about. The alliance with Japan, securing England in the Far East and the friendship of the United States cultivated, made the union still more secure. In furtherance of his peace campaign King Edward visited and entertained practically all the heads of European states. These interviews resulted in the almost universal adoption of the principle of arbitration.

STEP ACCOMPLISHED.

At The Hague conference of 1907 a substantial step toward obligatory arbitration was accomplished. Treaties pledging the Powers to respect the status quo and in some cases to defend it, were also concluded on an unprecedentedly large scale. In the main they covered almost all the "danger spots" in Europe, Asia and Africa.

Though Germany officially resisted the program of the campaign elimination of armament, it is understood that during King Edward's visit to the Kaiser at Kronberg, in 1905, the question was discussed by the two monarchs in a friendly and hopeful spirit. The growing change in German public opinion on this vital point is regarded as one of the most significant successes of King Edward's career.

WILL WORK BE LOST?

Now that this able, practical advocate of world peace is gone the question naturally arises, will the great work he has quietly performed be lost.

That King George will wilfully do anything to imperil the peace of Europe is not believed, but he is an intense Englishman and does not like Germany, particularly his cousin, the German emperor.

It may be that the responsibility of peace will develop qualities in the King of which he is not suspected and that if he does not show the tact and ability of his father in the art of smoothing out difficulties that he, at least, will not do anything which will turn the tide towards peace and the limitation of armaments backward. But Europe is anxious and doubtful.

Time will tell.

Fire Laddies Called To Rescue Pussy Cat

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., May 7.—A maltese cat which climbed high up the steeple of the First Presbyterian church and became entangled among the vines which covered it, caused great excitement here.

Hundreds of people congregated and the services of the police and fire departments were enlisted to rescue the animal.

Volunteers were requested to ascend the fire ladders, but they held off. Roy D. Parker finally sprang forward and hurried up the ladder while the crowd cheered until the cat had been brought to the ground.

It fought fiercely as Parker seized it, but he escaped serious injury. Several years ago another cat climbed to the roof of the big church and the fire department was also called out to save it.

PEACEMAKING RULER WELL-EARNED TITLE OF LAMENTED KING

Pacifying Influence in Europe Held the Nations Together, Declares Humphrey

NEW YORK, May 7.—King Edward was a pacifying influence in European international politics and his death has brought a deep source of regret to lovers of universal peace. This appears in a statement given by Andrew B. Humphrey, General Secretary of the American Peace and Arbitration league, of which former Senator James B. McCreary is president, ex-President Roosevelt, honorary president, and which numbers among its members Admiral Dewey and many of the best known men in the country.

Andrew B. Humphrey has this to say:

"That the death of King Edward should cause the world the wide sorrow that is apparent cannot be surprising when it is remembered how well he earned the title of Edward the Peacemaker, which has been conferred on him by universal sentiment. The event may be regarded as a great loss to the movement for universal peace.

BELIEVED IN PEACE.

"No other ruler in Europe understood it better or believed in it more sincerely. His life-long training under his mother, Queen Victoria, especially fitted him to be a peacemaker. His interest in the movement has been so manifest, and his success so great in influencing the amicable settlements of incidents of a threatening nature, that his death will cause him to be missed in the peace councils of the near future.

"King Edward's death, coming at this particular time, is in a sense a setback for the program of the American Peace and Arbitration league. That it is to say it is a great disappointment that the great peace-loving monarch has passed away on the eve of an expected meeting with America's great peace-maker, former President Roosevelt, during which, in all probability, this great topic would have been one of the most interesting discussed.

WOULD INVITE VIEWS.

"Mr. Roosevelt, who is one of the honorary presidents of this league, might have been expected to invite some exchange of views relating to the proposition to invest the prize court at The Hague for the political whole power to be vested in the international court of arbitration and justice which it is expected will be created at the third peace conference in 1914.

"Of course, it is impossible to say just how far a man in the king's position could or would commit himself on any such question as this, but I think it is tolerably well known that it is one of the propositions in the direction of international peace that interested King Edward deeply.

NEW RULER PROBLEM.

"What will be the attitude of England's new ruler concerning the peace question is regarded by many as problematical. He has seen active service along the stern line of a naval officer's career, and he has not been in that close and sympathetic touch with various classes of men which made King Edward a broad-minded far-seeing and diplomatic man. He is a man of reserve, lacking elements that made his father popular and it is possible that in his intercourse with other sovereigns he may not be able at all times to inspire that cordiality that enabled King Edward to pour oil on troubled waters.

"Nevertheless, I do not think the change of rulers will affect the peace movement adversely. King George V derived from his illustrious grandparents Victoria and Albert, and from his own father, a rich inheritance of qualities that make for the uplift of humanity and the richest among these, an intimate desire for peace."

KING'S DEATH CASTS GLOOM OVER CITY

Social Gatherings Cease and Theaters Close Out of Respect for Ruler.

KING TRANSACTED OFFICIAL BUSINESS DURING LAST HOUR

LONDON, May 7.—The King died sitting in his chair and throughout the day was racked by violent spells of coughing, while two fainting fits caused intense alarm to his attendants. At times his majesty was fully conscious and actually insisted on transacting some public business.

Among other things about which he made inquiries were the arrangements for the reception of Prince Sadanaru Fushimi of Japan, who is visiting England to represent the Mikado at the opening of the Anglo-Japanese exhibition. His majesty made many criticisms of the arrangements and insisted they be altered in certain particulars.

LONDON, May 7.—London wears the chastened air of a city in real mourning; sombre drapings are appearing everywhere. Social gatherings have ceased, theaters are closed and will remain so until after King Edward's funeral. All private and public entertainments that were to have been given were canceled, sporting fixtures have been abandoned,—only absolutely essential business is being transacted.

This universal demonstration of affection for King Edward's memory is wholly spontaneous. The people did not wait for an imperial gazette enjoining mourning. They donned it the moment they heard King Edward was no more. Not only did they assume the habiliments of woe—their sorrowful demeanor is more eloquent of sincere grief than the most elaborate trappings of mourning.

OPENING POSTPONED.

The ceremonious opening of the Anglo-Japanese exposition for which Prince Fushima, cousin of the Emperor of Japan, arrived today, has been postponed. The newspapers ignore politics. The mayors of Dublin, Limerick and other Irish cities have sent warmly sympathetic messages to Edward's widow and son. Hundreds of associations, religious, civil and commercial, met today and passed resolutions lauding King Edward's character and lamenting his demise. The Bishop of London officiated at the special service in St. Paul's, which a great, grieving congregation attended. An equally large number of worshippers, Roman Catholics, attended a similar service at Westminster cathedral. Many of the churches throughout the kingdom will hold such special services tomorrow.

Today all the congregations were in deep mourning. The wording of the Angelican service had to be changed. The clergymen asked blessings on "the king, the queen, the queen dowager and all the royal family" instead of "the queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales and all the royal family."

FRANCE MOURNS EDWARD'S DEATH

Official Evidences of Sympathy for Stricken Nation on Every Hand.

(By PAUL VILLIER.)

PARIS, May 7.—King Edward's loss to the diplomacy of Europe is keenly felt here. Open fears are expressed even while expressions of grief are heard. Official evidences of sympathy are given on every hand.

Premier Briand personally called upon the English Ambassador here today and expressed his condolence. He was followed by others, all of whom spoke to the British Ambassador Bertie, of the high qualities of the English ruler. When Foreign Minister Pinchon returned to Paris a French mission extraordinary will be appointed to attend the King's funeral. It is quite probable that President Fallieres will attend in person as a friend of the late monarch.

The French press appeared today in black borders and was unanimous in expressing the opinion that France had lost a good friend in the passing of Edward. The diplomatic changes which will likely follow the change of sovereigns in Great Britain is looked forward to not with apprehension but anxiety.

The cordial relations which had existed on the continent owes much to the tact and diplomatic skill of Edward.

Greatest Policeman Dies in New York

Thomas Byrnes Passes Away After an Eventful Life in Gotham's Central Office.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Thomas Byrnes, regarded as one of the greatest policemen that ever lived, the man who, as "the inspector," made the central office of New York known to every criminal in the Caucasian world, died at his home, No. 3[illegible] West Seventy-seventh street, at 9 o'clock tonight.

His end was not unexpected. For two years or more he and his friends knew that he was suffering from a stomach disease which made his death a matter of relatively short time.

The professional diagnosis as announced tonight, was acute gastritis, but Byrnes himself told a friend six months ago that he had cancer of the stomach, and as he was then past 68 and weakened by suffering, an operation was out of the question.

The fatal seizure was of a week's duration.

Drama, Art and Love Mingle in Marriage

PARIS, May 7.—The approaching marriage of pretty Germaine Faydeau awakens recollections of drama, art, literature and love. For her father, George Faydeau, is the author of "The Girl From Maxims," a play out of which grew such American plays as "The Girl From Rectors," and many of alike. When George Faydeau was writing "The Girl From Maxims" he used to frequent the celebrated cafe in the Rue Royale. Naturally he wanted to give his play "local color." His wife, however, objected to this "color," and it took all the finesse of her father, the great painter, Carolus Duran, to bring about a reconciliation.

CLUB TO CRUISE ON BAY.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Twenty or thirty members of the Quality Outing and Social Club will make a cruise on the bay tomorrow in Harry Johnson's launch John A., under command of Captain John Hodges, the objective point being Paradise Cove, where a big feast is to be enjoyed. The launch is to leave the foot of Folsom street.

Rumor Revived That King Was Secretly a Catholic

GEORGE DAVIDSON, Archbishop of Canterbury, and Mrs. Davidson. The former will annoint King George V when he is crowned.

LONDON, May 7.—A sensational report that King Edward had refused to see the Archbishop of Canterbury when he was dying, is denied by the Archbishop, who says that no request was made by him.

This report, taken in conjunction with the story told at the time of the King's operation for appendicitis that the only clergyman admitted to the sick chamber was the Jesuit father, Bernard Vaughan, a brother of the late Archbishop of Westminster, has revived the rumor that King Edward was secretly of Catholic faith.

The Archbishop of Canterbury called four times at the palace Friday, while the Archbishop of Rippon, clerk of the closet to the King, called twice, but neither entered the sick room.

King George's Speech To Privy Councillors

LONDON, March 7.—The following was King George's speech to the Council when they proclaimed him king:

"My lords and gentlemen: My heart is too full for me to address you today in more than a few words. It is my sorrowful duty to announce to you the death of my dearly loved father, the King.

"In this irreparable loss which has so suddenly fallen upon me and the whole empire, I am comforted by the feeling that I have the sympathy of my future subjects who will mourn with me for their beloved sovereign, whose own happiness was found in sharing and promoting theirs.

"I have lost not only a father's love but the affectionate and intimate relations of a dear friend and adviser.

"No less confident am I in the universal and loving sympathy which is assured to my dearest mother in her overwhelming grief.

"I am deeply sensible of the very heavy responsibilities which have fallen upon me. I know that I can rely upon the parliament and upon the people of these islands and my dominions beyond the seas for their help in the discharge of these arduous duties and the prayers that God will grant me strength and guidance.

"I am encouraged by the knowledge that I have in my wife one who will be a constant helpmate in every endeavor for our people's good."

IRELAND WEEPS WITH ALL WORLD

Mourns Death of Edward—Will Pass a Vote of Sympathy In Meeting.

(By J. J. RICE.)

DUBLIN, May 7.—In response to the request of the New York American for an official expression on the death of King Edward, the Lord Mayor of Dublin wrote the following:

"Our friends in America should know the state of the Irish feeling at this juncture—it is one of genuine feeling of regret by all classes and creeds throughout Ireland. Edward was a good friend to Ireland and Irish interests. He endeared himself to the hearts of the Irish people by his genuine good will toward us. I speak as a Catholic and a Nationalist."

It may be added that the Lord Mayor sent telegrams of condolence to King George and the Dowager Queen Alexandra. A special corporation meeting has been summoned to pass a vote of sympathy. All this in marked contrast to the feeling evidenced at Queen Victoria's death.

Then the feeling was very strong against any display of sympathy and several public bodies refused votes of condolence. Now all race meetings and outdoor sports have been abandoned and window blinds are drawn all over the city and suburbs.

New Portland Liner Making First Voyage

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Some haste was necessary to get the new Portland liner Bear out to sea today, the freight offerings being heavy and keeping the Bear at her slip, Pier 40, until about 2 o'clock in the afternoon, or three hours behind schedule time. Three hundred passengers sailed on the maiden voyage of the Bear for the Oregon metropolis, among them being General Manager R. P. Schwerin and General Passenger Agent A. G. D. Kerrel of the Pacific Mail company, and G. L. Blair, agent of the San Francisco and Portland Steamship company. The Beaver, sister ship of the Bear, is now at Portland and is expected to arrive here within a few days to have oil-burning apparatus installed before being placed regularly on the route.

ORGANIC TROUBLE CAUSE OF DEATH

Mystery Surrounds Real Reason for Sudden Taking Off—End in Sight Weeks Ago.

LONDON, May 7.—There is more or less mystery as to the cause of the death of King Edward. While it is probably true that the immediate cause of the death was bronchial trouble brought on by a severe cold, it has been an open secret for a long time that the King was suffering from a serious organic trouble. One who knows the facts puts it as follows:

"He has been living for months by sheer force of will."

His death was apparently sudden, although the state of his health was well known.

King Edward was a much sicker man than the public realized. Attention was called to the state of His Majesty's health several weeks ago. His condition at that time gave alarm to the King's family and intimates. A very severe strain of the general election, the mighty interests involved, the indecisive results of the election and the necessity of King Edward deciding whether or not he would agree to the modifications in the powers of the House of Lords which the Government demanded, or precipitate another general election, greatly aggravated His Majesty's symptoms and it was an open secret that he was a very sick man.

Liquor Man Is Found In Gas Filled Room

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Herman Otterson, 720 Capp street, a wholesale liquor dealer, was found unconscious in a room at the Lowell rooming house, Twenty-fourth and Mission streets, late yesterday morning. He was suffering from gas asphyxiation. A gas jet in the room was turned on. Otterson was removed to the Mission Emergency Hospital where is said to be in a critical condition. Investigation failed to show whether the jet had been turned on by accident or with suicidal intent. Otterson is 58 years of age. He engaged the room on Friday night and retired early in the evening. The odor of escaping gas in the morning attracted employes of the place, who broke in the door.

GEORGE V PROCLAIMED KING OF GREAT BRITAIN AND EMPEROR OF INDIA

New Ruler Makes Brief Speech in Reply and Declares Wife Will Be Constant Helpmate for Good of All the Subjects

King George's First Message to United States

LONDON, May 7.—King George sent the following cablegram to President Taft:

William H. Taft, President, Washington, D. C.: I am deeply grateful to you, your government and people for your condolences on the death of my beloved father, and for your good wishes for my future prosperity.

(Signed) GEORGE, Rex et Imperator.

Edward, who will be the Prince of Wales and will enjoy the hereditary title of Duke of Cornwall. He was born on June 23, 1894, and some day may be King of England. The only daughter is Princess Mary, named for her mother, who is thirteen years old. The other royal children are Prince Ablert, aged fifteen; Prince George, aged eight, and Prince John, aged five.

It is reported here that President Taft may appoint former President Theodore Roosevelt special envoy of the United States to attend the funeral of the late King.

King George cares little for ostentation, as the ceremonial today showed. The induction into his high office took just one hour. He quietly went and returned from Marlborough House with a lack of display that was striking. Alexandra, widow of the late King, is now Queen Dowager of England, the first dowager England has seen since the time of Queen Charlotte, widow of William IV.

Will Go Into Retirement

It is believed she will spend her remaining years in retirement, although she could wield great social prestige if she desired. The latter years of her life have been sorrowful for she has brooded deeply over the death of her son, Prince Albert. Dowager Queen Alexandra is 66 years old.

While there have been numerous callers at Buckingham Palace, members of the royal family and of the diplomatic corps, as well as many personal friends, the bereaved Queen has only consented to see her son, the new King, Queen Mary and the young Princes Edward and Albert.

There was a great crowd of grief-stricken people about Buckingham Palace all day. They came from all parts of the kingdom.

A special service in memory of the late King was held at St. Paul's this afternoon. The great auditorium was crowded with high officials and dignitaries. Largely attended special services were held at other churches.

Probable Funeral Arrangements

While the date of the funeral and the place of interment have not yet been definitely determined, it is believed that he will be buried at Frogmore, where Queen Victoria, the Prince Consort and Prince Edward of Wales are buried, and the date will probably be May 13.

The announcement was made that the court will be in mourning for three weeks.

All day long letters of condolence came in floods.

The rulers of practically every civilized country recorded their deepest grief at the sudden taking off of England's great King. Other messages of sympathy came from statesmen and noted men from all over the world.

The markets, the law courts, the theaters and other places of amusement all were closed today.

The race meetings were abandoned and private entertainments were called off.

KING GEORGE UNPOPULAR, SAYS WILLIAM T. STEAD

his ardent sympathy with the tariff reformers. This, of course, puts him out of court as an impartial umpire between the parties.

The King is never an infant in the law. Neither can he ever die. The King can do no wrong.

According to Sir Erskine May, "His Majesty cannot be supposed to have a private opinion apart from that of his reasonable advisors."

But according to Walter Bagehot the sovereign possesses such executive powers as to be virtually omnipotent. Parliament is powerless to pass any laws of any kind on any subject without the King's consent. Yet, since the days of Queen Anne, no sovereign has refused his consent to any bill sent up from the two houses of parliament. "He must sign his own death warrant," says Walter Bagehot, "if the two houses unanimously send it up to him."

Such is the King in church and state. In the former a vessel filled full to the brim with divine grace, whose abiding delight is to do the will of God and to walk in His ways. In the latter an impeccable, infallible omnipotent, immortal fiction of the constitution, who despite all his immense prerogatives, can not even have a private opinion of his own apart from that of his ministers.

Now let us turn to see the King as he was when Edward VII was on the throne.

The first outstanding characteristic of the real King, who has just died was his extraordinary good nature, which was at once his chief characteristic and his besetting sin. He was so anxious to say pleasant things and to do kind actions that he did not always remember, in his desire to say pleasant things to the person with whom he was talking, that he might have said somewhat inconsistent things to some other person with whom he had been previously in conversation. This characteristic is even more prominent in the Czar of Russia, of whim his enemies declare he is always of the same opinion as the last man with whom he talks.

I never met the King since he became King, but I met him several times before he came to the throne, and had a good opportunity to study him.

Royal Household Look Upon Corpse

LONDON, May 7.—The members of the royal household this afternoon visited the dead chamber and looked upon the remains of the late King. The body lay in the bed upon which Edward died. The features were peaceful, the dead monarch looked as though he were sleeping. Both houses of Parliament assembled during the afternoon, following the old English custom, that they meet on the demise of a ruler.

The session of the House of Commons lasted only a few moments. It was purely formal. In the House of Lords many of the peers wept openly.

King Edward's body lies in state clad in a field marshal's uniform of the English army, in the bed where he died. His folded hands clasped a small bunch of lilies and violets.

DEATH OF EDWARD ENDS SOCIAL REIGN OF COURT FAVORITE

Prestige of American Peeresses at St. James Also Faces Grave Crisis

(BY LADY MANWARING.)

LONDON, May 7.—Without impugning the national grief over King Edward's death with lightness, social circles have already begun to discuss the tremendous influence which the king's demise will have upon the aristocratic society of London. King Edward's social favorite, Mrs. George Keppel, who was the social arbiter during his reign, faces the crisis in her social career and the American women who have married into noble families also may be crushed in the fall of the old regime.

King Edward was extremely fond of the young American peeresses. He made no secret of his liking for American women and a present instance was shown in his recent acceptance of an invitation to attend the wedding of Viscount Maidstone to Miss Margaretta Drexel of Philadelphia next week. Queen Mary, wife of King George, is known as a woman of strong mind and being young, her natural inclination is to dominate society in court circles herself without delegating this power to other women.

With Queen Alexandra it was different. She cared little for society and was willing that another should rule. It is quite possible that the fabric of the social edifice of King Edward's rule will fall and with it will go into obscurity a number of women who have become famous through royal favor.

MRS. KEPPEL'S PALACE.

At the present time Mrs. Keppel's new million-dollar residence in Grosvenor Square is nearing completion and its mistress had planned that it should house the grandest function in England. Its social affairs were to outrank those of Buckingham palace. At this time, however, the future of Keppel palace is doubtful.

Among the American women who have been favored by King Edward are the Duchess of Roxburgh, Lady Granard, the Duchess of Marlborough and many others. Especially interested was his late majesty in Lady Granard and he attended at the Granard residence a number of social affairs.

The attitude of the new king toward Americans is not definitely understood but there can be no doubt of his hostility towards Mrs. Keppel. King George was annoyed that his father should delegate the powers to Mrs. Keppel that he did. Why this hostility exists in such a marked degree is not exactly known, but evidences of it have been shown too often for misunderstanding.

The Duchess of Marlborough in discussing the demise of King Edward with one of her guests remarked:

"King Edward was a man of such shining qualities that he would have ranked as the first gentleman in the land had he not been king. His social tact, his intuitive diplomacy and his kindness were marked. He was broad-minded and catholic in all his tastes. To know him was to love, admire and respect him."

LADY GRANARD GRIEVES.

Lady Granard was deeply affected at the news of her social benefactor's death.

"It is a sad event in my life—I feel as if a life-long friend has passed away," she said.

The resident American women whose wealth and ambition leads to aspirations to take part in the affairs of the inner circles universally courted the favor of Mrs. Keppel. Just what attitude they will maintain until the three weeks' period of court mourning is over remains to be seen.

Mrs. Keppel has been at her London residence since the late king fell ill. She was a guest at the last dinner attended by King Edward. Mr. Keppel visited Buckingham palace yesterday, but Mrs. Keppel remained at home. Mrs. Keppel is seriously affected by the news of the monarch's death. Aside from her social prestige she has accumulated an enormous fortune through tips on the stock market given her by millionaire Americans who sought her aid for the royal entry.

Queen Mary has not spoken to Mrs. Keppel in ten years. But this hostility had no effect on King Edward, for he had promised to attend the coming-out party of Violet Keppel, Mrs. Keppel's daughter. Mrs. Keppel is a strikingly beautiful matron, not yet having attained middle age.

GERMANY GRIEVES AT KING'S DEATH

Nation Torn With Tears for Deceased Ruler, and Entertains Fears for Future.

BERLIN, May 7.—Germany is showing marked grief at the death of King Edward. There is genuine sorrow everywhere. The Emperor has ordered all flags in the army and navy [illegible] at half mast and the [illegible] of the late English sovereign draped in black. Deputations were appointed by the Reichstag and the various German regiments of which the King was a member to hurry to London with messages of condolence. They left here today.

The Kaiser, it is assured, will soon leave for London to be present at the funeral. But under the feeling of regret there is a finely drawn feeling of fear. King Edward did much to preserve peace in Europe. His master hand in international politics was felt everywhere. His diplomacy and cordiality were greatly responsible for the quietude which has existed in late years on the continent. With Edward gone the future looks uncertain. In officialdom there is a note of anxiety in every utterance.

It was reported here tonight that Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who is scheduled to arrive here Monday, will hurry to London. All of the official parts of the program of entertainment of the Americans have been dropped.

Funeral of Edward To Resemble Mother's

LONDON, May 7.—Plans for King Edward's funeral have not been definitely determined, but the ceremonial will be much the same as when Queen Victoria died. The court will move to Windsor Castle Tuesday. It may be that the services will be held there. King Edward's body will repose possibly in a mausoleum to be built at Frogmore, where rests the dust of Queen Victoria and the Prince consort.

Emperor William of Germany, King Edward's nephew, will attend the funeral. So will King Alfonso of Spain, who married King Edward's niece, and the King of the Belgians, kinsman of the English family, King George of Greece, Edward's brother-in-law, and the King of Portugal will be among the royal mourners, possibly, and perhaps King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

EDWARD CAPTURED MANY WITH SMILE

Former Ambassador to England Mourns Death of Ruler Who was a Friend

CHICAGO, May 7.—Probably no person in Chicago is more grieved over the death of King Edward than is Robert T. Lincoln, who was ambassador to England under President Harrison.

"His death is not only a great loss to England but the world at large," said Mr. Lincoln. "He is succeeded by a man of great ability, a reticent disposition and of the right age.

"During my five years' residence in London I became acquainted with the King. He was then Prince of Wales and I met him often, rather in social than official ways.

"He was at that time a happy, clever man in every way, and his courtesy to others was one of his greatest characteristics. He knew about everybody and everything. He traveled extensively and was always well informed.

"As Prince of Wales he had practically nothing to do with the affairs of the government and consequently he was known to ambassadors and others purely in a social capacity.

CHATTY AND GENIAL.

"While the King was a chatty, genial man, he was not what you would call in this country a 'hail fellow well met.' You would not see him walking along the streets shaking hands with friends. As I have said, his crowning feature is that he was a gentleman.

"I remember the King when, as Prince of Wales, he visited the United States. I was then a student in Harvard. He visited the university. He and my father [illegible]

"He was always genial and a bright conversationalist. His smile was charming. Though he was not what we could call democratic in the narrow sense, he was not exclusive.

"While I was ambassador a little incident happened that showed the feeling [illegible] entertained toward whom he had [illegible] Spencer, now a resident of Milwaukee, owned a large farm near Dwight, Ill., in 1860. The farm was in the center of a fine quail [illegible] and it was there that the Prince was taken to shoot the prairie game. He stayed at Mr. Spencer's place.

WANTS HIM TO VISIT.

"When I was in London Mr. Spencer visited me. I had my secretary write a note to the Prince's secretary telling him of Mr. Spencer's presence in London. The Prince replied immediately and requested Mr. Spencer to visit him without delay.

"King Edward always appeared to be a very strong man mentally and physically. He was a great social favorite. Queen Alexandra is perhaps better known personally to more people in England than was the King. She is not so closely related to the reigning house of England and for this reason she has appeared more in public than her royal consort."

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes great when least regarded. Often it comes through Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough. One and All Grieved by King Edward's Death

KING GEORGE MUST DOWN NAME OF OTHERS

Predecessors Made Cognomen Unsavory by Numerous Escapades.

FIRST TWO IMMORAL BUT WERE SUCCESSFUL

Third was Coarse-Minded and Cause of the American Revolution.

LONDON, May 7.—Without any disloyalty to their new King, the English people don't like his name. George V may become the loved monarch, even though he does not possess the endearing qualities of the late King Edward VII, but he must prove himself a very wise and good ruler to rid the name of George of the unsavory odor attaching to it in the history of British royalty.

Not one of the four Georges who have sat upon the throne previous to the new King brought any lustre to the English crown. The first George was an imported prince who had made a record as a brave officer in the Hanoverian army and an indiscriminate lover of women. His reputation in the latter respect was fully maintained during his reign over a country whose language he could not speak.

BAD IN MORALS.

George II was as deficient in morals as his father, and the best things of his reign were due first to Walpole and next to Pitt, the former his first Prime Minister and the latter his latest.

The next George was a coarse minded, untrained boor, who could see no beauty in a Shakespearean play, but would laugh himself almost into fits on seeing a clown swallowing a string of sausages. He tried to be a real king but did not know how. One of the worst results of his pig headed obstinacy was the provocation of the American revolution. He died insane.

The fourth George was born a century before the present King was born. His marriage to Mrs. Fitzherbert was only one of the scandals of his reign. He was known sometimes as "the first gentleman of Europe" because of his gracious manners, which were mere varnish. At heart he was a profligate.

LAST GEORGE VERY PROPER.

George V, as Prince of Wales, has shown none of the qualities that have given the name its royal ill savor. In fact he has been regarded as being proper to the verge of dullness. Therefore his chance of making the twentieth century George a name brilliantly in contrast with the four Georges whom Thackeray has held up to lasting scorn looks to be a very fair one.

Miss Evangeline Booth Cables Bereaved Queen

NEW YORK, May 7.—Miss Evangeline Booth, commander of the Salvation Army in America, sent the following cablegram to Dowager Queen Alexandra:

"On behalf of the thousands of Salvationists throughout the United States of America I offer to your majesty sympathy in the personal and national loss caused by the death of King Edward, whose world wide efforts in behalf of world-wide peace, righteousness and justice, will live forever. We pray that the Unfailing Comforter in all life's sorrows shall be your majesty's consolation and your majesty's support in this dark hour."

Two Are Suspected Of Fisherman's Death

SAN PEDRO, Cal., May 7.—Captain J. D. Swenson of the sloop Yankee Boy, brings the report from Ensenada, Mex., that the authorities there are holding two San Pedro fishermen, while investigating the death of their companion, Peter Hanson, aged 30, who was accidentally drowned according to Hans Benson and John Larson, while they were off Santa Tomas. They told of having buried the body. Suspicions were aroused later, and the two men were detained until the body can be exhumed and examined.

Roosevelt Tells Sorrow On Death of Edward VII

STOCKHOLM, May 7.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt issued a statement on King Edward's death today, in which he said:

"I am deeply grieved and know that all Americans will be deeply grieved at the death of King Edward VII. We in America keenly appreciate King Edward's good will toward us, which he frequently so markedly showed.

"We are well aware of the devotion felt toward him by his subjects throughout the British Empire, while all foreign nations have learned to see in him the king, a ruler whose great ability, especially his tact and the unfailing kindliness of his nature, rendered him peculiarly fit to work for international peace and justice.

"Let me repeat that I am sure that all American people feel at this time the deepest and most sincere sympathy for his family and the English nation."

Britannic Ruler's Death Depresses Financial London

(BY JAMES FREEMANTLE.)

LONDON, May 7.—It would be difficult to exaggerate the gloom which spread over financial London today following the death of King Edward. There is a possibility that prices may recover in some degree on Monday, although nothing can prevent the financial reaction which must necessarily follow. The apprehension which arose this week, which it would not have done a few years ago, was based not only on the crown's present situation in the face of the Asquith ministers' demand for three new peers to reverse the objectionable majority in the House of Lords, but to the wild speculation of the public in new fangled oil and rubber shares, which had fairly reached its climax when the King's death was announced.

Ordinarily markets measure the death of kings in a calm, judicial way, the problem of the existing London stock market is what sort of psychological effect would be produced upon a speculative mania.

The death of the King came at a time when American enterprises were closing negotiations for the placing of a great quantity of high class bonds, but it had been somewhat discounted. It did not have the effect that the sudden death of Emperor William or Emperor Franz Josef would have. In the death of Emperor William it would mean a strong surge forward of the socialistic element in Germany and in the death of the Austrian emperor it would mean a severing of the bonds between Austria and Hungary with a new state bank in Hungary, a demand which has been insistent for some time. These troubles upon the bourses of the continent would have quite a more jarring effect, doubtless, upon American interests than the death of the English sovereign.

Carnegie Profoundly Grieved By Death of King Edward VII

(BY PAUL LAMBETH.)

LONDON, May 7.—The news of King Edward's death was sent by wireless to Andrew Carnegie, who is on board the White Star Line Adriatic, bound for England. Carnegie sent this message to friends in London by wireless:

"I am profoundly grieved by the news of the death of the King. I know of no man who could be so ill spared. He was a consistent and powerful friend of peace. It is impossible at this time to estimate the value of his influence in minimizing the war spirit among the nations of the world and in educating the public opinion of Europe to the necessity for international peace.

"I would not care to venture an opinion now on the effect of his death on the peace of the world."

Former Ruler Intensely Human, Says Joseph Choate

NEW YORK, May 7.—"With sorrow I feel at the death of a monarch who ruled his own dominions well and exercised a powerful influence for good throughout Europe, this comes to me as a sense of personal loss in the passing away of King Edward," said Joseph H. Choate, former American ambassador to England.

"As a man he was even more interesting than as a monarch, and that is saying a great deal, for no king ever was more sincerely loved by his own subjects or more admired by the people of other nations. As a man he was intensely human and when he put off his royalty, as he was delighted to do when opportunity offered, and met the people in an atmosphere more free than that of the court, he was one of the most charming of men, though never lacking in that dignity which would permit none to forget high rank.

"His interesting personality appeals to me more at this moment than his successful though somewhat brief reign. It would be impossible at this time to make any adequate comment upon it other than to say that the name of Edward VII will be one of the brightest in England's history. In his death not only the British Empire but the civilized world has suffered an irreparable loss."

England's Dead Ruler Dubbed "Prince of Peace," by Dewey

NEW YORK, May 7.—"King Edward was a prince of peace and his reign has been influential in preserving the peace of Europe," said Admiral George Dewey, when asked what effect in his opinion, the King's death would have upon international politics.

Admiral Dewey is one of the honorary presidents of the American Peace and Arbitration League.

"He was a man of great diplomacy," continued Dewey, "and this was supplemented by a personal charm that enabled him to carry his point when his aim was to smooth out difficulties. He was confronted with some very serious problems in his own kingdom in his last days, and he had shown much wisdom in his attitude concerning them. That they should have remained unsettled when his end came adds to the sorrow of the event for England. As to world's problems, it is probable that the beneficial acts of what he has done as one of the workers for universal peace will long survive him."

ROOSEVELT TO BE RECEIVED WITHOUT DISPLAY

Death of King Edward Changes Plans to Entertain Former President.

AMERICAN HOPED TO GAIN INFLUENCE

Peace Was to Be Forwarded by Monarch, Hope of Nobel Prize Winner.

(By PAUL LAMBETH.)

LONDON, May 7.—One of the results of the death of King Edward is an entire change in the program for the reception of former President Roosevelt when he comes to London later in the month.

Mr. Roosevelt will be received most cordially, but the spectacular features which had been planned will of course be eliminated. It is understood Mr. Roosevelt feels the death of King Edward very keenly, not only because of his high admiration for the dead monarch but also because of its possible effect on his plans to advocate the cause of peace.

WANTED INFLUENCE.

Friends here of the former President understood that one of the principal objects of his visit to the European capital was to use his influence to make sure that the next Hague tribunal should not be barren of results, but that action should be taken which would make a long step in the direction of universal arbitration and the limitation of armaments.

HOPED FOR PLANS.

Mr. Roosevelt had, it is understood, spoken effectively along this line to President Fallieres, King Victor of Italy, the Emperor Francis Joseph and the monarchs whom he had visited, and had the hearty sympathy and support of the late King in his mission. [illegible] when he met King Edward to talk over plans to put his ideas into effect.

It is understood here that Mr. Roosevelt's stay in Germany may be curtailed and it is not impossible that he and the Kaiser may journey to London together.

EDWARD'S ILLNESS AFFECTED MARKET

News of Death Causes Little Ripple on Surface of the Board.

(By RALPH EMERSON.)

NEW YORK, May 7.—The news of the serious illness of King Edward in the middle of the week had a more serious effect on the stock market than his death. It was believed that the turn for the better which the market took in the middle of the week was a substantial one.

CLEARS THE SKIES.

The placing of great bond issues abroad means the clearing of the financial skies in the United States. Financiers have believed there could be no genuine confidence in the future until [illegible] had been reached where there was a market upon which railroads could sell their four per cent bonds to an advantage. In the past two years the bond market in this country has been so narrow that the placing of four per cent issues here meant nothing if not a loss to the companies issuing.

It was announced after the close of the Exchange today that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Speyer & Co. jointly had purchased from the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad 30,000,000 three year 4½ per cent notes, which would be placed by bankers here and in Europe. These notes are part of a $60,000,000 issue of which $10,000,000 is being reserved.

POLITICAL WAR IN ENGLAND HALTED BY DEATH

Commons and Lords Look to New Ruler for Expression of His Sentiments.

PEACE PACT IN FORCE UNTIL END OF YEAR

Redmond Expresses Sorrow of Ireland and Eulogizes the Late King Edward.

(BY PAUL LAMBETH.)

LONDON, May 7.—Whatever may be the ultimate effect on the British constitution, it seems to be the general opinion that the death of King Edward and the accession of King George V will bring a truce between the House of Lords and the House of Commons for some months at least. British statesmen, particularly those who are in office, are extremely chary of talking for publication through the newspapers at such times as these, but I understand from high authority that the leaders of both the Government and the opposition have decided not to bring on the final test on the veto question until the new King has had time to become familiar with the political situation.

This does not mean there will be any permanent backing down on the part of the Liberal coalition as to the question of limiting the veto power of the Lords.

APPEAL TO KING.

The Government could not take the back track on this proposition if it would, but the sentiment is that instead of carrying out the original program of demanding action by the Lords in June, and in the event of their refusal to submit to the limitation of their powers, to ask the assistance of the King to enable them to push the measure through the House of Lords.

Anyway, the status quo will be maintained until fall, perhaps until the end of the year. The political leaders are said to be more doubtful of the attitude of King George than they were of the late King Edward. This may be due to the fact that so little is known as to His Majesty's feelings on this, or in fact, any of the leading public questions.

LIBERALS IN DANGER.

It is feared if the King were to be asked for guarantees in the near future and should [illegible] the state of public feeling following the death of King Edward, it might result in the defeat of the Liberals if they should precipitate a crisis. In the course of a few months King George will stand before the public on his merits. While neither the Liberals nor the Unionist leaders will discuss the political situation at this time, confining whatever they have to say to eulogies of the late King, the Labor and Irish leaders say that the change in monarchy will not materially affect the political program.

IRELAND GRIEVES.

John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, said:

"Ireland grieves with the rest of the Empire over the death of King Edward. There has been a very kindly feeling among Irishmen toward the King, as there was towards his mother, Queen Victoria. I cannot see that his death has changed the political situation so far as Ireland is concerned. We will continue the fight for self government."

Keir Hardie, the Labor leader, said:

"King Edward was an ideal constitutional King, and England suffers a severe loss in his death. He was extremely careful not to transcend constitutional limits. I do not think labor has anything to dread in the ascension to the throne of King George. He has for years been a student of sociology and done many things to ameliorate conditions among the poor of England. So far as any action of the King can affect the interests of labor, I do not anticipate they will suffer at the hands of George V. It is [illegible] to credit the trend of the [illegible] in Parliament."

Other Irish and Labor leaders express similar views.

Vote on Amendment Now Out of Sight

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The prospect of obtaining a vote on the long and short haul amendment to the railroad bill early next week has been dissipated by the departure of Senator Cummins for Iowa and by the intention of Senator Dolliver to join him there.

The regulars are still confident of defeating the long and short haul provisions with the aid of Democratic votes. The prospect of the retention of the stock and bond section is better today. The President is reported to be urging this course.

Prince Afaka's Ball Postponed by Death

TOKIO, Japan, May 7.—The grand ball of Prince Afaka planned for this evening has been postponed and all other public functions temporarily abandoned. In the [illegible] sovereign Japan [illegible] a friend and [illegible] will go into mourning out of respect to the King's memory.

Tories Say Liberals Caused King's Death

LONDON, May 7.—Already some rabid Tory papers are charging the government with worrying the King into the grave. This will be a powerful cry at the elections, though if the crisis caused the King's death, of which there is no evidence whatever, the responsibility would rather seem to lie with the Lords who provoked the crisis by rejecting the budget. The Tories assume King George will be on their side, but the Liberals believe Asquith will find George a far easier proposition to handle than was his father, whose personality and will power were far stronger than Asquith's, while his immense popularity insured that any course he took would be approved by a majority of the electorate.

The Irish leaders determinedly oppose postponement of the veto struggle, being convinced it would cause the coalition to fall to pieces and making ultimate defeat certain.

Talks on Teeth

Tooth Wisdom

How many of your wisdom teeth have you left?

It seems as if nature added these teeth more as a form of punishment than for use. They come late, hurt and bother wretchedly while coming and soon begin to show decay.

Then they must be treated or taken out. Their going left a gap that could never be supplied until the Alveolar method was discovered and missing teeth could be restored without the use of plates or bridge work on both sides of sound teeth.

Nature supplied thirty-two teeth in the beginning, and she generally knows what is necessary for the [illegible] of the human body. There are no superfluous parts. We need thirty-two teeth.

Now if one subtracts two or four or a dozen teeth from the original supply because [illegible] or [illegible] because of [illegible] dentist—the deficiency should be [illegible]. Every dentist on earth admits [illegible] always admitted that [illegible] was necessary but the only way they had of filling in the gaps [illegible] fill the mouth with [illegible] plate upon which were fastened sundry false teeth.

These filled the gaps all right but were no good to chew with because none of them was fastened solidly to the rest of the sound teeth.

Bite on one side [illegible] and the plate on the other [illegible] is not it would drop out [illegible] entirely.

No wonder it was called a partial plate.

The other plan of restoring missing teeth was styled bridge work—but this was limited to spaces between teeth. It could not work on either side and being high in the [illegible] it was torture to [illegible] for the [illegible] or spring pushed the [illegible] teeth until they became loose and diseased.

Then the bridge [illegible] and as "partial plates" were no good the common practice was to pull all the rest of the good teeth and supply a full plate. Such was the rule until about five years ago, when a wonderful discovery was made called the "Alveolar Method" of supplying missing teeth without the use of plates or so-styled bridge work was introduced to the world.

This was the greatest step that had been taken in dental science in a century.

Skeptics said it can't be done, but many agreed [illegible].

The world has been waiting for the Alveolar Method.

Only a brief summary of the Alveolar Method can be given [illegible] space but the whole story is admirably told in [illegible] a book of [illegible] pages profusely illustrated which we want you to [illegible] and read now.

We mail it absolutely free upon request.

It will give you more information about the teeth than you [illegible] ever read before [illegible] explain in detail the Alveolar Method.

Of course if you live within [illegible] distance [illegible] and let us look at your teeth [illegible] charge for [illegible].

The method [illegible] cutting into [illegible] pain nothing [illegible] to fear and it's not expensive.

Once in [illegible] feel good [illegible] exactly like nature's teeth.

All we do [illegible] in either [illegible].

This is [illegible] serves [illegible] that are going [illegible] or write [illegible]."

AGE IS DECADENT DR. JUDSON SAYS

University Head Points Out Four Prolific Sources of Evil.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, in his address yesterday as president of the Northern Baptist convention, said the present age is the most decadent in history with the exception of the days just before the fall of the Roman empire and before the French revolution.

If there is to be social and political regeneration in our republic and in the rest of the world the movement must be by a movement of regeneration of moral ideals.

We recognize in the world's life today four prolific sources of evil and from these sources come the disrupting forms which are so seriously tending to disintegrate the society of the twentieth century. One of the [illegible] internationalism [illegible] is war.

PUBLIC DISHONESTY

Another source of endless evil is [illegible] by [illegible] meeting public and private life [illegible] tainting channels [illegible] of justice, tainting our legislatures, [illegible] tainting the [illegible] of private business, polluting at times even the church itself.

Another vital source of infinite evil is drunkenness.

A fourth source of infinite evil in every modern society is impurity of [illegible].

All these great sources of evil will be eliminated [illegible] only the fundamental principles of Christ [illegible] in the [illegible] of human hearts and souls.

It will help the discharged prisoner as well as the paroled man to get a new [illegible] to earn an [illegible]. The plan in brief is to [illegible] for [illegible] quarry [illegible] may be called the State Industrial Farm. The State owns land that [illegible] utilized in this way. [illegible] acres [illegible] to the State and [illegible] would be useful [illegible] still providing labor [illegible].

In this way [illegible] it would mean [illegible] good conduct [illegible] privileges. The farm would [illegible] after [illegible] discharged in caring for him until his friends were able to look after him. It would also help the aged and infirm.

OAKLANDER SUES TO SEE CONTRACT

Socrates Mining Company Ordered to Bring Paper Into Court

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Dr. James W. Ward, Thomas W. Nowlin, J. L. Bradbury, W. S. Brann, Charles Sutro and J. T. Carr, constituting the board of directors of the Socrates Consolidated Mining company, have been made the defendants in an action brought by C. F. Kinard of Oakland to compel the members of the directorate to reveal to him the contents of a contract made between the mining company and a corporation organized to exploit its holdings.

According to Kinard, Dr. Ward, who is the president of the mining company, has admitted to him he has the contract but has refused to show the document to him.

Kinard, who acts as his own attorney, asserts that the directors entered into a contract with the Socrates Development company and A. T. Trent, a former director of the mining company, to develop quicksilver lands in Sonoma county, but that the contract lacked the item of consideration. The contents of the agreement have been concealed from the minority stockholders, according to the complaint.

Superior Judge Cabaniss directed the defendants to exhibit the contract in his department May 20 or show cause.

SPIRITS FLEE AS SHERIFF APPEARS

Seance Ends When Mediums Are Arrested on Charge of Swindling.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The Orlof spiritualist factory at [illegible] Market street was closed for the summer yesterday. Deputy Sheriff F. J. White is now running the place, but no business is being transacted because Mrs. Frances Shaw of 102 Fifty-fourth street, Oakland, who charges that John Doe Orlof and Jane Doe Orlof, the proprietors, worked her palm for $150 on December 27 last, has secured warrants for their arrest on the charge of grand larceny.

According to the complaint Mrs. Shaw went to the place on that date to have her palm read. While this was being done a voice issued from a long tin horn and told her that the spirit of her dead grandmother commanded her to invest $150 in a certain mining stock or misfortune would hang over her head. Mrs. Shaw says that she came through with the money, but since that day she has been very unfortunate, for she has heard nothing of her money, to say nothing of dividends.

On her complaint a warrant was issued yesterday by Police Judge Conlan. Other complainants appeared and A. [illegible] West and De Journel, alleging a larceny of $9[illegible], in all, secured a writ of attachment on the property.

The detectives with the warrants could not find the Orlofs. They had probably read each other's palms and saw indications of disaster. Deputy White went to the shop and took charge. There wasn't very much to seize except the long tin horn and a silver dollar which was nailed to the wall.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Mrs. Martha Downing, widow of George Downing, filed a contest yesterday of her husband's will, in which he [illegible] of a $1[illegible]50 estate to Albert J. Mrs. Downing charges that the will was the result of undue influence.

Downing died last January at the City and County Hospital. He was more than 70 years old. Cassell and Attorney James A. Devoto are executors of the testament.

Mosswood Park Becomes Joyous Fairyland Under the Skilful Hands of Society Women

MRS HARRY EAST MILLER, who presided over the palmistry concession of the May Day Fete held yesterday afternoon in Mosswood Park.

GARDEN FETE FOR CHARITY PROVES BIG SUCCESS

Funds Raised to Be Used to Maintain Home for Aged Women and Orphans.

Mosswood Park was converted into a pavilion of artistic booths yesterday afternoon and the fete given on the spacious grounds for the benefit of the Ladies' Relief Society was a success. The function was attended by society women and their children.

Through the untiring efforts of a number of philanthropic women of this community the garden fete was a charming event which netted the society about $500. The money is to be used for maintaining the home which cares for aged women and homeless children.

The details of the fete were well carried out by the army of women who have pledged themselves to work zealously for charity's cause and no effort was spared in perfecting the schemes for the benefit. Each booth was decorated and most of the articles on display were made by the women who sold them.

PRETTY MAYPOLE DANCE.

One of the most fascinating features of the fete was the Maypole dance given by thirty-six girls who were trained by Mrs C. Rice. The children were dressed in white and made a pretty picture as they circled around the pole with its pink and green streamers. During the dance the Lockwood grammar school band gave selections, under the leadership of Charles H. Greenman, principal of the school. This was preceded by the dairy maids dance, which was given by the following: Elma Ebar, Bernadine McLellan, Athea Johnson, [illegible] Filkins, [illegible] Soulhaben, Vera [illegible], Geraldine [illegible]terson, [illegible] [illegible] Kloss, Beattie [illegible], Martha Andrews, Vesta Jackson, [illegible], Ruth Merrick and Jessie [illegible].

The girls of the home who sang during the intervals were Catherine [illegible], Ella Hinton, Olean [illegible], Frances [illegible], Ancel Story, Adele Merrill, Florence Jones, Mary Jacinto, Annie Jacinto and Mary Nurm.

The booths were in charge of the following:

Homemade booth—Miss Jeannette [illegible], Miss Elizabeth [illegible], Mrs Frank [illegible], Mrs H. H. Eastwood.

MANY PRETTY GOWNS

Among the attractively gowned women who assisted in making the fete a success were Miss Matilda B[illegible], who wore a white poplin suit trimmed with Irish lace insertions and a hat to match.

Mrs William [illegible] Henshaw wore a suit [illegible] trimmed with [illegible].

Mrs Harry East Miller wore [illegible] lingerie with a white plumed hat.

SCIENTISTS PLAN ISLAND VOYAGE

Astronomers Are to View Halley's Comet From Sea and Island Mountains

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—An exceptionally large number of passengers is listed for Honolulu today in the Oceanic liner Sierra, leaving Filbert street late in the afternoon. Professors [illegible] Coddington and H. C. Lord of the University of Ohio are making the trip to the islands with astronomical instruments for the express purpose of observing Halley's comet both at sea and from the most advantageous points in the islands. Chief Justice Beatty of the Supreme Court is aboard the Sierra bound for a pleasure trip to Honolulu. Other passengers include Miss Agnes An[illegible], Paul de Longpre the artist, of Los Angeles, with his wife and daughter, [illegible] Irwin the capitalist, H. P. PACIFIC MAIL VESSEL CROWDED

"Mongolia" Expected in Port With Full Passenger and Freight Lists.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—For the first time in many voyages the Pacific Mail liner Mongolia is coming home with not only all the cabin passengers that can be accommodated but a load of freight that comes close to the hatch covers. This is the best time of year for the passenger traffic but it is not every year that all the liners go and come filled to their capacity. It has been the case thus far this season and at present the business is exceptionally heavy with the Mongolia, particularly carrying two or more voyagers in every stateroom. At Honolulu only twenty-six passengers could be accommodated in the steamer, a score of applicants of passage being compelled to wait for other liners bound to the coast.

The Mongolia arrived at Honolulu yesterday morning and was expected to resume her trip to San Francisco last night. [illegible] Friday but the exact hour of her coming depends upon the hour she leaves Honolulu. Captain Henry E. Morton is to remain ashore for one voyage of the Mongolia in order to go to Ireland to look after business interests there.

Government Steamer Is Being Overhauled

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The transport Thomas now laid up for an extensive overhauling will come out of dry dock Sunday and return to a slip at Folsom street for a short time before being sent to an anchorage in the bay. Hundreds of mechanics are to be employed on the Thomas for the next four or six months, the work of bringing the troopship up to date costing the government about $300,000. Captain George H. Peirce, formerly commander of the Sheridan, [illegible] chief officer in charge of the Thomas. Captain Lynam, the regular commander of the Thomas, is temporarily in charge of the Buford, now here in reserve.

NAVAL MILITIA PLAN PRACTICE

Students to Watch Navigators Make Adjustments on Nautical Instruments.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The cruiser Marblehead, with the local divisions of the naval militia on board, will cruise tomorrow in the neighborhood of Red Rock to make final adjustment of compasses and "swing ship" for residual deviations. The first class in navigation of the Humboldt evening high school will accompany the vessel today for instruction in the use of the sextant and in compass work.

The naval militiamen are enthusiastic over the possession of the Marblehead, which in addition to being in fine condition is one of the most attractive of the smaller cruisers, fit for off shore cruising as well as harbor work. The Marblehead was formerly under command of the late Rear Admiral McCalla, when he was of lesser rank and doing his part of the war against the Spaniards in Cuba.

Disinfectant Turned Raven Hair to Gold

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 9.—It's pretty nearly up to the health department to get a new brand of disinfectant for use where it becomes necessary to have budding young debutantes indulge in shampoos when they have been exposed to contagious diseases. The present article is [illegible].

Recently a young East Side woman was compelled to take the shampoo treatment after there had been a case of diphtheria in the house. She protested but the sanitary patrolman was obdurate. Finally she used the disinfectant in washing her head thoroughly. To hurry the drying of her hair, for the day was warm, she went out into the sunshine.

The next day there was a glint of gold in her heretofore raven tresses. Another day and it had become more pronounced. Now she [illegible] golden as an autumn sunset. [illegible] as soon as she is out of quarantine there probably will be a lively session at the health office.

Dr Ford, health superintendent, is out of the city. In his absence none of the subordinates will discuss disinfectants.

WIRELESS PLANT PROVES SUCCESS

Monterey Station Will Now Be Reached by Telegraph of Big Steamer.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The new wireless plant that has been installed in the liner Asia since her arrival from the Orient was working with Monterey today, and proved to be as satisfactory as the other five kilowatt plants which the Pacific Mail company has had placed in all the other trans-Pacific liners except the Mongolia. The last named steamer will be similarly equipped upon her arrival here. Not only wireless plants but electric pianos are being placed in all the Pacific Mail trans-Pacific steamers.

Nearly sixty local passengers are booked to sail Tuesday afternoon on the Asia for Japan and China. There are no passengers for Honolulu, the Asia being of foreign registry and on this account barred from carrying freight or passengers between American ports.

Saves Lives on Train And Gets 50 Cents

JOPLIN, Mo., May 9.—Henry A. Richardson, a Joplin plumber, declares the prevention of train wrecks is not a paying business. Richardson's opinion is authoritative, as he received 50 cents for saving the lives of the crew and passengers on a west-bound Frisco train at the corner of Fourteenth and Main streets.

As Richardson was going to work he noticed something flying up beneath the wheels of a freight train which passed the crossing. Investigating, he discovered that one of the rails had splintered and was in such shape that the next train could not have escaped derailment.

Knowing that trains usually make pretty fair speed at this spot, he was horrified to hear the whistle of an approaching passenger train around a curve several hundred feet away.

He flagged the train and in the absence of a section crew helped the trainmen to replace the broken rail with an old length lying nearby, after which the train passed slowly over the break.

Before resuming his trip the engineer tossed Richardson a half dollar. He says he will keep it as a memento.

SHORT SELLERS LOSE COURAGE

Government's Report Looms as Shadow Over Chicago Wheat Pit.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Short sellers of wheat seemed to have lost their courage [illegible] May offerings were extremely light, though general rains in the west and southwest [illegible] had extended to [illegible].

According to [illegible] [illegible] the short side [illegible] Monday.

Prices opened a little lower [illegible] higher with September at $1.0[illegible] to $1 [illegible] advance to $1.03½ [illegible].

Some profit taking was done [illegible] July and September under cover of the [illegible] in May. Commission houses and the local crowd bought wheat on stop loss orders during the [illegible]. September went to $1.[illegible] [illegible] $1.03[illegible].

On considerable [illegible] however, the market turned weak [illegible] for September a shade under last night.

In oats local traders were trying to bull the September option and received some help from the cash houses who were taking the May delivery. September opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 38⅞@39c and touched [illegible].

Provisions eased because of lack of support. The market opened [illegible] and 10c off and declined still further to $22.[illegible] for September [illegible] $12.37½ for [illegible] lard and $12 [illegible] for [illegible] ribs.

THEODORE BELL NOW APPEARS AS BACKER OF A SUMMER RESORT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Theodore A. Bell is a man of unusual versatility. It has all along been known that he was an accomplished job-chaser and a lawyer in search of a fee. But now he comes before the public as the keeper of a summer resort, and perhaps he will seek the summer resort vote on the ground of fellow feeling.

The other day I had a prospectus of Soda Bay, a resort on Clear Lake. At the head of the company promoting the resort was the name of your well-known citizen, James de Fremery, and then came the name of the secretary, Theodore A. Bell.

Now, California has had Governors who were in various professions and lines of business, but I believe she hasn't yet tried a summer resort owner. Possibly Bell will be able to advertise Soda Bay during his campaign, throwing into his speeches an eloquent description of the beauties of the place and its Ponce de Leon spring. There are other resort proprietors who might take a chance at running for office just for the advertising chances offered by the rostrum. Bell may set a new vogue in office-seeking and in time every candidate may be expected to own or exploit a summer resort or a mineral water.

Do We Want Him at Washington?

The Native Sons are putting thorns in the path of Judge John D. Works, the Lincoln-Roosevelt candidate for United States Senator. They have discovered that he was earnestly trying to dismember California only a few months ago. This was at the time that Los Angeles and some of the other Southern communities felt aggrieved because the State Board of Equalization had raised their taxes. At once there was a cry for a division of the State.

Judge Works was to the fore in the matter and urged State division. He spoke in favor of it at the City Club and didn't seem to want anything more to do with the country north of the Tehachapi. Now the Native Sons have begun to ask one of another:

"Do we want a man at Washington who will be in a position to further State division if the agitation should be resumed?"

Every little while one of the extreme Southern papers takes up the matter again and advocates State division, so those of us who really love the old State just as it is are not apt to regard favorably the candidacy of a man who is eager to split it apart. This is one of the many reasons why the touring of Judge Works is such a frost all through the Northern part of the State.

A Long Step in Advance

Even the most unreasoning opponents of our present city government must give it credit for a long step in advance in one matter—the painting of Lotta's fountain. Time out of mind when it became convenient to accentuate the hideousness of that cast-iron relic some painter, like Jabez Swan, would get the job.

Then there was a nice little graft in it. The painter erected around the fountain a high barricade of boards and rented out the advertising space on them. Of course it took him a very long time to get the painting done, as the longer his advertising fence was up the more money he made from his ads. So it was a hard job to get the fence away at all.

Now Lotta's fountain is being painted again. But if you will notice, you will find on the plain board enclosure this sign

POST NO BILLS.
BOARD OF WORKS.

Of course it will be easily argued that the old fountain should not be painted at all, as to make it garish with bright paint and gilt calls needless attention to its lack of artistry. But apart from that it was a good thing to cut out the petty graft of that advertising sign-board.

The Story of the Stock Exchange

Joseph L. King, son of that James King of William, whose shooting by Casey started the Vigilantes of 1856, has written one of the most interesting books ever put out by a Californian. It is the "History of the San Francisco Stock Exchange Board." King has been the chairman or caller of that Board for a long time, and as a stockbroker was associated with all the famous men of the Big Bonanza days. He has told of those men in most entertaining fashion, giving pictures of each and many incidents of sudden fortune or strange reverses. Here is a sample paragraph:

"In early days, in the '70's, quite a number of operators would gather together in Cahill's office on Montgomery street, near California. Among them were Mr. James C. Flood and Mr. Robert Sherwood. Sherwood had 1000 shares of Consolidated Virginia, the stock selling at about $ 00 per share. One day Sherwood, on looking at the prices, remarked that he was getting tired of that Consolidated Virginia—it did not move much. Mr. Flood said:

"'What are you growling about? If you are tired of that stock, I will take it off your hands at $100.'

"'Sold,' said Sherwood, and the stock changed hands.

"In course of time the Nevada Bank building was erected on the corner of Pine and Montgomery streets. On meeting Sherwood one day, Mr. Flood remarked:

"'We built the Nevada Block on the profits of the 1000 shares of Consolidated Virginia you sold us.'

"Subsequently, in the Sierra Nevada and Union deal, Mr. Flood approached Mr. Sherwood on the street and bought from him 5000 Union at $200 a share, the transaction footing $1,000,000. Sherwood built the Union Block on the gore corner of Pine, Davis and Market streets. Meeting Flood one day he remarked:

"'I built the Union Block with the profits on that 5000 Union I sold you.'"

The book is full of just such chatty anecdotes in addition to its historical and statistical matter, and it is certain to find a ready sale with all who love the men and stories of the brave old days of sudden fortune.

The Bartender and the Tip

The other evening at one of our big hotels I noticed a group of free spenders opening champagne at the bar. After one had been served with a bottle and had paid for it he passed a piece of money over to the bartender, who pocketed it as smoothly as you please. An older man in the group said quietly:

"Well, that's the first time I ever saw that done in California."

"Saw what done?" asked one.

"Saw a bartender take a tip. Why, in the old days if a man had attempted to pass a tip over the bar he would have been in danger of being hit with a bottle or a bungstarter. It was a code of ethics among bartenders that they were above that sort of thing. It was an insult to offer one of them a tip, and that insult would be sure of resentment. Perhaps the old race of California bartenders is dying out, but that is the first tip I ever saw passed and received."

One on Larry Harris

Larry Harris is recognized now as the foremost wit of the town. He puts over many a jest that causes a laugh at the expense of his fellows. All he asks is that some one will interrupt him in his talks, and at once the interrupter is stung by the human wasp, whose quickness of intellect is phenomenal.

But the other day one was put over on Harris that got the laugh on him and is going the rounds. He was out on the bay on the trip of the steamer Bear and made his usual hit with his talk. Then he started to light a cigar. The breeze blew out his match. He walked over to a funnel and stuck his head into it to try for a light.

Match after match blew out and Harris was getting a bit vexed and a good deal puzzled when Captain Hibberd spoke up:

"Well, I've always heard of you as a wit, but I'll be hanged if you show much wit in trying to light a cigar in the draft of a ventilator."

Judge De Haven in Bad Health

I greatly fear that District Judge De Haven is a far sicker man than has been given out. He may never come back to the bench again unless his present vacation rest shall greatly improve his health.

The Judge has been working very hard and really needs a very long rest. His mode of life is not such as to give him the variety a hard-working man needs. He walks from his office to his home and from his home to his office. He sees few men and indulges in few recreations.

There is a great fear among the lawyers that his health will break finally, for no judge has a greater general respect than John De Haven, who really typifies justice in its highest form.

Flint May Run

The United States Senatorship continues to be a leading subject of interest among the politicians. The selection of a junior Senator seems to still be somewhat up in the air, about the only point conceded being that he will come from Southern California and even that is not a positive conclusion.

Every now and then a wise man—sometimes as many as two wise men—come out of the southland with a candidate for Senator up their sleeves. A little later their predictions evaporate into approximate absurdity and are shown to have had no basis in fact.

If I were to make a guess it would be that United States Senator Frank P. Flint will succeed to the toga he has worn so gracefully and well during the past six years. Flint has been remarkably successful in Washington, and early made a place for himself as the head of the younger set in Washington, and many an older Senator has not reached the position of favor with the administration that is held by Frank Flint. His relations with President Taft, Senator Aldrich and other administration leaders are both confidential and enviable, they having the greatest faith in California's junior Senator, who frequently joins in their consultations.

The interests of Southern California, including the harbor improvements at San Pedro, the proposed Panama steamship line and the citrus fruit interests are extensive and dependent upon the watchful care of her Senator at the national capital. Flint has ably rendered this service and is in a position by reason of his associations in Washington to continue to do so. To be sure Flint has indicated that he will not be a candidate for re-election, but it is a far cry to the general election next November when the electors will cast their "advisory" vote on United States Senator.

The direct primary law, that enigma of recent legislation, is the cause of much of the confusion in relation to the Senatorship. Many think that the United States Senator is to be nominated at the August primary and the subject thus disposed of. While a candidate may receive a nomination at the primary it does not bar other candidates from entering the contest later.

According to the puzzling primary law there are two methods of securing a nomination or advisory indorsement for an office. One is a party nomination secured at the primary and the other is an independent nomination made by petition signed by 3 per cent of the voters. Flint might elect to secure an independent nomination and go before the electors at the general election in November for their indorsement. Should he follow this course he might find for his competitors either John D. Works, who is seeking the primary nomination, or Willis Booth, who may contest with Works for that primary nomination.

It is not improbable that Judge Works will be permitted to go over the course at the primary without an opponent in the Republican party. Then Flint might try conclusions with him at the general election for the popular indorsement of the electors.

Of course this is largely speculative, but the riddle presented by the direct primary law may be solved in this way: The candidates for United States Senator may fight it out at the general election in November in much the same manner as candidates for State and district offices. The party primary nomination plan requires the candidate to make two campaigns, one at the primary and one at the general election, while the direct nomination by petition requires the candidate to go before the electors but once—at the general election in November.

Bell in the Race

The Democracy has but one candidate for Governor at this time and that aspirant is Theodore A. Bell, former Congressman from the Second District, and who, four years ago, was defeated for the office to which he now aspires by James N. Gillett. This situation has caused some Democrats to become retrospective and to utter chuckles as they contemplate the past.

Early in this campaign the name of former Congressman Geary was suggested for the nomination for Governor. Immediately Bell and his associates pounced upon Geary in an effort to discredit his candidacy. Geary withdrew, but all his friends affirmed that they would never vote for Bell for Governor.

State Senator E. O. Miller of Visalia was next suggested for the Democratic nomination for Governor. The whole Bell pack was soon in full cry after Miller and he, too, withdrew and his large number of friends asseverated that for them it was anyone but Bell for the office of Chief Executive of California.

Then Joseph H. Call of Los Angeles was trotted out by the Southern Democrats for a preliminary canter. Call was desirous of the office, but in doubt. He was thinking hard, but before he had made more than one lap of the track the Bellites sought to rule him off for life. Call withdrew, but his friends are still in the fight against Bell.

Now the Democrats who do not like Bell, and they would take some time to count, are asking where Bell is going to get off at the general election in November, even with a primary nomination by default. The friends of Geary, Miller, Call and other leading and influential Democrats are after his scalp and there are those who predict that they will lift that growth next November.

League Leaders Divided

The State Lincoln-Roosevelt League is not a happy family except the monkey and parrot variety apply. Early in the canvass there were bickerings and the petulant altercations between candidates and political managers have been going on ever since.

When Hiram Johnson, the League's candidate for Governor, John D. Works, candidate for United States Senator, and A. J. Wallace, a would-be Lieutenant-Governor, went north to electrify the citizens of that section of the State with their oratorical appeals, the trouble began. There was but one automobile for the party, which included three or four newspaper reporters, and as the car was small Works and Wallace were obliged to make connections by steam and electric trains, which was at least inconvenient, if not really a severe tax on the dignity of those candidates.

JUDGE JOHN D. WORKS IS IN FAVOR OF DIVIDING THE STATE

Surprising as it may appear, Wallace was the first to complain, even getting in ahead of Works, who, in the south is known as the "man with the perpetual grouch." Wallace notified headquarters that more automobiles were needed. Headquarters replied that the candidates could furnish their own automobiles; Johnson had done so and the other candidates might do the same. At any rate headquarters would furnish no more cars for the eloquent tourists.

Then Johnson made his kick. He complained that Works and Wallace got in ahead of him at the meetings and consumed so much of the evening that sufficient time was not left him to show the audience what a real orator and the only pure man who ever sought office sounds and looks like. Wallace developed a huff that he called "sore throat" and went back to Los Angeles to recuperate, while Johnson and Works continued their political tours.

It is said that the stories that Wallace was making a campaign by giving money to the churches en route, and that he had already distributed $30,000, was at least premature. In refutation of this charge of benevolence on the part of the candidate for Lieutenant-Governor it is asserted that his campaign economies were such that when he telephoned to headquarters in this city he was so punctilious that he always had the switch charged at this end. This naturally excited some comment about the reckless liberality of southern millionaires in politics.

The latest report is that Wallace has so far recovered from his indisposition as to be able to rejoin the Johnson-Works party in their political joy ride through the San Joaquin valley. Whether an automobile was furnished by headquarters to speed his convalescence is not stated.

Changed Its Name

The Lincoln-Roosevelt League of this city has changed its name and is now doing politics and other things under the alias of "Independent Republican Clubs." Whether the leaguers have wearied of their former designation or it is a case of conscience, and they are apologizing for the use of the names of the martyr President and the mighty hunter in connection with their methods is not fully apparent. It would seem that they are trying to cover up, or cause the public to forget their deeds in the deceptive postage stamp primary, their stuffing of the club rolls and similar reforms and have changed their name with a view to still further deceiving the voters under an assumed name. Whatever may be their purpose they are now seeking to form clubs in the Assembly districts under their latest assumed name.

The leaguers are also sending out a printed ticket of the candidates nominated in secret by their executive committee without any reference to the machine they were selected by, but with a caption intended to deceive the voter into the belief that these candidates, thus secretly selected, are the choice of the regular Republican party. Nothing appears on the printed ticket to indicate that it emanated from the Lincoln-Roosevelt League or is in any manner connected with that combination.

Signing Petitions

One effect of the direct primary law has been to develop an extraordinary facility with pen and pencil among the electors. This is specially apparent in the signing of their names to nearly everything in the form of a nominating petition that may be presented to them, regardless of the party or political faction to which the aspirant belongs. Some citizens are so eager to accommodate the candidates that they sign for them all in turn as the opportunity presents itself, no matter whether they be Republican, Democrat or insurgent.

In Benicia there are about 250 registered Republican voters. That these citizens are ready with their pens is attested by the fact that 210 of them have signed an Alden Anderson club roll, more than 200 have affixed their signatures to Curry club cards and Johnson has an excess of 200 signed up for him. Each candidate is confident that he will carry Benicia. That at least two of these candidates will get left at the primary requires no resort to algebra to forecast. Meanwhile the good citizens of Benicia are still signing their encouraging signatures to the petitions of all aspiring candidates as are electors in many other parts of the State. That a few candidates, at least, are doomed to disappointment at the preliminary election, because of the facile pens of these accommodating electors, is sad but true.

Directory in Politics

William Denman, the attorney and a prominent member of the commission which is considering amendments to the charter of San Francisco, has some interesting things to say about city directories and the "mechanical advantage" candidates for office have whose last names begin with the first letters of the alphabet. The middle of the directory of this city, he says, is found where the names begin with the letters "Ku." This is practically correct of the directories of all the large cities. During the last ten elections in San Francisco fifty per cent of the successful candidates for office had family names above the letters Ku. Of this fifty per cent, there was one election where twenty-two per cent of the winning candidates had names beginning with the letter C or above it; another where twenty-seven per cent had names beginning with the letter D or above it; another where twenty-three per cent had names beginning with the letter F or above it. The statement is made that where there are many names on the ballot many voters vote the first ones in the list when they have no special preferences. This number of mechanical voters is said to range between 2000 and 3000. To overcome this mechanical advantage it is proposed that the ballot in each of the eighteen assembly districts in the city have the names of candidates printed in a different order instead of alphabetically as at present. This would give every set of names beginning with a certain letter a chance to be at the top of the ballot and average the mechanical advantage.

Troubles of a Count

Count Pierre Rojeventsky, Consul of the Czar of Russia in this city, is shocked at the liberties the American press takes with his name. Very correctly this handsome, aristocratic Russian says "the newspapers wouldn't dare to do such a thing in my country." The other day the Countess left for London to visit her sister and her husband is domiciled at the Fairmont. Just as they had finished breaking up housekeeping in the beautiful Meyer country home at El Cerrito, a plebeian grocer presented a bill for $150 and demanded payment before they came up to the city. Count Rojeventsky promised to send down a check, but the grocer was a doubting Thomas. He wanted coin then and there, creating a little scene. The Russian pulled out a wallet and made payment, protesting that he wanted the money to use for something else that day. The local papers mentioned the incident and the Rojeventsky anger has not yet cooled. Nor has it yet disappeared because of two other occasions when the papers dared print the names of the Count and Countess. One depicted how the comely Countess was serenely—smoking—a cigarette as she walked beside the perambulator carrying her youngest child. At another time the papers mentioned that they had the Countess' maid's trunk searched for missing silverware. Lucille Phillips was the maid's name. She and her friends were very indignant and threatened suit for defamation of character. The affair was finally adjusted.

Flannery Kept His Word

Of the many stories printed recently in the local papers about Harry P. Flannery, who resigned from the Board of Police Commissioners a few days ago, one at least needs correction. I refer to the story that he made a promise to grant Henry Bray, house detective at the Palace, a special policeman commission and a license as a Chinatown guide and then deliberately went back on his word. He is represented as assuring Judge "Billy" Jones of Virginia City, a mutual friend, that he would take care of Bray and then took delight in ignoring the latter's request because he was a friend of Senator Newlands and William Sharon, two men Flannery is represented as having a grudge against. Flannery promised to act favorably in the Bray matter if it could be done. Investigation showed that it could not be done. Bray had only moved to town three weeks from Nevada when he had his friends appeal to Flannery. The latter found that under the charter of San Francisco nobody can get a license as a guide or anything else until he has lived here at least a year. That was the only reason why Bray did not and could not get his request granted. Bray, who had the desired influence to get into the Palace over the heads of other deserving people, is a nice fellow, but he certainly has no just grievance on the other score. By the way, because of this same provision in the charter, it was difficult recently to get a competent electrical engineer for the Board of Public Works.

Millions in Oil

California gold has produced a long list of millionaires in the years agone. So has Nevada silver and gold made very rich men out of people who had or still have their homes in this State. Now the phenomenal development of California oil is turning out men of the millionaire class or adding much wealth to men already in that class. The hunt for oil has its romances no less than the quest for gold and silver. Men like William H. Crocker, Henry J. Crocker and Captain William Matson have used oil to add to fortunes already acquired. There is romance in the way oil has made fortunes in seven figures for J. A. Chanslor, W. S. Porter, William Miller Graham, whose wife is now entertaining in a London home; George Cameron, who married a daughter of M. H. de Young; John Baker Jr., C. A. Canfield, W. A. Bissell, W. L. Stewart, S. W. Morsehead, Mrs. Theresa Bell, whose husband left her land poor until oil was found on much of it, and E. L. Doheny, who, through oil, has become a financial giant in Los Angeles and is to assist in spending seven millions on a pipe line from Kern county, this State, into Arizona. Then there is Clarence J. Berry, who made a fortune in the Klondyke and has made another in oil; Lewis H. Andrews, J. J. Mack, J. M. Keith, James F. Goodwin, P. O. Tietzen, Frank L. Brown, L. P. St. Clair, J .S. Torrance, J. M. Danziger, Charles G. Wilcox and Robert Hayes Smith. All of these men hail from San Francisco, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Bakersfield and other cities. Those who have made fortunes of half a million or less are too numerous to mention. And it should be borne in mind that the oil industry is still in its infancy.

Foster Refused Pay

It is so unusual in this work-a-day for a man to refuse compensation for labor performed that A. W. Foster's refusal has naturally attracted attention. Last week Mr. Foster informed United States Circuit Judge Van Fleet that he did not want pay for what he had done as one of the three experts appointed by the court to report on the condition of the Ocean Shore Railroad and what it will cost to complete it. Foster said he had never worked for a stated salary and did not want to begin at this late day. He also said he did not feel like accepting pay owing to the poor financial condition of the Ocean Shore road. Mr. Foster has been for many years a successful man. He made his start as a rich man as a stock broker. He still owns the big water company of Marin county and some choice ranches. He bought the Donahue, or Tiburon railroad, and sold it at a good profit in 1906 to E. H. Harriman. Attorney S. M. Smith and the late J. B. Stetson tried to get control of the road away from Foster and merge it with the Sausalito road, and nearly succeeded. Both roads are now merged in the Northwestern Pacific, which is owned by the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe. For ten years Foster was at the head of the finance committee of the University of California regents and was and still is a tower of strength to the regime of Benjamin Ide Wheeler. At his request, William H. Crocker heads the finance committee now, but he still is a regent. He is one of the brainy business men of California. With the Newhall family, he had done much for St. John's Presbyterian Church in this city.

Field's Play Complete

Charles K. Field has completed "The Cave Man," which is to be the stellar attraction at the midsummer jinks of the Bohemian Club this year. W. J. McCoy, who collaborated with Will Irwin in the Hamadryads, a jinks play of several seasons ago, has also finished writing the music for the Field dramatic effort. On this account, rehearsals of the chorus have commenced, much to the relief of officials of the club, who thought the work of rehearsing was being delayed. Something strong and unique is this literary and musical work of the two talented Bohemians. The chorus numbers sixty voices, and, as is well known David Bispham is to essay the leading part. Charles Dickman and Mackenzie Gordon are to have the two other leading parts. Field, in his desire to have the play as realistic as possible and true in detail, has benefited by the advice of Professor Merriam of the University of California, who is an authority on the period of the actual cave man. An impetus will be given the rehearsal work on the arrival here very soon of Joseph D. Redding from New York, who for Bispham's sake, as well as that of the club, wants to help make the summer jinks this year a memorable event in Bohemia. He has been advised of the character of Field's book and is said to be enthused over it. And this reminds me: Redding's opera, "Natoma," for which Victor Herbert has composed the music, is ready in New York for rehearsal, but will not be produced until late in the fall.

Shoplifters at Work

I have been talking with the detective employed regularly in one of the largest retail stores in the new shopping district. He says the shoplifter is by no means a disappearing character, in spite of the fact that but few arrests have been made in the city during the past few months. In his store one or two have been caught lately. On account of it being their first offense and because they were young women belonging to reputable homes, no public expose was made. One of the latest methods of stealing, he tells me, is for the shoplifter to have a slit in her dress near the belt. As she stands near the counter she can deftly seize the coveted article, be it a piece of lace or costly fabric or a bit of jewelry, and slip it into the skirt. The folds of the skirt are voluminous and readily conceal the thing stolen. The detective thinks this trick is frequently worked successfully because of its simplicity. In his opinion this kind of a shoplifter is more dangerous than the one using a satchel with a false bottom, although the latter method is a clever trick also. He finds that only the veriest tyro at shoplifting will pick up anything from the counters and when caught seek to brazen it out by declaring they had previously bought the article and had just brought it back to exchange for something else.

Crocker's Engagement

Charles Templeton Crocker, whose engagement to Miss Helene Irwin was the leading piece of society news for the past week, is a very level-headed young multi-millionaire whom neither large wealth nor flattery has blighted. As the second child of the late Colonel Charles F. Crocker, he inherited a goodly fortune. Under the careful management of Henry T. Scott and Charles E. Green during the years of his minority it rapidly increased. They still act for him and his sister, Miss Jennie Crocker, in business matters. He and his sister recently came into over a million and a half apiece by the death of their uncle, George Crocker. Those who ought to know say his fortune today amounts to close on to $10,000,000. He is a graduate of Yale like his uncle, William H. Crocker. While at the New Haven seat of learning, young Crocker attained some prominence as an amateur actor. He excelled as a female impersonator. Since leaving college he has abandoned that kind of amusement. Those who know say he is politically ambitious, but up to now has been persuaded to keep out of the political field by William H. Crocker, Henry T. Scott and several other relatives and friends in whose judgment and disinterestedness he has implicit faith. Shortly after he was born the late Jerome A. Fillmore wanted to name some railroad town in his honor. The father demurred, but finally consented to having a station named after him. It is Templeton on the coast division near the town of San Luis Obispo. The Del Monte Hotel is partly owned by this young man, as is also the St. Francis in this city. Speaking of his political ambitions, two men have married into the Crocker family who have been successful in politics. One is Richard Burton Harrison, a Democratic Congressman from New York City. His first wife was a sister of Templeton Crocker. Her tragic death in an automobile accident in the East several years ago is still remembered. J. Sloat Fassett is the other man who married into the family who has achieved success politically. He has for years been a prominent Republican in New York. His wife is a daughter of the late E. B. Crocker of Sacramento. He and Templeton Crocker's father were great friends.

Actress to See Fight

Ethel Barrymore, the well-known actress, has expressed a strong desire to witness the Jeffries and Johnson contest at Emeryville next July, at which time she will be on the coast. Her wish is to be granted. Several other actresses and the wives of several actors are to occupy a box with her screened off by curtains from the gaze of the male contingent on the lower tiers of seats. Two boxes to be occupied by women have already been arranged for and others will be constructed if there is a demand for them. The boxes will form a semi-circle back of the last row of seats for the men. They will be about 170 feet from the ring and the curtains to screen their occupants from the gaze of the crowd will not interfere with a good view of the fight. Being 170 feet from the ringside, the women spectators will be out of earshot of the exciting talk in and about the ring while the contest is on.

Two Jealous Wives

A story comes from Del Monte about two jealous wives. One lives here and the other in Alameda county. Their spouses have of late been making several visits to the hotel. A wealthy female guest there desired to confer with them about business. This guest, who has since departed for her home, is wealthy, handsome, up-to-date and really did have business with the two rich and prominent men. So a first trip to Del Monte to confer with the charming guest did not upset the equanimity of two loving, devoted wives. It is presumed a second trip did not cause the shadow of doubt to darken the cheerful domestic surroundings. With the third trip, it is said, came remonstrations, and the two better-halfs actually had a secret confab about the matter. In the meantime, gossip reached their ears, so it is alleged, that the long-distance telephone carried airy persiflage as well as dull commercial words between the richly gowned Del Montean and two business offices in San Francisco. With a fourth trip to the hotel, the wives insisted on going with hubbies. With great presence of mind, the latter betrayed no surprise or consternation when each saw who was with the other. The clever wives had no cause for surprise. It was their joint scheme. They remained with their husbands until the fair guest departed on her journey two days later. They even kissed her good-bye. San Franciscans at the hotel at the time seem to have the impression that those kisses really meant a glad good-bye.

Talk of Club Women

I have always had a curiosity to know what enthusiastic members of women's clubs and suffragists talked about when not on their particular hobby. So I asked Mrs. S———, who entertains considerably, in a quiet way if she knew. She said she did. Mrs. S——— is not a member of a woman's club, but believes in them. She also believes women should vote, or at least should be allowed to vote on matters of taxation and where schools and saloon licenses are involved.

"I had some women's club women, who are also believers in the suffrage for their sex, at luncheon with me the other day," said Mrs. S. "I remember one of my guests told how angry she was about her husband's action in selecting a place to live in for the summer over in Marin county. She said he selected a house on the edge of San Rafael and had paid a month's rent in advance before he had consulted with her. He came home in a very good humor about what he had done. She became cross and he demanded to know why she was in a bad humor. She told us at great length how she had replied to him with much feminine firmness, finally remarking to him: 'I am willing for your sake to live in a suburb of San Francisco, but I positively will not live in the suburb of a suburb. It is asking too much.'

"Another one informed us how at last she began to sympathize with her husband's aversion to evening dress. Hers was a long story, too, but to put it briefly she said in answer to our question, 'How so?' 'Why ever since these long-slashed tail coats have been in vogue I've never sat down comfortably, and I'll be mighty glad when their reign is over. You can't sit on them without making them look as if they had been slept on. George never hears a murmur out of me any more when he dons his dinner jacket on all occasions instead of his dress coat, and I suppose he wonders secretly what has come over me.'

"And so the talk ran on. I thought it very interesting. Don't you?"

Bogue to Go East

Virgil G. Bogue, the engineer who recently completed building the Western Pacific Railroad after about four years' work, with offices in this city, will in a few days return to New York to live. It is something out of the ordinary for any one man to spend in four years $63,000,000. That is what Bogue spent on the Western Pacific's construction. At one time during his building operations he had 10,000 men at work and excavated during some months more earth than was excavated for the same period on the Panama canal. He has made of the Western Pacific a notable engineering triumph in that it crosses the Sierra Nevada mountains at a grade in no place in excess of one per cent. That is the highest grade on any part of the road. To accomplish this task some remarkable tunnel and bridge work had to be done on the western slope of the Sierras. Bogue was for years the advising engineer for Jay Gould, so it is not cause for surprise that his son, George J. Gould, should have selected him to build his new line to Oakland and San Francisco. A very modest and reticent man is Bogue, a glutton for work, with a remarkable mastery of details. It was his daughter, Virgilia, who gained international fame as the queen of the Portola festival in this city in the fall of 1909. The daughter is now married to an Italian of title and is traveling at present in Egypt. Her novel, "The Strength to Yield," which was issued shortly after she was chosen the Portola queen because of her dark-eyed, stately beauty, was widely commented on.

Eastern Hotel Men Have Good Time.

The Eastern hotel men were given the time of their lives while in San Francisco and were particularly gratified at the way they were given attention by men like Governor Gillett, Mayor McCarthy, Colonel J. C. Kirkpatrick and James Woods of the St. Francis. One evening Governor Gillett remarked to a number of them that they may have taller buildings back East, but that they undoubtedly had heard taller stories since coming to California than ever before.

"Let me tell you something," replied Charles Parker, the Boston hotel boniface, to the Governor and the other three gentlemen mentioned, "I don't think any of you ever have seen a really crowded hotel. I remember in my early days as a young clerk in a Ohio town some big society was holding an annual meeting. People from all around flocked into the place. We were putting five or six people in every room and still there were many demands for cots. When the rush was at its height we got permission to stow away a limited number of guests in a Methodist church across the street. The cushioned pews and the windows for ventilation did not make it a half-bad place to sleep. A couple of drummers, regular customers, dropped along that night and were among the first to be assigned to the church. At midnight the whole town was aroused by the ringing of the church bell. There was no one to send over to see what was the matter, so I chased over. I encountered one of the drummers at the front door in his night shirt. He had met some friends among the convention delegates earlier in the evening and his eyes showed the effects.

"'What in thunder were you ringing that bell for?' I demanded, knowing that the hotel would be blamed the next day for the racket.

"'I just rang for a bell boy,' he calmly told me. 'Send over a couple of gin rickeys to pew seventeen.'"

Pearl Fishing.

Senor Rodriquez, who is a well-to-do Nicaraguan interested with some Mexicans in the pearl fishing industry in the Gulf of California, tells an interesting story of the success of that kind of business. At the St. Francis the other evening he was saying that there are three distinct kinds of pearls produced in the California gulf the most valuable, black pearls, ranging close to $300 per carat gold. The next in point of value are the white pearls, about $250 a carat, the price varying with the size and perfection of the gem. The yellowish pearl, although ranking third in value, is, as a rule, first in favor among the feminine admirers because of the brilliancy of the gems. Rodriguez says his pearl farm is the largest in the world, employing in the harvest season more than a thousand people. The best markets for the company's products are Paris, London and Berlin for the pearls and Hamburg and Bremen for the mother of pearl, which is exported in large quantities. Two years are required for the growth of an ordinary shell, which forms slowly in layers like an onion. After two years the shell loses its gem, and, unless opened at the proper time, there is nothing of value within.

Stanford Students' Affairs.

The repeated outbreaks among the students of Stanford University should, I think, be considered in the light of the fact that fully 800 of them live outside of the police jurisdiction of a municipality. This is a condition radically different from any other large university in the United States. Even at seats of learning where the town or city police have authority there are student riots, as witnessed some months ago at Ann Arbor, where students for certain reasons wrecked a building or two. They were arrested and punished by the town authorities. The police of Palo Alto have no authority to go out of the city limits and on to the Stanford campus, where 800 students live. Senator Stanford in creating his $30,000,000 institution desired to have all the students, if possible in time, to reside on the campus. In the light of passed events, some of the professors think this idea a mistaken one. They contend that if the faculty fails in moral suasion out of study hours with so large a number of young men, the members certainly cannot do police duty. According, there is a growing sentiment among the professors that most of the students should be forced to live in the town of Palo Alto. There is hardly any doubt, however, the campus. Whether the board of trustees, headed by Timothy Hopkins, will heed a suggestion of this character remains to be seen. It is hardly possible in the near future that any movement would succeed to place the college grounds within the town limits of Palo Alto. There is hardly any doubt, however, that one of these two courses will be followed some day. It is no doubt true that the average Stanford student is neither better nor worse than the university student elsewhere. He certainly is under less restraint and has shown it.

MANGLED BODIES TAKEN FROM MINE

The Rescue Parties Work Way Towards 2300-Foot Level of Palos Shaft.

PALOS, Ala., May 7.—Rescue parties in the ill-fated mine number three of the Palos Coal and Coke Company are today gradually working their way toward the 2300-foot level, where it is believed the largest number of bodies will be found. Thirty-four bodies have already been found in the mine, where between 100 and 150 lost their lives in Wednesday's explosion. All of the bodies are horribly mangled and can only be identified from brass checks which they carried in their pockets.

In several instances entire families were wiped out by the explosion. A miner named Pennington and his three sons are among the dead, while every male member of the Stinsberry family, four brothers, were killed.

Many women have not slept since the disaster and a few are still keeping their vigilant watching for news from the entombed. After vainly waiting for her son to be rescued, one woman has become insane.

Representatives of the Red Cross and other societies are on the scene and have taken steps for the relief of the families of the victims, some of whom are penniless.

Priest Lifted 80 Feet To Administer Rites

LOUISVILLE (Ky.), May 7.—While more than a thousand people looked on yesterday, some cheering and others kneeling in prayer, the Rev. Charles Raffo was lifted eighty feet through the air by means of rope ladders to the fifth floor of an incomplete elevator to administer the last rites of the church to Martin Wiggenton, who was dying on the concrete floor.

Wiggenton, a young ironworker, while on the eighth floor lost his balance and fell to the fifth floor. The alarm was given and a hook and ladder company responded. Wiggenton, realizing that he was dying, called for a priest. Father Raffo was found and hurried to the scene.

When it was seen that Wiggenton could not be gotten down alive the priest asked that he be raised to him.

WIRELESS TO RUN HARRIMAN TRAINS

Telefonken Will Be Used On Southern Pacific Lines, Is Report

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The Harriman lines, particularly the Union Pacific, have tentative plans for using wireless telegraphy for the movement of trains in addition to the use of the telegraph and telephone. With this object in view experiments are being made with the telefonken apparatus that is now used by the army signal corps at Fort Leavenworth and Fort Riley. This move will constitute the first adaptation of the wireless to the purposes of railroad operation in the United States. The number of stations has not been determined, but they will probably be placed 100 miles apart.

Three special trains of oranges from Southern California are now going East daily by way of Sacramento and Ogden. The cars number twenty to a train. At Sacramento carloads of cherries are being put into the trains for fast delivery to the Chicago market.

During the year 1909 the Tehuantepec, Panama and Cape Horn routes took away from the overland roads, among other things, shipments from the coast of 1000 cars of canned goods, [illegible]000 cars of dried fruits and 700 cars of wool. Ninety per cent of these 3700 cars of freight went by the Tehuantepec route and the other 10 per cent via the other two routes. The prospects of increased competition via Tehuantepec this year has alarmed railway chiefs like James J. Hill, E. P. Ripley and J. C. Stubbs.

No Danger Threatens in England.

We do not apprehend that any serious disturbance in British politics will follow the death of King Edward. The British Constitution is a flexible instrument, and it has withstood all sorts of strains. Feebleness, ignorance, brutality, debauchery and intolerant despotism on the throne have never been able to shake the foundations of the government of which it is the palladium, nor have they weakened the fundamentals which it embodies. Bad ministers, corrupt Parliaments and licensed graft in the public service have left the body politic sound at the core. They have passed with other evils, and the nation has progressed and liberty thriven, and today the British Empire, as a political institution, is on a firmer and more enduring basis than at any time in its history.

Political development in the British Isles cannot be seriously arrested by a change on the throne. There may be temporary confusion, and perhaps a momentary deflection in the march of progress but the advance will be continued all the same. George II was a contemptible person—a vulgar, ignorant libertine, destitute of statesmanlike qualities—but British power and prestige rose immensely during his reign, and British democracy impressed itself more than ever before on the political movements of the time. A sovereign with pothouse tastes, surrounded by snuff-taking mistresses and toad-eating courtiers, wore the crown while ministers governed by bribery, but the British nation went forward and British institutions developed nevertheless.

George III was a better man, a truer patriot and an abler ruler, than his grandfather, but he cherished reactionary views as to the relations of the crown and the commonality. He lost ground gained under his grandfather, and his reign closed gloriously triumphant over the fall of Napoleon only because his clouded reason give his subjects a free hand to control their own destiny.

The situation today is far less perplexing, far less complicated. Reform of the House of Lords is beset by fewer difficulties than the reform of the House of Commons—a reform that was agitated fifty years before it was accomplished. Perhaps it is not wise to go too fast. But in any event the people will have their way. The House of Lords will ultimately have to conform to their wishes, just as the crown was finally compelled to confess the authority of the masses. In England—more than in any other country—more, even than in the United States, is the consent of the governed an absolute essential to the exercise of the powers of government. Democracy there is too firmly established to be uprooted or thwarted by such transitory events as the death of one King and the accession of another.

The Bouncer After Boke.

The harrowing report comes from Berkeley that the State University is to lose its most humorous feature, the irrepressible George H. Boke, who has made the chair of jurisprudence at the State University a low comedy part. His peculiar ideas of the functions and theories of the law have provoked even more mirth among lawyers than the "Arizona Reports" and the anecdotes of the Green Bag. It is a pity to see him go from the University, but, then, the vaudeville circuit will gain a star; and after all, the place for farce comedy artists is on the stage.

It is stated that Boke will resign. This is incredible. He belongs to the barnacle species, and would never let go unless dislodged. If he is to leave the University it is because he has been taken out quietly and told to vamose the ranch, get out, peacefully if he would, but forcibly otherwise. Somebody in authority has discovered that there is a manifest incongruity in a clown teaching jurisprudence. Hence the elimination of Boke. However, some of the spice of life at the University will be gone when Boke returns to the use of the potato fork and the milking stool. As a law professor he was a wonder, but somehow he filled the rolé of instructor no better than the cap and bells of Touchstone fitted with the calling of shepherd.

It is said that Boke has found his labors as organizer of the "League of Justice," which is one of the adjuncts and agencies of administering the criminal law in San Francisco by private subsidy and by secret treaty between criminals, judges, special prosecutors and their employers, so onerous as to interfere with his duties as a law lecturer at Berkeley. It is stated that he has not appeared in the classroom for several months, being too busy reforming politics in San Francisco and overruling the appellate courts with moot decisions printed in a publication called "The Liberator." His most famous effort in this latter line was a brief reversing the Supreme Court of the State and voiding a statute of criminal law by citing a ruling of the English House of Lords in a civil action.

Lately Boke has been staying at Carmel-by-the-Sea, letting the breezes of the ocean cool his fevered brow and letting his great brain have a rest. His hard work has been confined to drawing his salary, and his mental efforts to ruminating on the futility of teaching law with the jawbone of an ass. But they are just completing a fine law building at Berkeley, and it has been decided that a half-witted person, however funny, is not exactly fitted for the duty of presiding over it and the classwork to which it is dedicated. That is probably the reason why Boke is to be bounced.

A Massachusetts man claims to have invented a smokeless locomotive. If he would really benefit mankind let him invent a smokeless chimney.

The tenor of the appeals of the clergy to Governor Gillett appears to be as follows: "If you can't find any law empowering you to stop the Johnson-Jeffries fight, go ahead and stop it, anyhow." But the Governor seems indisposed to act without legal authority. The fact that he is the head of the State government does not justify him, to his mind, in exercising unlawful powers to accomplish even a desirable object. Apparently a section of the clergy consider the law a small matter when it comes to dealing with what they consider an evil. Being militant preachers of righteousness they believe in using force unlawfully to prevent what they deem to be an unholy and degrading exhibition. But why is the projected bout between Johnson and Jeffries any worse than any other prizefight? The great notoriety given it does not alter its character, which is identical with that of hundreds of boxing contests in the recent past, in all parts of the State. If exhibitions of this class are to be suppressed the Legislature should be asked to pass a statute making them unlawful. It would then be unnecessary to raise a clamor about officials for declining to use arbitrary force without legal authority to prevent them. The clergy would do well to remember that ours is a government of law and not of pulpit dictation. No gathering of ministers can confer upon officials a warrant of authority which the Legislature has withheld, and while the clergy may be ethically right in protesting against a class of exhibitions which they are convinced are brutal and demoralizing, they are wrong in urging a resort to lawless violence to prevent them. A right thing should be done in the right way.

ODD CASES of COLOR BLINDNESS

Many children, says Dr. Eldredge-Green, find out that there is something wrong with their sight by not being able to find cherries or strawberries as quickly as their companions, or because they are not able to see holly berries on a tree.

Many color-blind persons are very expert in matching colors. In fact, I am informed that one large drapery establishment has on its staff a color-blind man whose especial employment is to match colors. I have examined many similar persons, who could match colors with very great accuracy.

This may appear very puzzling to the reader. It will seem extraordinary to him that a man who can match colors accurately will call a green light red. Persons of this kind have a very acute perception of shade, and sufficient color perception to prevent them from making mistakes in matching. They are, of course, very intelligent persons who are able to notice the very slight differences which they see between colors.

With one exception I have not found any particular class of individuals in whom color blindness is more frequent than in other classes. I have found more color blind persons among musicians than in any other class or profession.

Color blindness is usually congenital, and a particular variety may be caused by excessive smoking. The person afflicted with this variety may be able to pass the official tests with ease, because the central portion of the eye is the first to be affected. The reader can test for himself whether he be suffering from this particular form of color blindness by purchasing a small packet of the sweets called hundreds and thousands. These are small sweets about the size of a small shot of different colors. He will find that he is unable to pick out all the reds and all the greens when he looks directly at them, but will see the colors readily enough when he looks at them sideways.—May Strand.

Some Facts About Rubber

In 1903 india rubber sold for 88 cents a pound. Recent special cable dispatches to The Daily News told how London is going mad in gambling in stocks of rubber companies, the stuff itself having risen in price to $3.08 a pound. This increase gives additional interest to the processes of regeneration of waste rubber and of the manufacture of substitutes. The regeneration of vulcanized india rubber consists in removing the sulphur, which was added in the process of vulcanization.

The scrap rubber is assorted according to quality, and is treated either with sulphuric acid or with potash, for the purpose of destroying any fibers of cloth and of removing the greater part of the sulphur. The material is then ground and washed. This regenerated india rubber is used only as an addition, in small proportions, to new rubber.

Artificial or imitation rubber is made by methods which resemble the process of vulcanizing natural india rubber; for example, by treating linseed oil with sulphur or sulphur chloride.

The Quest for Beauty

(By MADAME MADELENE MAREE.)

Mrs. T.: The very best hair tonic that I know of is made by mixing half a pint of water with half a pint of alcohol then adding one ounce of beta-canthol. I am sure this will stop your hair falling out and promote its growth. You can get the beta-canthol from any druggist in one-ounce bottles, and this will make a full pint of hair tonic.

Miss L. M.: I wouldn't advise you to use the electric needle for removing superfluous hair unless you are sure the operator is an expert. You can easily remove the hairs yourself by mixing a little delol powder with enough warm water to make a paste. Smear over the hairs to be removed, leave on for a few minutes, then scrape off and the hairs will come off with the paste. You can get this delol from any first-class drug store.

Miss Jennie K.: Wrinkles are caused by an impoverished condition of the skin. The skin needs food as well as anything else. The best way to feed the skin is by massaging with a good cream. The very best I know of is made by heating a pint of water to boiling point, then add three ounces of cerol and stir constantly until cold. Massage morning and night with this and your wrinkles will soon disappear.

Anna H.: Those yellow spots on your face are probably caused by a bad stomach and inactive liver. Take a tablespoonful of olive oil every night and morning for three weeks, and have your druggist fill this prescription: Compound tincture of cinchona, one ounce; prosena compound, one ounce; sherry wine, half a pint. Take a teaspoonful before meals and at bed time. This will set your stomach right and the oil will start your liver to action.

Mrs. H. H.: I know just how you feel. There is nothing so uncomfortable as tired, aching, tender, sweaty feet. We don't give our feet the attention they need. I know if you will get an ounce bottle of boro lister from your druggist, dissolve this in one and a half pints of boiling water, then add half a pint of alcohol. Now every night put a couple of tablespoonfuls of this solution into a basin of water and bathe the feet; you'll be surprised at the instant relief you will get.

Mrs. A. F. B.: Do not use these so-called dry shampoos on your hair. They're usually made of strong alkalies that dry the hair out, making it brittle and lifeless. I never recommended anything but an egg for a shampoo. If you want a dry hair tonic you can make this by mixing two ounces of capthol with four ounces of powdered orris root; rub this well into the roots of the hair once a day until the hair stops falling and dandruff disappears.

Rose Bud: If you will get a package of amarol from your druggist, dissolve the contents in a pint of hot water, use on the hands and face after washing, and drying. I am sure you will not complain of red hands and face, as this lotion will keep them soft and white. You'll not need to use powder when you use this amarol lotion.

Mrs. Josie Mc.: There is only one way to get rid of the unsightly pimples, and that is through the blood. Get an ounce bottle of sarsene from your druggist. Dissolve half a pound of granulated sugar in enough water to make a pint, and add the sarsene. Take two teaspoonfuls three or four times a day, and you'll soon drive these impurities from your blood.

W. K.: I do not know of anything to suit your case and would advise you to consult a good physician.

Mrs. C. S.: The Vaucaire treatment is very highly recommended for developing the bust, but I understand that the ready-made kinds do not give very good satisfaction. This is probably due to the fact that cheap drugs are used in the manufacture. If you will make a pint of sugar syrup—then get one ounce of gallol from your druggist, add it to the syrup and take one or two teaspoonfuls three or four times a day and drink plenty of water, you will get wonderful results. It usually takes several months for a complete treatment, so do not be discouraged at first. The true gallol comes in one-ounce bottles only. It is quite expensive, but an ounce makes a pint of remedy, which will last for a month.

Mamie W.: Borothol solution is the best preparation I know of for eczema. It is made by dissolving two ounces of borothol in a pint of hot water. Add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. When cold apply on cotton, three or four times a day.

INCENDIARY BLAZE BURNS MYSTERY OF ZIELENZIG

After Six Years Murder Is Revealed on Farm in German Province.

VETERAN OF 72 YEARS VANISHES IN A DAY

Witness Who Knew of Killing Almost Loses Life When House Is Set.

(By STEVEN BURNETT.)

BERLIN, May 7.—Those who believe in the esoteric powers of numbers, and specially of "3" and its multiples, will find confirmation for their theories in the clearing up after exactly six years today of a mystery which first preoccupied the little Brandenburg township of Zielenzig in May, 1904. On the outskirts of this place, which lies somewhat to the east of Frankfort-on-the-Oder, a married couple named Kramm farmed a small holding, which they had inherited on the condition that they afforded a home to the wife's uncle, Ferdinand Fabian, a veteran of 72 years. A friend of the old man's named Hermann also boarded with the family.

FABIAN VANISHES.

On the date mentioned Fabian vanished, and he was never seen again. The neighbors naturally sought for circumstances which would account for his disappearance, and a certain amount of suspicion fell upon the Kramms. It was recalled that latterly differences had sprung up between them and Fabian and that the latter had given notice of foreclosure of a small mortgage which he had on the farm. The inference that the old man had been made away with by his nephew and niece was generally drawn in the immediate vicinity, but the authorities found no reason to interfere, and gradually the mystery lost its interest and was almost forgotten.

This year the interval would have elapsed, after which the law would have admitted presumption of Fabian's death, and last January the Kramm house was burnt to the ground. The circumstances of the fire were such that Hermann was with difficulty rescued from the flames, and actually sustained burns of so serious a nature that weeks elapsed before he could leave his bed.

INCENDARISM CHARGED.

Whispers of incendiarism were now rife and a gendarme was sent to investigate the matter. He had a long talk with Hermann, who appears to be a person of restricted intelligence, and at last dragged from him the theory that the Kramms had set fire to the house in order to get rid of him as a possible witness against them in connection with the disappearance of Fabian.

Asked why he had never mentioned his doubts on this matter before, he replied that he had no definite proofs, but under cross-examination he revealed several important bits of evidence, and he finally led the gendarme to a point in a field a hundred yards from the house, where, he said, he had noticed the day after Fabian's disappearance that the earth had been freshly disturbed and marked with what he believed to be blood stains. Sure enough, when the ground was dug up a sack was found containing the skeleton of the missing man. The Kramms, who are momentarily expecting the birth of their eighth child, have been arrested.

J. K. Stewart's Yacht After 5000-mile Trip

CHICAGO, May 7.—John K. Stewart's 78-foot gasoline yacht Igloo has anchored at the home port in front of the Columbia Yacht Club in Chicago harbor, after a trip of over 5000 miles. She was built in Bayonne, N. J., and taken direct from the shipyards down the Atlantic coast, around Key West into the Gulf of Mexico, and, after an extended cruise in the South, came up the Mississippi and through the drainage canal to Lake Michigan.

Dr. Pratt is now and always has been surgeon-in-chief of the Dr. Pratt Dermatological Institutions. Do not be misled by misrepresentations. Remember—that when it comes to anything so important as your face that you cannot afford to take chances on cheap or unscrupulous operators, especially of the fly-by-night class. Your judgment will tell you that if a person was capable and what he ought to be he would not have to move from place to place endeavoring to live off the reputation of some one else.

Owing to Dr. Pratt's remarkable success, it has become necessary on several occasions to warn the Public against this class of individuals, who usually know very little more than how to copy another person's circulars, public announcements or advertisements, and hope with that and a brazen front to hoodwink unsuspecting persons out of their money, always UNDER THE GUISE OF SOMEBODY ELSE'S REPUTATION, usually claiming to have come from Europe (?) or some other remote part of the earth, NEVER from anywhere tangible. We say to you frankly, if you have a correction to be made, an improvement to be accomplished or a blemish to be removed, it would be better to write to Dr. Pratt direct or wait until you can come and receive his personal, professional services.

The Dr. Pratt Dermatological Institutes are the largest in existence; honorable dealing has marked every step in Dr. Pratt's success. His treatments are sent to all parts of the world, consequently it is a great temptation for unscrupulous persons to endeavor to trade on his reputation. But, remember any one doing such a thing, [illegible] himself and his motives. We say in conclusion, whatever professional service you wish to have accomplished, have it done right or not at all. It is the only safe way, and it will pay you in the long run.

UNCLE SAM LEADS HIS COMPETITORS

Repid Development of Manufacturing Industry Greater in This Country.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—In the rapid development of the world's manufacturing industries the United States it leading her three principal competitors—Great Britain, France and Germany. This is evidenced, according to the calculations of the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor, by the immense increase in importations of raw materials and the growth of the exports of finished products. Trade in that direction now comprises more than 78 per cent of all the foreign commerce of the United States, and during the nine months ended in March, aggregated more than a billion dollars.

During that time more than half a billion dollars worth of raw materials were taken in to be finished into manufactured products and consumed at home or shipped abroad. In the same time the United States furnished the three other great manufacturing nations of the world—the United Kingdom, Germany and France—with nearly a half billion dollars worth of raw materials from its mines and fields. Thus it is evident that the industries of the United States not only draw materials from the world and turn them into finished products, but furnish the raw materials as well for others to do so.

Native of Posen Joins Army of the Enemy

PARIS, May 7.—An extraordinary story is related of a German who is alleged to have been actually serving for some time in a French infantry regiment quartered in a provincial town. A few months ago he appeared at the barracks, saying that he was living with his parents in Saxony, and had come for the usual term of service with the colors. The papers which he produced were quite correct, and he did his work so well that he was proposed for promotion to the rank of corporal.

When he heard of this idea the man sought an interview with his captain, and explained that he was a native of Posen and had arrived with the papers to replace their real owner, who had promised to relieve him in a few weeks. As, however, his friend had not kept his word, in spite of the repeated remonstrances which he had sent him by post, he decided on making a clean breast of it, the more so as he had had enough of service in the French army. Of what the captain or the colonel had to say to this queer trick, however, is not added.

Tramp Hacks Woman Who Refuses Money

SANTA BARBARA, May 7.—Deputy sheriffs are out hunting today for a tramp who attacked Mrs. J. H. Weston, wife of a Lompoc merchant, and hacked her about the head and face with a knife when she refused to give him money. Mrs. Weston fought the tramp until blinded by blood she agreed to go to her room and get some money. After wiping the blood from her eyes she procured a revolver and chased the tramp away. After the intruder had fled Mrs. Weston collapsed and was found unconscious by her husband on his return from the store.

Strike May Involve 7000 Italian Laborers

PROVIDENCE, R. I. May 7.—A sympathetic strike to aid the 1600 Italian building laborers now out has been voted by practically all of the 6000 or 7000 union men engaged in construction work here. It is expected that the strike will be short lived, as the two largest contractors involved in the dispute have agreed to grant the demands.

PATTEN WILLING TO SHOW BOOKS

Cotton Operator Courts Federal Investigation, He Tells Public.

CHICAGO, May 7.—James A. Patten says he is not averse to a federal inquiry into his recent cotton operation. He wired instructions to his New York brokers yesterday directing them to throw open their books and show all details of his transactions to the government investigators.

"I have not received any subpoena yet and do not know whether I will be called first to testify in regard to the cotton market," said Mr. Patten, "but I am perfectly willing to tell all I know. More than that, I have directed my New York brokers to turn their books wide open for the benefit of the government investigators.

"Since the middle of April all the accounts which formerly had been carried in the name of our firm have been transferred to my individual account so there will be no trouble whatever in finding out just what my operations have been.

"What I am especially interested in is the question whether I am within my rights when I buy cotton or wheat or corn and have it delivered to me, pay for it and proceed to merchandise it. If this is not legal then the whole system must be at fault."

Loses Sense of Gravity Man Stands on Head

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—Don Patterson, for many years a circus performer, has been subjected to the ball and chain treatment at the county jail in order to prevent him spending his leisure moments standing on his head. He was found in an inverted position the other day and it amused the attendants, but when he was repeatedly thus found the man was called to the attention of a physician who found that Patterson had lost his sense of gravity. Patterson insists that he is not insane but simply wishes to keep in training.

HALLEY'S IN NEED OF CHASTISEMENT

Contributor Declares the Comet Needs Looking After, Others Were Larger.

Editor TRIBUNE:

What is the matter with Halley's comet? During the 2000 years through which we are able to trace its movement it has at its reappearances spread consternation over the people of the earth on many occasions when its prodigious spectre extended across the sky. But now, after all that has been said and written concerning its present visit, after we have been taught to expect a great celestial phenomenon, we are to put up with the miserable little switch that can be seen only between 3:30 and 4 a. m. when the sky is clear. The great comet of 1843, which modestly refused for a time to let its nucleus be seen but which extended its tail almost from horizon to horizon, would have made five hundred of these little Halley comets, and Donati's great comet of 1858 would have made a thousand.

ANOTHER BIG ONE

The big comet of 1861 a few minutes after the earth passed through its tail covered about one tenth of the northern sky while its tail extended far south of the zenith. Even the vagrant 1910 comet which appeared a couple of months ago cast the Halley comet into the shade.

It might be well for some astronomer through a spiritual medium to open communication with old Dr. Halley and to as gently as possible inform him that his comet needs looking after. One thing I can say for the comet: it is going some. One has to look for it in a new place every morning. If it should turn out that the celestial visitor during the engagement may yet become a great flaming torch in the sky the writer will have to make humble apologies to Dr. Halley and also to his comet. Yours truly,

A. BURNTRAGER.

Cornerstone Laying Again Put Forward

When asked if he would make a statement as to the probable date on which the corner stone of the new city hall would be laid Mayor Mott said today:

"I previously declared that I thought we would be able to lay the corner stone of the new building on July 4, and later I changed this date in my figuring to Admission Day, September 9. I am now somewhat skeptical of this date. In fact I cannot see that we could possibly get that far along by September 9. The architect will not be selected before July 1 and it will take him two months at the least to draw up his plans. This would bring us to September 1 and we will then have to advertise for bids. The corner stone laying will have to occur in the latter part of this year or the first of the next."

Seidel Seeks Officer Worthy of Trust

CHICAGO, May 7.—Mayor Seidel, Socialist executive of Milwaukee, has come to Chicago to look for a health commissioner.

The position pays $5000 a year and he has offered it to Dr. Charles B. Ball, chief sanitary inspector of Chicago, who draws a salary of $2000 a year.

Dr. Ball announced yesterday he would accept the offer unless the Chicago City Council raises his salary immediately.

Valley Crest Gardens

The New Suburban Acreage—Valley Crest Gardens—are selling rapidly. The fact that the owner himself is reserving two parcels of land on this tract for his summer home has attracted the best class of people, including professional and substantial business men from San Francisco and Oakland, expert horticulturists and practical poultrymen, many of whom have either already built homes and are now living on the property or are now constructing homes, barns, poultry houses, some planting fruit, vegetables, berries, and in many other ways making immediate permanent improvements. Aside from the great income value of the land it has an attractive speculative value by reason of the contemplated extensions of the Southern Pacific and Key Route system, the latter of which will probably be built right through the center of the property, while the former now building will probably pass within 1500 feet.

Many of the readers of THE TRIBUNE are undoubtedly well acquainted with the whole Hayward section and know of its fine climate, productive soil and scenic beauties. Valley Crest Gardens while enjoying all these advantages to the fullest still has the additional feature of lying but one and one half miles from the city limits of Oakland, therefore enjoying rapid transit facilities even at the present time.

Week's Work in Oil Fields Shows Wealth of Industry

RIVAL TO STANDARD ENTERS MIDWAY FIELD

Cincinnati Corporation Will Compete in State for Oil Trade.

INDICATIONS ARE FOR A BIG FIGHT

Indian Company Has Millions to Back Up Its Extensive Operations.

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—The Indian Oil Refining Company of Cincinnati, the most powerful and aggressive rival of the Standard Oil in the Middle West, which but a few days ago forced an entrance into the Southern field by taking over the Record Oil Company of New Orleans, has concluded negotiations by which it will enter the Midway field. Details of the deal are not given out, but it is known that the Indian Company has secured a strong hold and will develop on a tremendous scale. It is to do a large manufacturing and export business with its own crude output.

Well informed oil men say this means the biggest trade fight of the kind ever seen in the West and extending to every inch of territory now controlled by the Standard, because the Indian, which has combatted the Rockefeller interests for years, has abundant capital and facilities.

EAGLE WELL JOINS IN GUSHER GROUP

Managers Will Not Permit the Exhaustion by Continuous Flow.

BAKERSFIELD, May 7.—The Eagle Creek Oil Company perforated its well No. 3, the one that recently joined the gusher group in North Midway, and threw a stream of oil that put the Santa Fe's big flowing well on section 6, 32-23, out of business for a few hours. The well, which is close to the south line of section 31, 31-23, entered the sand at 1430 feet and is now down 1572 feet, having been in sand or oil bearing shale the [illegible] between these two levels. Captain Scofield, who is managing the property, has kept his well loaded with water to prevent any further flow, as he will not let it flow now. He is getting ready to put in tubing and pump.

"I don't care for these spasmodic gushers," he says. "I would rather have a well that pumps regularly every day."

Accordingly, whatever oil the new well makes will be made to come up through the tubing.

The Eagle Creek last month shipped 184 worth of oil from its well No. 2 in addition to what was used on the lease and sold to neighboring companies.

The Pioneer Midway's well blew out for about three hours and sanded up a few days ago.

MIDWAY'S FLOW SHOWS INCREASE

Company Makes First Delivery of 2000 Barrels to Standard Oil Company.

COALINGA, May 7.—The California View's Monday made its first delivery of 2000 barrels of oil to the Standard Oil company, and with the increased flow of its well, which is in operation, expects to continue disposing of its output regularly. This is the report brought back by W. H. Jergins, treasurer of the California Midway, who returned yesterday from a trip of inspection to the property in the Midway field.

The drilling tube in the California Midway well No. 1 was lowered sixty feet Monday, thus bringing it within four feet of the shale rock bridge at the bottom of the casing. The flow increased from 1500 barrels a day to 3000 barrels, and the theory of the superintendent, H. T. Stevens, is that the result will be the washing away of this bridge and a doubling of the flow from its present proportions to at least 3000 barrels.

Work is progressing rapidly on well No. 2, in which 16[illegible] feet of California special casing already has been sunk, the deepest point ever reached with this casing. It is the plan to carry the well down far enough with the eight-inch casing to [illegible]. It is believed this will be possible. Well No. 3 is down [illegible] feet with sixteen inch stove pipe and the rig for No. 4 is on the ground. Drilling on the latter will begin this week.

Mr. Jergins was accompanied by Benjamin Kingsbaker, H. A. Cole, W. A. Poole, D. C. Sullivan and Dr. A. R. McCloud.

Oil Well Expert to Exploit Humboldt

EUREKA, May 6.—J. F. Klingler, the Pennsylvania oil expert, has been telegraphed to come at once to take charge of well drilling operations in the Mattole district of this county for the Mattole Development Company.

Mr. Klingler was here about ten years ago, at which time he drilled what is known as the "old Humboldt well," going down 2000 feet in four months and striking oil, although not in sufficient quantities to be paying. The well is near Petrolia.

There was every prospect at that time that the oil fields of this county would be developed, and that those interested would reap a rich harvest, but for a variety of reasons operations were finally abandoned and Klingler departed for the East again.

$500,000 REFUSED FOR UNITED OIL HOLDINGS

Section Six, North Midway, Will Not Be Sold by Company.

DIVIDEND WILL BE RESULT, IS REPORT

1500 Barrels Daily Is Output of Six-Months-Old Corporation.

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—The United Oil Company has refused an offer of $500,000 for its holdings in section 6, North Midway, including four producing wells and $100,000 worth of improvements, according to a statement confirmed at the company's office in the Citizens National Bank building.

In the six months the company has been in existence it has spent in development work more than $250,000, and the production is now sufficient to pay a dividend of 1 per cent a share a month, beginning with June, being equal to 12 per cent a year on the par value of the stock, with the prospects that with the bringing in of additional wells the dividends will be increased.

JUST SIX MONTHS OLD

The United Oil Company was incorporated November 19, 1909, under the laws of California, with a capitalization of $2,000,000. It was financed by the Whittier Campbell Company, 628-29-30 Citizens National Bank building, and was financed almost entirely in Los Angeles, among its stockholders being bankers, merchants, brokers and all classes of business men.

In the brief period of six months the United Oil Company has forced itself to the head of the line of development and has four wells completed and has a production of more than any company in the North Midway field outside the American Oilfields Company, Standard Oil Company and the Union Oil Company.

Considering the short time that this company has been operating and the difficulty all the companies encounter in the North Midway field in handling the sand, the record made by the United is nothing short of marvelous.

According to Secretary Hedrick, the United Oil Company has increased its holdings since being organized and has acquired over $100,000 worth of absolutely proven territory. This land was all obtained before the Lake View, Pioneer Midway, Mays or the Eagle Oil Companies brought in their gushers.

This land was bought at the advice of F. Whittier at a price less than one-third of its present value.

BIG TASK ACCOMPLISHED

Well No. 1 on United property No. 1, which was sub-leased to a syndicate of bankers of Iowa, is now down 890 feet.

Well No. [illegible] on property No. 2, water was shut off April 10 and May 10 operations will be resumed. From all that can be learned an excellent showing was obtained before the water was shut off. It is the opinion of the directors and general manager of the United that a good well will be brought in on this property the first of June.

Lumber and material for No. 1 well on property No. 3 is now on the ground and as quickly as the rigs can be completed drilling will start.

The following report from the superintendent, H. B. Seifert, of property No. 4, was received yesterday. This is the property that the United Oil Company refused $500,000 for last Thursday night:

Well No. 1 is flowing very steadily and is making 700 barrels a day.

Well No. 2 is also flowing steadily and is making about 700 barrels a day.

Well No. 3 is pumping better than 100 barrels a day.

No. [illegible] well on property No. 4 was the well decided upon to make a test and to deepen in an endeavor to secure the large sand in which the Mays, Pioneer Midway, Santa Fe on section [illegible] and the Lake View gusher have all struck such a tremendous volume of oil. This well is located in the center of the property, and it is the firm belief of Mr. Whittier that by drilling this well to a depth of from 1900 to 2000 feet a very large sand will be encountered. This well is now 141 feet deep.

No. 6 well is now 1360 feet deep and has an excellent showing of light oil.

No. [illegible] well was 60 feet deep at 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

No. 7 well is being rigged up and will be drilling in a few days.

WELL RIGGED UP

No. 8 well is being rigged up and will be drilling in a few days, and the rig builders are now building the derrick for No. 9 well on the property.

On property No. 5 the lumber and material is on the ground for two rigs, and as quickly as derricks can be built and machinery rigged up these wells will be started.

No. 1 well on property No. 6 will spud in within the next four or five days and lumber is now on the ground and no time is being lost in getting these rigs built, so actual drilling can be started.

Past accomplishments furnish proof that the United Oil Company was organized to produce oil and pay dividends, and the first is scheduled to begin next month.

The officers of the company are: C. F. Whittier, president; L. D. Morrison, vice president; J. B. Hedrick, secretary, and [illegible] F. Campbell, treasurer. Directors are also A. F. Andres, J. S. Valac[illegible] and F. I. Plummer.

The Midway Central Oil Company is another promotion of the Whittier-Campbell Company, and on April 30 the directors of this company declared a dividend of one half cent a share to be paid May 25.

The directors of the Midway Central Oil Company are the same men as that of the United Oil Company.

OIL NOTES

The British Consolidated, 12-20-14 (P. M. D. & O.), is building a rig on No. 9 and expects to bring in No. 8 within four days.

The Pacific States on 6-21-15 has drilled into the oil sand to a depth of between 30 and 40 feet. It will probably be put on the pump and given another test tomorrow.

The No. 1 gusher of the Mohawk is doing about 12[illegible] barrels a day. No. 2 is [illegible]00 feet deep in 5½-inch casing and No. 3 will be spudded in today. The company will run two strings of tools on the property.

The De Luxe well No. 1 in section 6, Coalinga, pumped 365 barrels of oil one day last week, an amount rather large and therefore encouraging for this section. The Aladdin in section 6 and other companies there are hoping that their wells will be doing equally as much oil when permanently placed on the pump.

The report that the Standard had brought in another gusher on section 20, 32-24, and that the oil was spouting over the derrick, turned out to have no foundation.

The Standard is pulling the 6⅝-inch casing in well No. 6 on section 30 and will carry down the 8¼ and cement off the water. The well is approximately [illegible]00 feet deep now, and the gusher sand probably will be reached in another 500 feet. Well No. [illegible] is doing about 10,000 barrels a day at present. No. 3 is flowing 5000 barrels and No. 2 somewhere between 2500 and 3000 barrels.

OUTPUT OF GUSHER CONTINUES TO INCREASE

Production by Actual Measurement Reached 60,000 Barrels One Day.

LARGE WELL SPOUTS HIGH INTO THE AIR

Records Broken by Flow of the Union Company's Great Strike.

COALINGA, May 7.—According to information from a high Union official, the Lakeview gusher on Monday spouted 60,000 barrels by actual measurement.

It is reported this was shown by accurate measurement. This amount of oil at 65 cents a barrel is worth $39,000.

This is the highest estimate of the Lakeview's daily production yet given. It is not incredible, although conservative estimates by well informed oil men place the daily production at not over 40,000 barrels. However, the estimate of 60,000 barrels, it is learned, comes from a source that can not be denied.

SAGE WELL SPOUTS

For over an hour Sunday the Sage well No. 6, one-quarter of a mile south and a little west of the mammoth Lakeview gusher, spouted oil at a fearful rate. Those who saw the well assert it was thrown 250 feet in the air. The gusher, however, subsided after an hour and twenty minutes work and sanded up. The oil was of a high gravity and was reached at 1080 feet depth.

It is asserted that this short lived gusher proves that the Lakeview, which is down over 200 feet, is not draining the territory surrounding it.

The Sage well is on section 36, while the Lakeview is on fractional 25. The Sage is about 125 feet lower, taking the elevation from the surface, than the Lakeview.

The Sage No. 6, it is said, produced 150 barrels before being redrilled. It is leased for a royalty to the Union.

MIDWAY PREMIER PLANS NEW WORK

Developments in Vicinity Make Company's Location More Valuable.

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—F. N. Smith, vice president of the Midway Premier Oil Company, Story building, reports upon progress at the property in North Midway as follows:

"We have engaged William Russell as superintendent on our lease. He is a very experienced man, having originally drilled in Eastern fields, Kern, Coalinga, Santa Maria and the Midway, and has been very successful, and brought in the famous Palmer gusher in Santa Maria.

"The Hale McLeod well on 6, just west of the St. Lawrence, is now down 700 feet and with 10 1-2 inch casing should bring in a big well within the [illegible] weeks. When we consider that the St. Lawrence is only a 4-inch string in [illegible] feet you see the chances are Hale McLeod will bring in a full well fully as large as the Santa Fe or any of the United or Eagle Creek gushers.

"Scarcely a day goes by but some new development in our immediate vicinity makes our location look better and better. One of the new wells on the Eagle Creek gushed the Sunday before last at the rate of 20,000 barrels and then sanded up. They are trying to get down 100 feet further so as to prevent the sanding up and then it will flow steadily as the Santa Fe on 6 has done since last November. The Santa Fe has also brought in another big well adjoining the famous one, as has also the United and the American Oil Field Limited, as four new wells on section 6.

"The Alaska Pioneers has finished the derrick which lies just north of the K. T. O., so the K. T. O. is [illegible] the northwest [illegible] putting up a derrick in the [illegible] corner of 6. The Midway [illegible] has started to drill on well No. 1 and is at work finishing its No. 2 and buildings and tanks.

"On our property the derricks will be finished Saturday. The [illegible] horse power boiler is being set up, orders for casing, tanks and a hundred and one things having kept us busy.

"Let a couple of weeks go by and you won't know the district at all."

TITLE TO OIL LAND ISSUE OF TRIAL

Contest Between Companies for Right to the Big Holdings.

BAKERSFIELD, May 7.—Possession of an oil claim worth $100,000 is at issue in a case before Judge Bennett of the Superior Court. Suit was brought by the Bay City Oil Company against the Equitable Petroleum Company, V. P. Cunningham, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway, the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company and others to establish the ownership of the northwest quarter of section 14-32-25, and the matter today took the form of a petition of the Day City Company for an order of court compelling the defendants to show cause why a restraining order preventing them from working the claim should not issue. This has been submitted and Judge Bennett's decision may be expected in a few days.

The plaintiff company alleges that on January 2d of this year it had completed a well 2500 feet deep and discovered oil in paying quantities. At this time the defendant companies entered drilling and still are continuing to do so.

Counsel in the case are Woodruff & McClure for the plaintiffs and Gray, Barker & Bowen for the defendants. A stack of affidavits were submitted. Those favorable to the plaintiff were made by T. M. Jones, John Collins, C. V. Scott, J. V. Hutchins, J. H. Carnett, R. W. Kasform, C. W. McLaughlin, J. B. Gordon, M. P. Wate, H. R. Berry, L. A. Ross, W. H. Henmage, G. A. Hutchins, C. C. Cobb and H. B. Canfield. For the defendants there were submitted affidavits of R. E. Stevens, James Shultz and David J. Ftoh[illegible]le.

Midway Maricopa Gets Experienced Manager

COALINGA, May 7.—The members of the Midway Maricopa Crude Oil company have secured J. C. Knapp for their superintendent. Mr. Knapp is one of the most experienced and capable men in the oil fields, and is planning to sink a well on the company's holding in section 34 in record time. Material for the derrick and rig is already on the ground.

'BIG STICK PEACE' ASKED FOR BY ROOSEVELT

Stead Criticizes Nobel Prize Oration, "Disappointing" Is His Comment

"BEHIND THE TIMES AND COMMONPLACE"

Taft Has Gone Forward, Ex-President Has Stood Still, He Says

(By WILLIAM T. STEAD.)

LONDON, May [illegible]—Theodore Roosevelt's Nobel prize oration is somewhat disappointing. What there is in it that is true is not new. What is new is not exactly in accordance with facts. Current report says that Mr Roosevelt finished the romanes lecture which he is about to deliver at Oxford before he quitted the White House. It would almost seem as if his Nobel prize oration had been composed at the same time. It affords no evidence of any effort to master the latter stages of the evolution of the world.

In a word it is somewhat commonplace. It can hardly be regarded as a serious contribution bearing on the situation of the problem with which it deals. What it says about arbitration and treaties shows that Roosevelt is not abreast of Mr Taft. The President in his memorable speech in New York declared emphatically in favor of eliminating the most mischievous clause which declares that questions of national honor are excluded from arbitration.

NATIONAL HONOR

Mr Taft thinks the questions of national honor ought to go to arbitration. Mr Roosevelt insists that safeguards must be taken against referring such questions to arbitration.

Taft has gone forward. Roosevelt has stood still.

His recommendations to the nations of Asia, Europe and America for an international court of arbitration and justice upon the lines of the Supreme Court of the United States were but an echo of the American delegates at The Hague. But as far as I can perceive from the telegraphic reports Mr Roosevelt expressed no opinion upon Secretary Knox's suggestion that the international prize court should be used as a general court of arbitration. Neither does he say anything upon the recent discussion to found one for exclusively American disputes.

DEPARTS FROM TRADITION

It is not until we come to the third suggestion that we find any departure from the traditional line of American policy. Something should be done, he tells us, as soon as possible to check the growths of armaments, especially naval armaments, by international agreements, but when the American delegates headed by Choate carried out Roosevelt's instructions at the last Hague conference they not merely did nothing to bring about this object but they took an active though unwilling part in preventing any real discussion of the question.

It was understood that Roosevelt then despaired of bringing about any international understanding on armaments. His own plan was to lay down a maximum size for individual battleships beyond which no power should be allowed to go. No other powers would agree to this and it was not put forward for discussion. England alone of the great powers tried in feeble fashion to bring about an arrest of the growth of armament.

NOTHING TO STIFFEN

Roosevelt did nothing to stiffen the resolution. [illegible] Roosevelt has repented. If so we will wait for more practical proof of penitence than this expression of a pious hope that the powers as soon as possible may do something which when he was in power they did not try to do.

Mr Roosevelt's fourth suggestion is distinctly of the big stick order. He would regard it as a master stroke if the great powers honestly bent on peace would form a league of peace to prevent by force [illegible] breach of peace. A master stroke [illegible]

Every great power believes it is honestly bent o[illegible]

Frank Perry, 1023 York street, who reported the disappearance of the woman, told the police that he feared some mishap or that she may have been made the victim of foul play.

When last seen the woman wore a black hat trimmed with a black feather.

Description? There's the rub. Type has no shimmer, no sparkle, no beauty. It would be almost as difficult to paint the glorious colors of a California sunset in black and white as describe the charms of Arabian Silk with printers' ink. Here is the best we can do:

It is a soft clinging brilliant silk with self colored embroidered dots. For street wear it is cheery, light, airy—ideal. The evening colors—delicate and exquisite—can be developed into dreams of dresses and waists. PARISIAN CHARGES ROOSEVELT WITH PLAIGERISM

Asserts Former President Stole Philosophy From Rostand, Idealistic French Poet.

"CHANTECLER" WISDOM IN SARBONNE SPEECH

M. Bourdon Seeks Initiation Into Mysteries of Mighty Hunter's "Bad Club."

PARIS, May 7.—George Bourdon, a well known writer, is a candidate for President Roosevelt's "bad club." M. Bourdon intimates in an article just printed that Mr. Roosevelt is a [illegible] student of Rostand's "Chantecler," and employs the deadly parallel to show the similarity between sentiments between Mr. Roosevelt and those of Chantecler. M. Bourdon airs his views in a letter which he pretends Rostand received recently.

The letter begins by praising Mr. Roosevelt's principles as enunciated in his speech at Sorbonne. The writer, Bourdon, of course, says he heard the speech and afterward had it translated into French.

It struck him as most familiar and he tried to remember where he had heard such sentiments expressed. Of a sudden he recalls "Chantecler." He goes on to compare and quote expressions from "Chantecler" and for Roosevelt's speech concerning [illegible] duty [illegible] humanity, the significance of [illegible] the necessity of action, the evil of idleness.

"DEADLY PARALLEL."

Then some cynical rallier, which Mr. Roosevelt uttered, finds its counterpart in speeches by the rooster and other of Rostand's feathered characters.

For example, Mr. Roosevelt said in effect:

"Credit belongs to the man who goes into the fight, whose face is soiled with dust and sweat and blood, who fights valiantly, who if he falls at least falls after splendid effort."

The Chantecler declares:

"I am the earth and labor; my comb is made in the design of the fire of the forge. Each one should do all he can, even those in the humblest ranks. It is effort to render sacred the lowliest thing. Effort is the duty of us all and is an example to us all."

Bourdon compares many passages. He quotes [illegible] in his scene with the [illegible] to show the cock's disdain for fault finders, and he [illegible] his words [illegible] blackbird denouncing cynicism.

Bourdon declares that it is remarkable that a man [illegible] Mr. Roosevelt should voice in the jungle while resting from the chase of wild beasts precisely the same lofty sentiments as the most idealistic of modern poets, whose life is given to reflection and study to the exclusion of all action except literary effort.

OAKLAND FORGER JAILED IN SOUTH

AMERICAN HEIRESSES BOYCOTT POOR NOBLES WITH TITLES TO SELL

Fond Mothers Also Enter Combine to Stop Young Millionaires Marrying Chorus Girls After Wine Suppers

(BY MARGARET WATTS DE PYSTER)

NEW YORK, May 7.—Prince Francesco [illegible], son of Queen Maria Christina of Spain, self confessed fortune hunter, who has come to America in search of a rich wife, will be met with a frosty reception, as has been made evident by the action of three of America's richest heiresses in choosing husbands on this side of the water.

And that is not all. The mothers of a number of well known American heiresses and some of the heiresses themselves have formed a compact, the object of which is to give the cold shoulder to penniless foreign noblemen.

The Colonial Club, the most exclusive woman's club in America, has been the [illegible] of much gossip in the past few days over the understanding reached by which American girls will be persuaded to take American husbands instead of titles.

DREXELS SET EXAMPLE

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Gould to Anthony J. Drexel Jr. caused a little [illegible] aristocratic eyebrows, but at that time the club for the advancement of American husbands had not been perfected. The Gould-Drexel marriage was [illegible] responsible for it. Next came the announcement of the engagement of Miss [illegible] Townsend to Peter [illegible] and in view of the fact that Miss Townsend had been courted by a score of titled foreigners, it began to be believed that titles were below par. It came as the first step in the formation of this society and now comes the engagement of Miss Mary Harriman to C. C. Rumsey of Buffalo.

Miss Harriman, Miss Townsend and Miss Gould constituted a trio of the richest and most beautiful girls in American society.

Such women as Miss E. H. Harriman, Miss Helen Gould and Miss Anne Morgan are the prime movers in the Colonial Club organization which has for its primal object the urging of American husbands for American girls.

NO REAL CLUB EXISTS

Of course it must be understood that this [illegible] is not an organization drawn up with a charter and bylaws and officers and all that sort of thing. It is a mutual understanding and a sympathetic bond by which girls will be advised—that is, rich girls—to accept the hands and fortunes of American men.

If these altruistic women should have their way the time would soon be here when young American millionaires would quit marrying chorus girls after wine suppers and young American heiresses would cease marrying foreign titles in consideration for a sum sufficient to pay the nobleman's obligations.

Among the women said to be interested [illegible] one can [illegible] found who will [illegible] that the organization is a [illegible] but it is rumored another engagement will be announced [illegible] two more American heiresses.

At the Colonial Club there is much whispering and many knowing gestures. It [illegible] a matter of common gossip that the [illegible] of international [illegible] will gradually become [illegible] the [illegible] women hold their way.

Prince del Drago is a friend of Prince Miguel of Braganza, who married Miss Anita Stewart, and [illegible] apparently fired by the success of his royal friend.

STARVES HIMSELF TO REDUCE HIS 296 POUNDS

A Chicago Man Finds Cure for Gloom, Grouch and Embonpoint

CHICAGO, May 7.—If you are gloomy or distressingly inclined to embonpoint, [illegible] stop eating. If you feel light enough to float away [illegible] [illegible] the first [illegible]. If you have a [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] that [illegible] going to be very soon remember that [illegible] to [illegible] [illegible] to lead in three days.

Then you will feel fitter and better and happier than you ever felt in your life before. At least Richard Eusel, who at his [illegible] in March [illegible] and is after the [illegible] [illegible] and a reduction of his weight [illegible] 0 pounds, vouched for all this.

HALE AND HEARTY

[illegible] hearty and apparently in excellent spirits, Mr. Eusel described his sensations during the forty-nine days in which he has allowed nothing but water to pass his lips.

"I didn't know what wonders [illegible] will do because they [illegible] themselves," he said. "They [illegible] during the first few days [illegible] going to [illegible] the second day and they [illegible] afraid they are going to starve to [illegible] I felt that way at first, but then I remembered that a man weighing 296 pounds has too much to [illegible] him [illegible] in just a few days like that and so I [illegible]

FEELS MUCH BETTER

"That was what I weighed: 296 pounds, and I leave it to you if that is not too [illegible] comfort. I am down to 243 now and I feel much better. I feel more [illegible] than I ever did before. That [illegible] that you feel weak when you don't eat is not correct. All those unpleasant sensations leave you after the third or fourth day. They are due to habit and not because you really need food.

"Of course if I should see that it was having a bad effect on me, I would stop. I never felt better than I do at this [illegible] and I have not had anything but [illegible] air for [illegible] days."

HOT WORDS PASS IN THE BALLINGER HEARING

Brandeis Accuses Secretary of Misstating Facts in His Testimony.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Only six members of the committee were present when the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation was resumed at 10:15 a.m. today with Secretary Ballinger still under cross-examination of Attorney Brandeis.

The examination began with further questions as to the clear-listing of the Cunningham claims on the Lovern and [illegible] of inquiries as to the technical difference between locators and entrymen. Mr. Brandeis soon complained that the witness was indulging in argument rather than answering questions.

"I am giving you facts," said the secretary.

"I do not want misstatements," remarked counsel.

"You are not getting any misstatements from me."

WOULD STOP FLINGS

Senator Sutherland (Republican) said Mr. Brandeis was first to offend, but Representative Graham (Democrat) insisted that the fault lay with Mr. Ballinger.

Mr. Ballinger soon turned the tables on Mr. Brandeis and claimed that his questions were arguments rather than interrogatory.

Several members asked if the hearing could not be expedited by cutting out the exchanges between counsel and witness.

The attorney was attempting to reply to this when Chairman Nelson interrupted.

"It might help the Senators to understand that counsel is trying this case for the other table, the press table, and not this one."

"I am endeavoring to try this case to the best of my ability and to the best interests— — —"

Senator Fletcher (Democrat) here interrupted to remark:

FOR THE COUNTRY

"I want to say that this case is not only being tried for this committee and congress but for the country."

Attorney Brandeis spent some time with Secretary Ballinger on the subject of Special Agent Horace T. Jones in the land office prior to the time he testified for Glavis and after he made his statement to the committee. The secretary said he knew little or nothing about Jones.

"In 1907 I [illegible]," he proceeded, "Special Agent Edward W. Dixon said something derogatory to Mr. Jones."

Jones, who was sitting near the press table, startled the committee and the spectators by rising and shouting with a loud voice:

"I want Mr. Dixon called to testify before this committee. He is a friend of mine and I don't believe he ever said anything of the kind against me."

ROOM IN UPROAR.

The committee was in an uproar instantly. Secretary Ballinger endeavored to answer Jones and did say something like "Call him if you want to," but it was lost in the hum among the committee and spectators. When order had been restored Senator Root said:

"Mr. Chairman, I desire that this man be admonished that if he does not refrain from further interruption of the proceedings of this committee he will be punished for contempt."

Mr. Ballinger emphatically denied he had the Cunningham claims especially in mind when he urged remedial legislation in congress. He had no knowledge of these claims other than what the records [illegible] office disclosed.

It was announced this afternoon that the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation would be held four days next week—Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

CITY'S FUTURE HINGES ON COUNT

Much Work Remains to Be Done and Assistance Is Urged

Up to Oakland Residents to See That Population Is Counted

Since THE TRIBUNE made the appeal to the citizens of Oakland that they lend every assistance possible to the men who are working under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce in gathering additional data for the census there has been a constant call for enumerators. The men in charge of the work have been laboring night and day and will continue to do so until Tuesday when the reports, which will supplement those gathered by the supervisor of census in this district, will be forwarded to Washington.

It has also been asked that the force of twenty-five men now at work be increased to 100 today and tomorrow. Automobiles also will be required to assist in the work of gathering the names, as a great amount of work remains to be done in a short time.

Need More Workers

Secretary A. A. Denison of the Chamber of Commerce said last evening:

"If Oakland falls short 10,000 in its population it will be because of the failure to secure a sufficient number of men and an adequate amount of money. There have been almost 400 houses that require rechecking by reason of changes of residence—people who have moved in since the enumerator called or who gave no response at the time. We have had almost continuous calls over the phones and an absolutely insufficient corps of men to check them up. One hundred men would not be any too many and we also should have automobiles to follow up the cards with all possible speed. Lodging houses, apartments and hotels especially need checking up.

"The task imposed upon the supervisor of the census in this district was simply staggering and impossible with the area to be covered and the limited force he had under his command. We have been endeavoring to supplement the work of Mr. Burke, but the task has so far been beyond our resources also.

Situation Desperate

"The situation is desperate, for indications point that the city will fall short of what there is every reason to believe she is entitled to receive in regard to the number of her population. Only two more days are left and it is up to the people of Oakland to come to the front and see that they are enumerated. Every man, woman and child should feel it their duty as a loyal citizen to either phone or come to the office of the Chamber of Commerce for blanks if they have not already done so before this time."

Miss Peebles Has Many Friends Among Oakland's Society Folk

MISS RUTH PEEBLES, leading lady with Henry Woodruff, who has many Oakland friends.

Miss Ruth Peebles, the dainty little song bird who scored a noteworthy success as leading woman during the recent engagement of Henry Woodruff in the "Prince of Tonight," which played a three nights' run at the Macdonough theater in this city some three weeks ago, is well known in this city, where she possesses an enviable number of friends. She is now in the East and at the conclusion of her engagement with Woodruff is considering an advantageous offer from one of the New York managers who offers to star her in a new production.

Miss Peebles is a woman of rare charm both on and off the stage. Possessed of a clear, bell-like soprano voice which has been carefully trained and beauty of the dark piquant type, her rise in the theatrical world has been rapid. Many of the critics have called her one of the greatest of the light opera singers of the past decade. Indeed a spontaneity of [illegible] and an all infectious smile are not the least of the actress' claim to attractiveness.

While here Miss Peebles was much feted and the Woodruff engagement was the signal for any number of smart box parties given in her honor by her friends in this vicinity. Her gowns were as always the last note of fashion. She has come to be regarded as a reflection of fashion during the past years, in fact, and though she refuses to affect the bizarre, many of her creations in smart feminine apparel are both original and charming.

EXPRESS COMPANY TO ENTER FIELD

Wells-Fargo Will Have a Big Rival When Salt Lake Road Opens.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The repairing of the one hundred mile washout of the Los Angeles & Salt Lake road in Nevada, which has tied the line up for some months, will be finished early next month. With the reopening of the road the American Express Company will have the express privilege of the road and enter Southern California. It is a competitor of the Wells, Fargo. The American company recently began operating over the Union Pacific, Oregon Short Line, Oregon Railway & Navigation and Oregon & Washington and Harriman roads. The Salt Lake & Los Angeles road is [illegible] owned by the Harriman people.

The American Express' entrée to all these lines is said to have been part of the bargain it made when several months ago it bought the Southern Pacific's holding of stock in Wells, Fargo & Co. for several millions of dollars. While the American is to be a strong competitor on the Pacific coast of Wells, Fargo & Co., there is no indication the two companies will cut rates. Both are very large concerns and their annual profits are something enormous.

There is no indication of the American Express getting into San Francisco. Wells, Fargo & Co.'s contracts with the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe have about twenty years more to run. Gould's Western Pacific road will no doubt give its express privileges to the Globe or Pacific companies, both of which are owned by Mr. Gould.

It is costing $1,000,000 to repair the Salt Lake & Los Angeles road. The traffic lost by the road since it has been tied up is estimated at $9,000,000. This $10,000,000 have fallen on William A. Clark, United States Senator from Montana, former United States Senator Kearns of Utah and Richard F. Kearns of St. Louis, the American ambassador to Vienna, who own one half of the property, and the Harriman people, who own the other half. The catastrophe was the largest of the kind that ever happened to an American railroad. The loss, however, will not seriously cripple the road.

Missing Man Found In Insane Asylum

M'SHERRY VISITED BY FORMER 'PAL'

Joseph Abbot Goes to San Quentin; Prisoner's Wife Turns Back.

SAN RAFAEL, May 7.—Joseph Abbot, whose confession before the Marin county grand jury brought about the indictment of former Police Commissioner Harry P. Flannery of San Francisco, this morning visited San Quentin prison to see Frank McSherry, the [illegible] room man, who is serving a years sentence.

Abbot, dressed in the height of fashion, presented a marked contrast to the striped garbed McSherry with his shaven head, who was recently Abbot's pal.

The meeting lasted for twenty minutes. Both refused to say what matters were discussed.

Mrs. McSherry came to San Rafael today in company with J. [illegible], a racing man. She passed Abbot at the gates of the prison, but refused to recognize him. She was not allowed to see her husband, as she had been permitted to visit him within the week.

WILL RIDE HORSE AROUND WORLD

Scout Hicks Will Repeat Performance, Kansan to Make Unique Trip.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 7.—Captain Harry Hicks, noted scout, will leave Muskogee about June 1 for a second horseback trip around the world.

He will ride from here to San Francisco, sell his horse and board an ocean liner. Across the sea, he will buy another horse and continue his journey, making his way by lecturing and giving exhibitions of fancy shooting. Hicks' former trip occupied three years.

Hicks was a Rough Rider and commanded Troop K under Colonel Roosevelt in Cuba.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 7.—L. A. Bryan of Gary, Ind., is planning a journey never before attempted. He intends to travel over the Santa Fe right of way from Los Angeles to Chicago, but will use an automobile.

Bryan must travel on train schedule and must take his own chance. He will drive only in the daytime. The Santa Fe officials have granted permission for the trip to be made over their rails. The railroad company will provide a guide through each division.

BRIBE-TAKER JOINS THE CONFESSION STAMPEDE

Another Illinois Lawmaker Becomes Panic Stricken and Tells of Grafting.

MAKES CLEAN BREAST BEFORE GRAND JURY

Senator Lorimer's Seat in Danger As Result of Legislative Scandal.

CHICAGO, May 7.—Representative Michael S. Link of Mitchell became panic stricken and joined the confession stampede in the big legislative bribery scandal today. Link went before the special grand jury, made a clean breast of his alleged share in the transactions and was purged of the indictment of perjury returned against him late yesterday in Judge Kersten's court. Link's confession was the big sensation in the startling revelations of graft at Springfield following the voting of an indictment against Lee O'Neil Browne of Ottawa, on a bribery charge, and Robert E. Wilson of Chicago and Link and perjury accusations. Link is the third to confess, and attaches of State's Attorney Wayman's office are looking for a continuance of the stampede.

They are hammering hard on other legislators involved in the original confession of Representative Charles A. White. Browne and Wilson gave bonds today for their appearance at trial.

LORIMER'S SEAT IN DANGER.

"Senator Lorimer will have to give up his seat in the United States Senate," was a remark dropped in various quarters today as the net of evidence the prosecutor has woven became public.

Friends of the senator insisted that he would hold onto his seat in the Senate to await the outcome of the trials. The opinion is that speedy action will be taken and the men accused will be placed in court to defend themselves within thirty days. Asked if he contemplated resigning his seat in the United States Senate, Senator Lorimer said:

"I have no such intention."

Just what Link has revealed in his confession is speculation. State's Attorney Wayman would make no other comment than that Link had purged himself of perjury. One report was that Link had more valuable information to communicate than did Representative Beckmeyer, who was the second to confess of alleged graft in the Legislature. Link was closely guarded by detectives and refused to talk when asked by a reporter if he had corroborated in detail the confession of White.

CORROBORATES JACK-POT DEAL

Representative Link is believed to have corroborated the "jack-pot" deal alleged to have been pulled off in St. Louis. He was indicted because he denied that he was in St. Louis at the time White says he received $900 from the alleged "jack-pot." The supposition is that he has admitted that he received money at the Southern hotel in St. Louis and to this extent substantiated White's story.

The probe into the big scandal will be continued in Chicago next week and will be on in Springfield, where State's Attorney Edmund Burke has subpoenaed something like twenty.

It was reported today that a petition is to be sent from prominent men in Chicago to Senator Cullom in Washington asking him to place the scandal before the United States Senate and demand a rigid investigation.

Runaway Team Dashes Into Speeding Trolley

A double team attached to a light buggy became frightened shortly after 6 o'clock last night while standing in the alley near the city hall and dashing out into Fourteenth street threw Fred Shaw, of Shaw & Shaw, photographers, and Andrew Crane of 1310 Fifty-first avenue, Melrose, into the street in front of the city engineer's office. Continuing the flight the horses crashed into a Grove street car at the junction of San Pablo avenue and Broadway.

PLAYGROUNDS OF ALAMEDA IDEAL

Encinal City Now Boasts of a Splendid System of Children's Parks.

ALAMEDA, May 7.—With the installation of the new playground equipment the city of Alameda now has probably the finest children's playgrounds in the country in Washington, Lincoln and McKinley parks. Not only is open air gymnastic apparatus provided for the older children but swings and merry-go-rounds for the small children, while athletic grounds and tennis courts are open [illegible]

[illegible] Lincoln Park has the best athletic ground at present and a five lap cinder track will be laid out where field meets can be held. Washington Park promises to be the center of attraction [illegible] a movement has been started [illegible] to establish a municipal museum and art gallery in the park.

WANTS NEW BUILDING

He proposes that a suitable building either to be constructed by the municipality or from funds raised by popular subscription be erected in Washington Park and that public spirited citizens donate articles that will be of interest and thereby [illegible] historical collection of French uniforms, furniture, costumes and are to the museum.

Another plan for the improvement of this park which may be adopted in the future is a municipal bath house and bathing resort on the shores of the bay which bounds the west end of the park.

This plan calls for a combined pavilion, bandstand and bath house, with a long pleasure pier extending out into the water with a sufficient depth to allow ferry boats to land. This idea is not a pleasure park or Coney Island resort but purely a municipal resort where all the residents of the city would have access to the bathing beach and the pavilion.

PARKS ARE NEEDED

The Alameda playgrounds have been recognized by the National Association of the Alameda Chamber of Commerce [illegible] of the Alameda Chamber of Commerce [illegible] an officer as among the best in the country and in a recent publication of the magazine devoted to public playgrounds an article describing the Alameda playgrounds appeared placing the Encinal city's children's parks among the foremost in the country.

Delano, president of the park and playground organization, with the result that [illegible] were voted to purchase two large tracts of well-wooded [illegible] which were afterwards incorporated into the park system under the names of Lincoln and Washington parks.

CHESTER KRUM SHOWS CLASS IN HANDICAP

St. James' Athletes Win First Honors at C. S. A. L. Track Meet

INTER-UNIVERSITY MEET PROMISES GOOD SPORT

Athletes From Five States to Compete Next Saturday at Berkeley Oval.

The great athletic event of the Golden Jubilee celebration of the University of California will be the first field and track meet of the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Conference on the University of California oval Saturday afternoon, May 14, at 2:30. Teams are being sent from Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, Stanford and California to compete in this meet. Each team is limited to twelve men, which will insure exceptional talent of the highest order and allow only picked men to compete for the honors in this association. This is the first time that the colleges of the Northwest have ever met in California for more than a dual meet and it is the first appearance in California of Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

The strength of the track teams of Stanford and California is well known to the people of California. Both universities are to send teams to the Western Conference meet at the University of Illinois on June 4 this year, and Eastern experts are divided in their opinion as to whether Stanford or California will win this meet. The fact that the two most Western universities are vying for these honors at Chicago will tend to insure the high quality of the Pacific coast meet.

In addition to such men as Coleman, Reed, Wyman, Scott, [illegible] and Horine of Stanford, California will probably be represented by Johns, Cowles, Edwards and Donald in the hurdles, by Saxon and Dowd in the distances, by [illegible] and Gabbert in the hammer, by Hill, Butt and Taylor in the high jump and by Kretsinger and [illegible] in the broad. Beside these men the team from Nevada will make a good showing with Campbell in the 100, Rowe in the half mile and Hubbard in the mile.

Oregon has been trained by "Billy" Hayward, head of the department of physical culture at the University of Oregon and formerly assistant trainer at the University of California. Hayward is entering Huston and Kay in the 100. Huston has a record of 10 flat and Kay a record of 10 1-5. In the 220 Kay's record is 22 4-5. In the 880 Riddell of Oregon has a record of 2:02 and both he and McClure will compete in the mile. In the hurdles Latourette has a record of 15 4-5 and should give the California men a good run.

Idaho is entering an exceptionally strong team, the principal man being Captain Montgomery, best all-round athlete in the University of Idaho. He runs both the dashes and the low hurdles. The most notable runner from Idaho is Edmundson, who will run the half mile and 440. At the A. A. U. meet at Seattle last summer Edmundson finished the half mile in 1:53 2-5.

The entries for the meet will close tomorrow and the teams will be announced by the middle of the week.

Finish of the first heat of the semi-finals in the fifty-yard dash (70-pound class) at the St. Mary's track meet. A. Cummins of Sacred Heart College in lead; G. Allen, St. Brigid's, second, and W. Ryan, St. Joseph's School, next. S. Richardson of St. Joseph's Academy is in the rear. Below, finish of 100-yard dash semi-final, first heat, 115-pound class—J. Fitzgerald of St. Joseph's School in lead, Al Henas, St. Anthony's, second, and G. Gillen, Sacred Heart, finishing third.

A track meet for the grammar school department in the morning, a track meet for the high school and college students and a baseball game between the high school and college students in the afternoon comprised the program of sports.

On Sunday next the yachts will sail over the course again and it is expected that McFarlane will be well enough by that time to sail his yacht. Lick Triumphs Over Lowell on the Track

The track athletes of Lick school defeated the representatives of Lowell High in the first annual track meet between the two schools at the Presidio athletic grounds yesterday by the score of 7[illegible] to 47½, the track events yielding some exciting sport in the way of close and interesting finishes.

Rogers, Lick's crack sprinter, won the [illegible]0, 110 and 220-yard dashes in fast time. Colm of Lowell was second to Rogers in all three events.

Dave Brown of Lowell captured the half mile and one mile races. The red and white athlete ran the half in 2:10 3-5. Lick scored heavily in the hurdle races.

The Tigers had a walkover in the field events, taking first place in four of the five events.

The relay race went to the speedy runners from Lick. Lowell led for the first two laps, but after that the Tigers went to the front and won out at the end by almost half a lap.

JUVENILE ATHLETES SHOW GOOD FORM IN CONTESTS

IN ONE of the most enthusiastic field meets ever conducted by the Catholic Schools Athletic League, St. James school of San Francisco yesterday afternoon on the St. Mary's College track won the championship of the organization by a score of [illegible] points. Fourteen schools contested in the event, almost all of them scoring points, which brought down the number gained by each individual school. St. Peter's school of San Francisco was second in the meet with a total of 21 points. Sacred Heart College grammar department gained [illegible] points.

Under the leadership of Walter Carlisle of the University of California, who started the races, George Faulkner, instructor at St. Mary's and formerly a well known Stanford athlete, who acted as clerk of the course, and [illegible] who weighed the young athletes, the many trial events were run off in schedule time, all being managed with neatness and dispatch. The children made excellent time in all events, comparing well with older athletes, but owing to the newness of the young people's field meets no records were broken, this being a physical impossibility according to experts for young boys to approach the fast time of the men who in high school events set the records.

The score for the afternoon, after the trial events in which first and second place runners qualified, was as follows:

YALE DOWNS PRINCETON.

NEW HAVEN, May 7.—Yale won the dual track meet [illegible] from Princeton by the score of [illegible] to [illegible]. No records were broken, but the performances of George Chisholm of North Attleboro, Mass., in winning the low hurdles in [illegible] seconds and the hammer throw of 162 feet 8 inches by Carroll Cooney, the Yale football guard, in winning the weight event, were the best performances of the day.

CRACK THREE-YEAR-OLD SHOWS HEELS TO RALEIGH

Five Favorites Reward Form Players in Saturday Sport at the Oakland Race Course

By LEE DEMIER

THE one hundred and twenty-fifth racing day of the New California Jockey Club at the Emeryville Race Track began under auspicious circumstances and as each race took place the interest and pleasure of the attending public deepened, to say nothing of the manner in which the pleasure seekers persisted in adding to their fast filling pocketbooks. They began right at the beginning with Rosamo as their choice, which horse won easily, then each succeeding favorite up to and including the fifth race was well supported and did not disappoint. In the sixth the favorite was beaten only a whisker. The action taken by the judges earlier in the week whereby A. Williams, the able colored rider, was suspended because of several very unsatisfactory rides, as well as two or three other cases that are under investigation, seems to have had a very good effect, for the racing of yesterday was par-excellent and strictly to form as far as the winners were concerned, although one or two in the various races that were considered contenders did not display a great deal of life before or during the actual running of the races. Goldfinn, the winner of third, improved materially over her last out, perhaps due to a change of jockeys.

The Hayward Handicap, the fourth on the program, which was for three-year-olds and upward at one mile, was originally intended as the classy race and undoubtedly was responsible for at least a part of the large crowd that gathered at the course.

Nevertheless it was not the only attraction offered. Only four horses were sent to the post in this event, wherein Chester Krum, the good chestnut colt by Sir Hercules, was installed first choice at 6 to 5, Raleigh was a close second, being held at 8 to 5, with Eddie Graney around 4 to 1. Johnny Lyons, the other starter, was offered at 100 to 1. [illegible] will a team to the wire, getting the decision by [illegible]ing began he was a very tired horse.

FOLLIE L. A GOOD THING.

The players offered even money against the chances of Follie L. in the [illegible], but so strong did she figure for the talent that a flood of money soon threatened to engulf Mr. Laver and he was forced to cut to 4 to 5, then 7 to 10 and finally to save himself took another slice off and she went to the post at 3 to 5. Redeem, the little Eddie Jones-Mortgage filly, receded to 15 to 5 from her opening price of two, because all that was in demand was the favorite. Edwin T. Fryer came in for a heavy play as the contender, being hammered from 5 down to 3, but when the barrier was sprung he unfortunately became entangled in the webbing and his chances were ruined. Still he was persevered with and finished fourth, thereby showing that had he not encountered the bad luck he might have been the contender, but it is very doubtful if he could have beaten Follie L., for she simply towroped her field, winning by six lengths in the easiest fashion, having been as many as fifteen lengths in front at one time.

Redeem ran her usual honest race and wound up second, while the 20 to 1 shot Whidden was third.

LAST FAVORITE LOSES

The only favorite of the day, as before mentioned, that went down to defeat was Napa Nick in the last. This [illegible] son of Solitaire II was held around 6 to 5 in the betting and received good support, while his victor Enfield opened second choice at 5 to 2 but receded until as good as 4 and ½ was in sight. The field broke to a good start with Lewiston in front at the quarter, Silver Stocking second, Napa Nick third and the winner last in a field of five. In the stretch Silver Stocking had the command, the favorite was third, three lengths in front of Enfield, but just here Jockey Cavanaugh sat down and began to ride as for his life. So well did he do so that his mount picked up the leaders one by one, and in one of the closest finishes of the season Enfield was awarded a close decision, Napa Nick second, having run a very creditable race, and Silver Stocking third.

TRIBUNE SELECTIONS WIN.

Owner Frank Crane's Rosamo, THE TRIBUNE selection's one best bet, went through with neatness and dispatch and took the day's opener. The Oakland crowd were down to a man on the chances of the Altamax horse and readily accepted 6 to 5. They sent the long green in bundles and backed the sure thing down to even money.

Jockey Kirschbaum rode a waiting race and reaching the three-quarter pole let out a couple of wraps and the horse ran by his field like if they were all tied to a post and won out in cake walk fashion from Flord. The latter beat out Passenger by a block for the place. Passenger held Kinrose safe for what was left of the purse. Adena, which was heavily played by the bargain hunters to be the favorite, did not get to running until the race was over. Feda quit early as did St. Francis.

The finish furnished by Jack Striker and Catali for first honors was worth the price of admission itself. So close was the struggle to the wire that a dead heat would have been the proper verdict, but owing to the rules of the New California Jockey Club in regard to tight ones, one horse must win and the one on the rail is always given the preference. So Jack Striker was the one that was awarded the race by a whisper, and [illegible] got the place.

The latter horse broke poorly but ran quickly up to Jack Striker, holding him, but it seemed as if he began to hang right near the end. Ban Ann, which saved the show easily from West Point, ran her race. The latter made a good showing and will win the next time out. Abelli, Burns & Waterhouse's youngster, bolted at the start.

GOLDFINN IMPROVES

Goldfinn, with [illegible] on up, came out yesterday and ran your eyeball out taking the race over the futurity course from a band of fast sprinters in 1:09 4-5, beating out Thistle Belle in a hard drive to the wire. The other day she had Mentry up, who is considered by racegoers to be Cotton's superior in the saddle, and was beaten off many lengths.

Yesterday the mare picked up 110 pounds as to 106 the other day. She was outrun early by Thistle Belle, but moved up fast on the last turn where she challenged the former and both ran like a team to the wire, getting the decision by a head. [illegible], who [illegible] woke up, was running great guns at the end, beating out Hannah Louise easily for third money. Thistle Belle was claimed out of the race for $1100 by J. F. Smith.

Fine Boxing Card Signed Up for the Joe Craig Benefit

For the Joe Craig benefit in San Francisco Tuesday night, Matchmaker Frank [illegible]tcher of the Buffalo Club has been fortunate in matching Tommy McFarland and Barney McCarthy of New York. This pair after their encounter before the Western Club were besieged by matchmakers anxious to sign them up. McCarthy comes from the East with a great reputation. He claims that the bout last Wednesday evening just put him on edge and is confident of reversing the four-round decision that was awarded to McFarland.

The main event between Jack Cordell and Pat Cornyn should be a slashing affair, as both men have trained faithfully for this contest, realizing that a defeat to either means a relegation to the has-beens.

There are two other special events. Dick Brown, the hard-hitting lightweight of Oakland, and Antonio La Grave, whose recent fights border on the sensational, will meet, and Willie Canol, who is conceded to be a possible future welterweight champion, meets Willie Edwards.

The balance of the card is as follows:

Willie Meehan vs. Jim Douglas, 115 pounds.

Patsy McGee vs. Iron Man Charlie Dunn, 140 pounds.

Willie Madison vs. Peter Root, 133 pounds.

Willie Thomas vs. Pert Andrews, 133 pounds.

Sacred Heart Nine Is Victorious Over Speedy Palo Altos

The Sacred Heart College baseball team gained a well earned victory from the Palo Alto High School nine yesterday in the first game of the semi-finals for the Academic Athletic League championship, easily defeating the peninsular champions by the score of 7 to 3. The winners put up a much steadier game in the field than did their opponents, and although the hits were evenly divided the losers were less fortunate in connecting with the ball at times when hits were needed. The Catholic collegians scored their runs in the early part of the game through misplays on the part of the Palo Alto players and put over the remaining tallies when Haw[illegible] weakened in the later innings.

SENTIMENT DOES NOT INFLUENCE BETTING

Oakland Captures Another Game From Sacramento Coasters

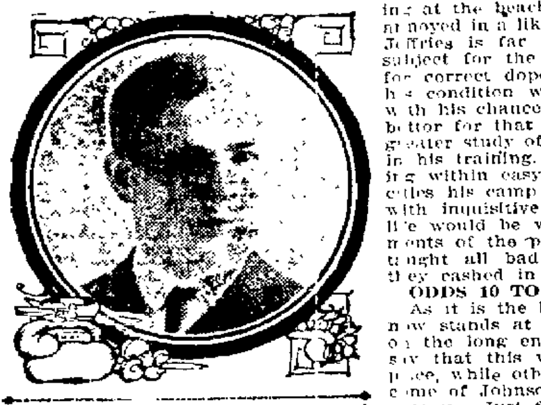
JOHNSON SHOWS WELL IN OPENING ODDS ON FIGHT

Wagering Not as One-Sided as Expected by the Fans When Match Was First Made

By EDDIE SMITH.

NOW that time is drawing near for the final training of the big men who are to take part in Oakland's biggest of all big fistic shows the men who lay a few sheckels on the outcome of such affairs are getting busy hunting information. The man who sits on the three-board fence at the race track from 4 o'clock in the morning until sometimes 8 or 9 o'clock, stop watch in hand and eyes glued on the nags that are in training for the coming races has nothing on the man who hunts inside information on the boxing contests. In the thorse game the contestant is saved a deal of trouble through the fact that it is dumb, but the poor boxer must listen to all sorts of fool advice, and the meddlesome "info" hunter is always a pest, not even equaled by a swarm of pesky New Jersey mosquitoes on a warm night.

These pests have been driving Jeffries into retreat every time he shows his face at Rowardennan, and from the day that Johnson opens his training at the Beach Tavern he will be annoyed in a like manner. Of course, Jeffries is far and away the better subject for the man who is looking for correct dope on the contest, for his condition will have much to do with his chances of winning, and the bettor for that reason is making the greater study of how he is coming to in his training. Were Jeffries training within easy access to the bay cities his camp would be overrun with inquisitive boxing fans and his life would be worse than the torments of the place that we were taught all bad boys went to when they cashed in their chetcks.



EDDIE SMITH.

ODDS 10 TO 7 ON CHAMPION.

As it is the betting on the contest now stands at 10 to 7 with Jeffries on the long end. Some of the fans say that this will be the prevailing price, while others argue that the income of Johnson money will make a change. Just for example, the other evening the writer, in talking with several men who are well posted in these matters, asked their opinion of the betting price that would finally prevail. Jimmy Coffroth said that he expected the betting to settle down at about 10 to 8, with Jeffries the favorite. Charley Harvey said that he would not be surprised to see even money in the betting, or Johnson a 10 to 9 favorite. Tom Corbett, the best posted man in the betting world, declared that he thought 10 to 8 or 10 to 7 would be the final price. Harry Monahan asserted that in his opinion Jeffries would be a 10 to 8 favorite.

Four months ago we were all of the opinion that Jeffries would be a 10 to 5 favorite through public sentiment if nothing else, but today we find that the man who is betting his money on this contest is doing so in a cold-blooded business-like manner, and he is not allowing his feelings to get the better of his judgment.

JEFF UNLIKE SULLIVAN.

Theer are any number of the fans who point to the James J. Corbett-John L. Sullivan battle as an example of the old-timer coming back to beat a fighter who was continually in the game and they point to how the bettors made the mistake of betting 10 to 4 on the old man. This simile is all to the bad, for the likening of Jeffries to John L. Sullivan is like comparing Jakie Baumgarten to Silk O'Loughlin. Sullivan was so fat and poorly trained that he could not lace his own shoes when Corbett met him, while Jeffries will be in at least fairly good condition, and very probably in very good condition.

The present betting on the Jeffries end has been done mostly by the Berry Bros., large oil stockholders in this State, who have already bet at least $20,000 on Jeffries at odds of 10 to 7. The Berry Bros. claim that they intend to bet $40,000 at this figure and it is through their setting of the pace that the price has remained at the above odds. Tomorrow Johnson will settle down to work for the coming contest with a vim that his backers claim will influence the betting to a more or less extent.

Since the big colored man has come to the coast the men interested in the big fight have shown more confidence in the affair, and it now looks as if it will surely take place on scheduled time. Johnson has sent to Los Angeles for his old-time massager, Prof. Burns, who rubbed him in the early days of his triumphs and who has been a staunch friend and admirer since Johnson first came to the coast. Burns is a marvel at rubbing and will do his colored brother a world of good.

THOMAS AND PAPKE TRAIN.

Joe Thomas will go through his training stunts for the fans today at the Beach Tavern and Billy Papke will do the same at Joe Millet's place. In the training gymnasium it will be hard to tell just who will show up best, Thomas or Papke. Neither man is a star at the training stunts and the sparring partners they hire do not have to earn their money by taking the hard knocks that men like Ketchel hand out in their training. Papke looks the best in training, for he is the picture of athletic fitness and his wonderful ruggedness impresses one with the idea that he is a veritable battering ram.

Papke is the favorite in the betting at the present time and he will be a much more pronounced one by the time the men are ready to enter the ring, but the condition that Thomas has shown since coming home this time has caused many of the boys to either take a chance on him with a small bet or lay off. Coffroth is to stage the contest and is to give the profits of the show to the road committee of the San Mateo Board of Supervisors to help build up some of the roads leading into San Mateo County. This will be a fine thing, let me tell you, for the roads at this time are the worst in the State, and the Supervisors should be thankful for the help of the promoters.

In a few days, perhaps a week, the greatest little fighter that England has sent to this country will be with us, and he will be in training for the contest that Coffroth is to stage at the Mission street arena on the 2d of July. England's representative, who will be backed against our champion in this instance will be Jim Driscoll and his opponent Abe Attell. Attell and Driscoll will represent all that is high art in the present generation of pugilists, and the battle should be the best affair of its kind that the fans have ever had a chance to witness. In New York they would give any amount of money to stage this pair in a twenty-five round contest. The men boxed there in a ten-round contest in which Driscoll is said to have had the better of the going and the fans are that crazy for another meeting between them.

Battle of Spikes Is Scheduled Between Rival College Teams

Santa Clara College and St. Ignatius' College will meet on the Presidio stadium, San Francisco, for their annual track contest next Saturday afternoon. The meet will serve as a try-out for the Santa Clara students who are to confront the St. Mary's College track men within a few weeks.

Indications are that the contest between the two Jesuit colleges next Saturday will be keen and interesting. St. Ignatius' College has a good, well-balanced team and has been preparing for this meet for several months. The Southern collegians also have a strong team and are exerting every effort just at the present time to prepare themselves for the annual St. Mary's College-Santa Clara College track meet.

Eight Prune Pickers Fan the Aair and the Baby Seals Win

Berger struck out eight men for the San Francisco team in the State League game with San Jose yesterday afternoon and the Young Seals came out at the end of nine innings with a score in their favor of 5 to 1.

Griffin made a home run in the third and in the last half of the eighth Carman hit a three bagger to right and Russell fumbled the ball, while Griffin ran home. Carman then scored on Menser's error.

Allegart, who took the box in the third inning, succeeded in showing up creditably. He stopped one of Berger's hot liners with his bare hand and threw him out at first. The score in the third was accounted for when Lewis hit a two bagger, stole third and went home on Rutledge's overthrow.

San Francisco was credited with an errorless game, but the Prune Pickers succeeded in making three misplays, two of which are charged to Menser and one to Rutledge.

The score:

BERLIN CONSIDERS BOXING BRUTAL AND BARS KNOCK-DOWNS

By COUNT VON ELPHBERG.)

BERLIN, May 7.—Several prominent American boxing promoters who came here with the idea of holding boxing contests, left the capital of the fatherland disgusted with their experiences.

They found that boxing, as known in America, is absolutely prohibited by our police. The Germans look upon the sport as barbarous and only fit for the lowest of the low. The police believe that once the people get a knowledge of boxing there would be many more cases of brawling and fighting in the streets. Nowadays half a dozen police can charge and maltreat an assembly of perhaps a thousand Socialists without suffering a retaliation.

Notwithstanding loud protests from various quarters against blotting the fair name of Berlin, an exhibition in the presence of the police was, however, pulled off. The police gave strict injunction to the competitors not to hit hard. Any one delivering a blow stretching out an opponent on the floor was immediately disqualified.

A sort of thrill of horror passed over the large audience of fashionably dressed women and brilliantly uniformed officers and business men as the first two middleweights started in last night's performance. The fighters fought to tunes of music rendered by an orchestra and took their footwork time from the conductor himself. Twenty bouts were fought and blood drawn but once, resulting in cries of "shame!"

Beavers Get Men on Bases, But Fail to Score on Vernons

PORTLAND, Or., May 7.—Portland had another of its days when it could get plenty of men on the sacks, but not until two were out. The score shows that the Beavers had nine die on the bases but not one crossed the home plate for them. It was not the fault of the umpiring, but the Hooligans simply scored their two runs by better playing. In the fourth Carlisle walked, went to third on N. Brashear's single and scored when Hetling threw Martinke's grounder wild to first.

The visitors had a good tally in the sixth. With two on the sacks and one down, Steen walked Martinke and got the next two men. One of them was Shaefer, who was playing second in place of Roy Brashear, who had been banished from the game by Umpire McGreevy. He had been called out stealing second.

In the eighth Brackenridge opened with a double. Carlisle sacrificed him to third and he scored when Netzel dropped N. Brashear's fly.

No stopping of the Oaks now, against the Senators, at any rate. It may be a different story when Wolverton's men tackle the champion Seals this week, but the transbay team has certainly displayed a decided improvement even against the tail-enders. They made it four straight yesterday, and incidentally "Slim" Nelson had his revenge for the fourteen-inning one-to-nothing defeat of last Tuesday, the only game that Oakland has lost.

It was Baum versus Nelson again yesterday, but the "Spider" didn't last long enough to make it an argument. He didn't have much on the ball to start with, and when he began walking a few men, something unusual for a pitcher with his good control, Graham called "Lefty" Hunt to the firing line, while Sacramento was still one run in the lead in the third inning.

What happened to Hunt is the story of the game. Inoffensive Swander, right gardener for the Oaks, was the hero. Baum had walked Wolverton, the first man up in the inning, whereupon Hunt took charge. Cameron bunted out of Hunt's reach and was safe because there was no one to cover first when Raymer got the ball. Carroll beat out a bounder to Shinn and the bases were full. Then came Swander, short, read-headed and determined. He waded into one of Hunt's choice fast balls for a knock over the right field screen, one of those clouts that sounds like a home run when it leaves the bat. Eight small boys fought for the ball in the alley while four Oaks crossed the plate. Neither side scored a run after that exciting inning.

Sacramento started after Nelson in the opener as if they intended to wipe out the previous three defeats all in one game. Van Buren singled to left and Perry's three-bagger to right center scored him. Oakland came back in the second for one. Carroll's speed earned him an infield single. Swander forced him at second. Maggart singled to left, and on a hit-and-run play Mitze caught Raymer running to second and poked the ball through that gentleman's territory into right. Perry got the ball short, but fumbled, and Swander, who had decided to stay on third, tallied on the foozle. Cutshaw filled the bases on a single past Baum, but the side was retired without further damage.

In the first of the third the Senators went into the lead again on a single by Shinn, a steal, Van Buren's out and a well-executed squeeze play by Perry.

PAPKE AND THOMAS WILL OPEN COFFROTH'S ARENA

Californian Impresses Fans With Cood Condition; Johnson Defends Himself in Automobile Debate

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

THE first open air contest of the spring is scheduled to take place at Coffroth's Mission-street arena next Saturday afternoon, Joe Thomas and Billy Papke being the headliners.

It will be the first time Thomas has been seen in action in this city in many moons, and those who have watched his career since he left here for the East are of the opinion that Joseph will surprise his friends with the pugilistic polish he has acquired. In the last of his engagements he figured in here Joe was handicapped by his efforts to make weight. He seemed destined to become a full-grown heavy, and he had hard work keeping himself down to the level of the men he signed with.

It was told over at Shannon's that Joe was frequently on the verge of collapse, owing to his efforts to get to the notch called for by the articles, and there is every reason to believe that in not a few of his fights he was too weak to give a proper account of himself.

W. W. NAUGHTON.

Joe comes back to us now, telling that it is no trick for him to do 158 pounds, a weight which bothered him exceedingly before. He attributes it to having learned the secret of proper training, and no doubt a great deal of credit is due to Sears of Boston, a well-known conditioner, who placed Thomas in shape for his many Eastern bouts and who is in camp with him now at the Ocean Beach.

Joe says the weight is no longer a bugaboo. What is more, he believes he is fighting better than ever, and he points to his long string of Eastern victories as proof of the assertion. From other sources it is learned that Joe administered a thorough trouncing to Frank Klaus, the Pittsburg Terror, a fellow who most of the other middles and light heavies have done little better than hold their own with.

Billy Papke came back to town last night and went into quarters at Millet's. Billy is surely in fighting mood. He is simmering with chagrin over the criticisms which followed his last fight at Colma with Stanley Ketchel. It was said at that time that if Papke had been possessed of more of the battle spirit he might have disposed of Ketchel, who was anything but strong.

Papke is anxious to show that he is not only a slap-dash fighter, but that he has a full share of grit and determination, and to this end it is promised he will cut loose like a whirlwind when he faces Thomas next Saturday.

It is the aim of Papke's life to secure another match with Ketchel. He feels that he has it in him to defeat the Michigan pugilist decisively, and he knows that if he can accomplish his end, it will be a rebuke to those who have hinted that he is less at home in the ring with Ketchel than some of the others he has been called upon to face. He knows that if anything goes wrong in the coming affair with Thomas, it will mean an end to his aspirations, and this is an added reason why he can be expected to be fully extended in the coming event.

JOHNSON STARTS TRAINING TOMORROW.

Tomorrow, if all promises are kept, Jack Johnson will begin his regular course of training out at his Ocean Beach camp. As it is much easier to reach Johnson's stronghold than Rowardennan, where Jeffries is located, it goes without saying that Johnson will perform in the presence of bigger crowds than visit the quarters of his rival.

After Johnson has been out a week at work comparisons will be in order. His daily bouts with his sparring partners will be watched closely, and everything he does will be sized up critically. We will hear of Johnson's wind being compared with Jeffries,' and of Johnson's best punches and Johnson's speed and footwork being stacked up against the corresponding qualities in the man from Burbank.

After about a week of comparing notes, betting will probably begin in a lively fashion, and it will not be long before the market values of the championship disputants will be established.

"I'd rather be known as the champion fisherman of the world than the champion fighter," said Jim Jeffries when narrating the various reasons for his retirement some years ago.

When it comes to Jack Johnson's turn to make a valedictory speech in the near future it is dollars to doughnuts he will say:

"I'd rather be known as the man who outsped Barney Oldfield than champion fighter."

If ever there was a gasoline fiend, Johnson is the man. When the writer rode on a train with the champion a week or more ago, Johnson was as composed as possible while discussing the various phases of his match with Jeffries. But the moment automobiling was mentioned a vast difference could be seen.

The big negro became quite excited. He shook his fist as he spoke of an alleged plot for depriving him of his license if he was caught exceeding the limit of speed, and intimated that he would go to any extreme to get even with those who threatened to curtail his enjoyment in the motoring line.

HAS NEVER INJURED ANYONE WITH MACHINE.

"I've never killed anyone, or even knocked anyone down," said Jack with a rising voice, "and I do not propose to be interfered with when I am exercising common sense and keeping within the law. This thing of arresting me for speeding is a joke with the public, although it is a serious thing for me. That I have done no wrong is shown by the fact that I have beaten every case trumped up against me."

Johnson declares he will automobile to his heart's content whenever there is a chance between spells of training work and that he is sure he will derive more benefit than if he stayed around his camp and drank mineral waters with the visitors. He says that those who predict that he will be the victim of a wreck do not stop to consider that he is an expert chauffeur.

"I can take a machine apart and put it together again," said Jack. "If I was out of a job tomorrow I could earn my living in a repair shop."

Before dismissing the subject Jack said in a bantering way, "Wait till this fight is over. I'm going to have a machine that will go 120 miles an hour, and I'm going to take it somewhere where there are no restrictions as to speed and have the time of my life. Some people will be drinking wine when I lick Jeffries. I'll celebrate by putting up records that will make Barney Oldfield turn green with envy."

SAYS HE IS AS STRONG AS JEFF.

The question of comparative strength in the case of Johnson and Jeffries came up during the train ride, and Johnson repeated what he had told the writer long before:

"Many of Jeffries' admirers think he will be able to rough me at will when it comes to clinching," said Jack. "I think otherwise. They must not think because Jeff has legs like a piano and a thicker waist than I have that he can do just as he likes with me. I have tested myself in fights with strong fellows and have met a few giants in my time, and I know that I can take care of myself at close quarters, no matter how strong the other man may be. It's the strength of the upper body that tells in the clinches, and I believe right now I am stronger in the shoulders than Jeffries is."

Asked where he received this seemingly abnormal strength from, Johnson said:

"While I never worked as a longshoreman as some people have said, I used to delight when I was a young man around Galveston, to go down on the docks and handle heavy bales of cotton and the like. I didn't do this for pay. I simply did it because I had a leaning that way. It developed my strength and I gained quite a name as a strong man. I built up muscle and lifting power that I have retained ever since, and these things have come in very useful at times when I have found myself hooked up with a burly fighter who was bent on roughing it."

Angels Bump Willis And Annex an Easy Victory From Seals

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—The Angels had a lovely time giving Lefty Willis his bumpings this afternoon. It was nice than revenge for the defeat of the day before, and in four innings out of the nine Dillon's pets poked the ball into the very corner of the lot. The final score was Angels 7, Seals 2.

TURNER IN GOOD DEMAND ON BOARD

Week Closes in San Francisco With Moderate Trading in Oil.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—The week closed with a moderate amount of trading in oil stocks today. Turner was in good demand, 1100 shares selling at $1.20, and a bid was made for any part of 10,000 shares at this price on the close. Palmer maintained its usual active position in the trading, 1100 shares changing hands at $1.25, with a firm demand for more stock at this price on the close.

Premier was active at $1.27½. Coalinga Central sold at 55c, and on the close more stock was offered at this price without any takers. Crescents sold at 40c, and Mascot at $2.25.

Among the mining stocks Belmont was the leader in the volume of trading, more than 4500 shares changing hands between the opening price of $3.17½ and $3.25, an advance of 30 a share over yesterday's closing quotations.

MacNamara sold at 26c, and more than 5000 shares of Reserve were traded in at 1c and 2c. Combination Fraction was much stronger, and sales were made as high as 45c.

Priest Knocks Out Two Armed Robbers

LISBON, May 7.—Hearing strange noises in the night, the priest in charge of a church at Alboraca, near Albacete, proceeded to investigate. He discovered four masked men busily packing all the gold and silver ornaments into sacks.

The men immediately rushed at the priest, but the latter, a powerful man, snatched up a large candlestick and defended him-self gallantly. Two of the brigands were knocked senseless, but a third crept behind the priest and stabbed him in the back.

By this time people living near, aroused by the noise, were clamoring for admission, and two of the robbers fled, leaving their comrades behind. The priest is not expected to recover.

Chantecler Lecture At St. Francis Hotel

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Mrs. J. Lowenberg, a French scholar and linguist, is to deliver a lecture on "Chantecler" in the parlors of the St. Francis Hotel next Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The lecture will be delivered in English. Mrs. Lowenberg will give a sketch of the life and work of Edmund Rostand, the author of "Chantecler," and will render a synopsis of each of the four acts of this remarkable play, explaining the characters and pointing out the striking passages.

Last Thursday Mrs. Lowenberg delivered a lecture on the subject in French before a large gathering at the Hotel Cadillac.

Next Saturday she will be assisted by Miss Flora Lowenberg, pianist.

Cooked food is sold from automobiles in the streets of Paris, Berlin and Moscow.

CENSUS FIGURES SHOW AN INCREASE

Los Angeles Lays Claim to a Present Population of Almost 306,500 People.

LOS ANGELES, May 7.—The census figures for the city of Los Angeles will be within a few hundreds of 306,500. These figures were announced tonight with a degree of certainty hitherto not attached to any of the innumerable approximations which have been made since the enumeration began.

Only an estimate of the population of Los Angeles county may yet be given, but it was approximately 456,000. The enumeration has revealed the fact that the city of Los Angeles has a permanent visiting list of 25,000 and upwards of 5,000 persons who transact all their business in the city and are here every working day, and residents of suburban towns.

These 25,000 people are not coming as residents. On the basis of the congressional representation of one congressman for every 17,000 in population, Los Angeles county will undoubtedly get two congressmen, of which the city will have one exclusively and possess a considerable interest in the other.

DETROIT FANS MOB WHITE SOX AFTER HARD PLAYED GAME

DETROIT, May 7.—A near-riot marked the finish of today's game between Detroit and Chicago, when the frenzied crowd, embittered because a double play entered the struggle just when it looked as if the Tigers would redeem a bad blunder by Cobb in the sixth, began a wild attack upon the Chicago players with cushions. For ten minutes a raging mob, hurling cushions, besieged the Sox bench, beating and battering them with cushions and other missiles. The game was one of the wildest and most thrilling of the year, the Sox finally triumphing.

OARSMEN WILL SETTLE OLD RIVALRY

A regatta which is expected to eclipse any rowing event held on this bay for many years will be held this forenoon at Aquatic Park, the stretch of water starting at the foot of Van Ness avenue and extending to Meiggs wharf, in San Francisco.

The affair is under the auspices and management of the Pacific Association of Amateur Oarsmen and the clubs which are members of the organization will all be represented with the exception of the San Diego club, which could not send a crew north.

The rivalry among the clubs of San Francisco bay is keen and the contests today between the rowers from the South End, Dolphin, Ariel and Alameda clubs should produce some close racing. Each club has entered a crew in each of the barge races, and the best single scullers of the various clubs will contest in the shell and skiff races. Valuable prizes have been donated by the prominent people interested in the sport of rowing and the winners will receive suitable reward for their efforts.

The races will begin at 10 o'clock and the committee expects to have them over before noon. After the contests are through the South End, Ariel and Dolphin clubs, which have their headquarters close to each other on the shore opposite the rowing course, will throw open their clubhouses and the afternoon will be made interesting for the guests of the oarsmen with music, dancing, vaudeville and refreshments.

CHURCHES CAN'T STOP BIG MILL

But Deadlock Over Referee May Make Battle Impossible, Says "Bat" Masterson.

(By W. B. (BAT) MASTERSON.)

NEW YORK, May 7.—Despite the activities of the ministerial forces of California and its allied forces to prevent the Jeffries-Johnson fight taking place at Emeryville on the Fourth of July, the battle will be brought off as scheduled, unless some sort of a tangle between the principals and promoters arises to prevent it. So far as the influence of those who are opposing the battle on general principles is concerned, it will happily amount to nothing.

The inability of the principals to agree on a referee last Wednesday, which was the date stipulated in the "articles of agreement," on which the referee was to be selected, has caused a great deal of unfavorable comment in sporting circles. Postponing the matter to a later date will not help matters. Of course, if the meeting was pre-arranged, as a good many believe, the prospects of the battle taking place appear to be good, but if it was on the level and Johnson adheres to his declaration that unless one of the two men he named was accepted, there would be no fight, the probabilities are there will be no fight, for it may be assumed that Jeffries will display as much stubbornness as the black champion when it comes to a showdown.

IMPORTANT GAMES SCHEDULED FOR CRICKETERS

Unbeaten Wanderers Play Last Year's Champions; Alameda Plays County Club.

The two cricket games scheduled for today under the auspices of the California Cricket Association, promise to be the most important the season has yet produced. The unbeaten Wanderers will meet last year's champions, the Barbarians, at the Stadium, and the San Francisco County team will slam with the Alameda club in the Encinal city.

The game at the Stadium is creating considerable interest. The Wanderers have defeated every team in the league with the exception of the opponents they meet today. Alameda, Golden Gate and the strong San Francisco team have all fallen victims to their skill, and there are many who predict that the Barbs will suffer their second defeat today.

Every effort is being made by the clubmen to get out their best team today. Stewart, who played such havoc with the wickets of the Wanderers last year, will be on hand to bowl for the Barbs, and Ollerdessen, their crack batsman, will also be in the game. Moverly is now captaining the team and will lead the Barbs today.

The game at Alameda should be a very close one. The Alameda team has been showing considerable improvement of late, and will give the County a hard game. The following players will be in the line-up today:

Wanderers—Charlton (captain), Stuart, Dr. Leager, Hyland, Hathaway, Clements, Sargent, Cumberland, Duston, Chown, Wood.

Barbarians—Moverly (captain), Stewart, Ollerdessen, Newman, Calley, Simfonds, Tyler, Readin, Thomas, Phillips, Anstey, Gomez.

Alameda—Hood (captain), Willing, Smith, Nield, Howard, Price, Dean, Ward, Logan, Irish, Baugh.

San Francisco—Renwick (captain), Dewhurst, Peterson, Vondager, Sterling, Brooks, Roberts, Cross, Aitkin, Loney, Spencer.

The California Cricket Association is making every effort to make the annual game between the local representatives of Australia and Great Britain a big success. The game will be played on Clarke's polo field at San Mateo, May 30 (Decoration Day). The Suburban Club has charge of the ground arrangements and is preparing for a big day. A special wicket is being prepared and promises to be in fine condition. The ground clubhouse has been secured for the occasion and the game will be celebrated with a big luncheon. A special car will leave this city with the team and the enthusiasts who have signified their intention of making the trip. The Association selection committee will experience considerable difficulty in selecting the respective teams, as there are a large number of candidates for both elevens.

Interesting Finishes At Driving Club Meet

The Park Amateur Driving Club held its opening meet at the Park Stadium speedway yesterday afternoon before a good crowd of racing enthusiasts. Five numbers were on the card and they furnished some interesting and close finishes.

The feature event was the second on the program, a three-quarter mile class A trot. It was a two-heat race, but both were close finishes and stepped in fast time. S. Christenson's Reins Directum, one of the most consistent performers of last season, won both heats and in the first heat stepped in 1:39, which is the best time made at the stadium for that distance.

H. Boyle's Modicum was the contender in both heats, and although close up and forcing the winner all the way, could not get in front.

The fourth race was also a close one and resulted in a nose finish in both heats. H. Boyle won with Zodell over D. E. Hoffman's Yankee Boy, the only other starter.

The first race for class C trotters was captured by Billie Burke after three hard heats. This was also a two-horse race. Dividend took the first heat, but could not pass Billie Burke in the last two heats. F. E. Booth, behind Searchlight Colt, won the fifth event for class A pacers at a mile. The fourth race was a three-quarter mile class B trot and was won in straight heats by F. W. Thompson's Lady Washington. Sunset Belle was a close contender throughout.

Knights of Red Branch Annual Games May 29

The Knights of the Red Branch will hold their annual picnic and games at Shellmound Park on Sunday, May 29th, and as usual a number of events will be held under the sanction of the Pacific Athletic Union.

The feature event of the meet will be the two-mile handicap race for the Kelleher diamond medal, and there will be eleven other races and field events on the program. Entries will close at 11 Seventh street and at Spalding's, 158 Geary street, San Francisco, at 6 o'clock on the evening of Monday, May 23d.

The list of events is as follows:

175 yards scratch, 440 yards handicap, 880 yards handicap, running broad jump handicap, running hop, step or hop, hop and jump handicap; running high jump handicap, putting 16-pound shot handicap, slinging 56-pound between legs without follow handicap, relay race for Catholic Schools' Athletic League (95-pound class), relay race for Catholic colleges, open relay race (four men to a team), two-mile race handicap for the annual Kelleher diamond medal, also valuable medal for second prize.

Two Ball Games Will End C. S. A. L. Season

With the outdoor meet over and the winner of the Class A basket ball tournament decided, the only competitions remaining to be conducted by the Catholic Schools Athletic League are two games which will determine the winner of the class B division of the baseball tournament. The first of the series of three games which will determine the championship between the Star of the Sea school players of this city and the Sacred Heart school players of North Oakland was won by the Star of the Sea players last Monday afternoon. The second game of the series will be played on the St. Ignatius college grounds next Tuesday afternoon. The date of the third game has not been named.

Notes of the Game

Mannie Cohen, a San Francisco merchant, called on President Graham yesterday to tell him that he had been a spectator at several of the games in Portland within the last week and to defend Umpire Hildebrand against the charges that have been made. Cohen says that the big howl in Portland comes from a bunch of gamblers that have been betting big money on the Beavers. He declares that Hildebrand has been doing unusually good work in the north, but that the gamblers are sore because Portland has been losing. He says that the San Francisco players were cursed by this gang every time one of them made a good play during the San Francisco-Portland series.

The date has been set for the raising of the 1909 pennant at Recreation Park in honor of the championship won by the Seals. Next Saturday is the day and 2:30 the time. A new sixty-foot flag pole is to be erected near the clubhouse to carry the pennant. The Seals will open the week's series with the Oaks next Tuesday.

The flags at Recreation Park were at half mast yesterday as a tribute to the late King of England.

Graham worked a clever trick on the Oaks in the third inning. Perry was sent up to squeeze Shinn home from third. After one failure on a ball that just rolled foul, Perry changed bats, evidently with the intention of making Wolverton's men think he had given up the idea of "squeezing." He made the play right over again, however, and this time Shinn scored.

The Oaks have won this week's series irrespective of today's results. The tally at present is four to one.

Alameda Tennis Club Arranges Matches for Inter-city Tourney

ALAMEDA, May 7.—Three interclub matches have been arranged by the Alameda-Bellevue Tennis Club with various clubs about the bay. On Saturday, May 14, Alameda will play the Berkeley Tennis Club on the Berkeley Tennis Club's courts, situated on Hillegass avenue, near Parker street, Berkeley. Play will commence at 1:30 p. m. In all nine matches will be contested, five singles and four doubles matches. All matches will be the best two out of three vantage sets. These two clubs have met twice before and each has one win to its credit and no doubt the tournament will be hotly contested.

'YE OLDEN DERBIES WERE GREATEST,' SAYS PRICE

When Haggin Took Ben Ali to Kentucky, Colonels Bet Last Dollar on Blue Wing.

Recollections of Derbies of the past are always fascinating, and those run furthest back seem to be the ones which leave the most lasting impression. Such a close student of racing as Charles F. Price, presiding judge at Churchill Downs, in recalling the Derby which was won in 1886 by Ben Ali, says:

"James B. Haggin, accompanied by his son, Ben Ali, had come over the Rocky Mountains with the strongest stable of racers that Kentucky had ever known. Every horse was a star. Besides Hidalgo and others he had Ban Fox, a sensational colt, who was regarded as invincible. He was the ante-post favorite in the Kentucky Derby until two weeks before the event was decided. On a play or pay basis many thousands of dollars were bet on him. It was not known, of course, outside of the State, that Ben Ali, named after the younger Haggin, was a factor in the race. Not until a few days before the race was it known that Ban Fox, the favorite, would not start.

When Derby day arrived a tremendous crowd gathered to see the race. Blue Wing, owned by Colonel William Barnes of Lexington, was the second choice. All of Lexington and Fayette county was on hand, and to a man they supported Blue Wing. Blue Wing, in the Derby trial at Lexington, ran the distance in 2:36 flat, and the Lexingtonians bet their last dollar on him.

"A strange thing occurred that day—not a bookmaker was allowed to operate in the ring. The only method of betting was the pari-mutuel system. It came about in this way:

"Colonel M. Lewis Clark, president of the Jockey Club, had a difference with the Western Bookmakers' Association as to the amount of money that should be paid for the privilege of booking. The split involved a difference of about $10,000. Colonel Clark declared that not a book should go on unless his terms were complied with.

"The odds layers stood pat, thinking that in the end they would triumph, but these men did not know Colonel Clark. And so it was that only the pari-mutuels and auctions were sold on the big race. Young Haggin offered $1000 for first choice, taking Ben Ali. He bought nearly all of the pools sold on that horse. The others tapered, with Blue Wing a strong second choice.

"It was a royal race, with Blue Wing a strong contender all through the stretch, but Ben Ali proved the victor. Ben Ali's time, 2:36½ for one mile and a half, the Derby route then, was the fastest in which the Derby had been run until Spokane defeated Proctor Knott a head in 1889. Spokane's time was 2:34½, the record for the Kentucky Derby at a mile and a half."

GOLF TOURNEY RESULTS.

Mrs. Johnson and Dr. Fredericks were the winners of the mixed foursomes golf tournament held yesterday on the Presidio links. The tourney was held under handicap conditions and the winning couple went over the course in 96 strokes, which, with a handicap of 8, gave them a net score of 88. Miss Alice Hager and A. A. Cuthbertson, with a gross score of 92 and a handicap of 3, turned the next best score.

The best gross score of the day was made by Mrs. W. S. Martin and Campbell D. Whyte, who played from scratch and made the rounds in 91.

OCEAN TO OCEAN AND BACK AGAIN

Philadelphia Doctor Makes Remarkable Trip.

One of the most, if not the very most, remarkable tours ever accomplished is that of Dr. T. C. Tredwell of Philadelphia, who drove a Buick "30" touring car from ocean to ocean and back again, going into Mexico at a tangent that ran the distance covered up to 14,000 miles. Speaking of his experience the doctor said:

"Tires represented our main expense. Considering the unspeakable road conditions which we have encountered in various sections, it is surprising that rubber or machinery could be made that could stand up against the treatment. I have driven the car throughout the journey and I have had no mechanical trouble that I could not fix myself. I brought the Buick through without a single broken spring on the entire trip and this record is remarkable, as my brother motorists will confess."

Travels Two Miles an Hour on High Gear; Wins a Wager.

Here is what looks like the slow speed automobile record of the world.

C. A. Galloway, lumber merchant, Holdrege, Neb. (private owner of an E-M-F "30") made a wager the other day that he could run his car for any distance on high speed at two miles an hour without slipping the clutch or stopping the motor. Under the conditions he was not permitted to touch his clutch pedal at all.

Mr. Galloway succeeded in running a full mile under these conditions in 30 minutes.

But for the fact that this record is vouched for by many people who witnessed the feat it would seem almost impossible. Even the advertisements of the E-M-F Company have never credited the car with less than four miles an hour on high speed.

As Pat would say, Mr. Galloway's car ran twice as slow as that.

Has anyone a record to beat it?

BUICKS IN SANTA ROSA MEET

The Buick has carried on a very active and surprisingly successful racing campaign this season on the coast. Its victories were featured at both the Motordrome in Los Angeles and the [illegible] Ingleside meet. R. K. [illegible], who has charge of these racing departments in [illegible] Howard's absence, declares that the car has no intentions of resting on its laurels won and consequently Buicks model 10 and 40 are entered in both the Coalinga road meet of May 1st and 2nd and the Santa Rosa meet of May 6th and 7th. Edward Waterman and Nikrent will do the driving in the former meet, while Murray will be the main attraction in Santa Rosa. On the opening day of the Coalinga meet there will be a road race from Fresno to Coalinga, starting at 7 a. m. Nikrent and Waterman will both drive Buick 40's in this race.

NOTED EXPERT COMES TO TOWN

Gives Interesting Information for Automobile Men on Carburetion

McDonald Purcell, factory expert of the Wheeler & Schebler Co., makers of the famous Schebler carburetor, has been in San Francisco during the past ten days, making his headquarters with Moore Motor Supply Co. Mr. Purcell has made a life study of the carburetor and on this particular subject he is probably one of the best versed men in the country.

When asked to give some light on this subject Mr. Purcell had the following to say:

"Since my arrival in San Francisco I have been struck with the remarkable fact that there are very few people who understand even the principle of the carburetion of gasoline into an explosive gas and also why the spark must be retarded or advanced to suit the different speeds of the motor.

"When I have been frequently called upon to adjust carburetors to enable the operators to throttle down on high gear to at most six or eight miles an hour without the motor trying to play leap frog or transmitting its power in jerks, and when in some cases I have found that some of the trouble can be placed in the carburetor owing to its being the victim of the disease known as 'tinkeritis' and its having being placed into the hands of the would-be surgeon who takes a pair of scissors and clips the spring [illegible] operating valves and [illegible] shortening it, but he little realizes that what was a spring is now nothing more than a dead coil of steel wire. But one of the principal reasons I have found to be caused by the operator having his spark too far advanced, thus causing the explosion to occur before the piston is at its maximum height, causing it to be met by a cushion of exploded gas, thus causing it to jerk.

"Upon my mentioning this to the drivers I was informed that they had been taught to carry their spark advanced at all times. This is radically wrong.

"Theoretically the proper time for the spark to occur is when the piston is at its maximum height or its compression point, as this would lead to the best mechanical results, but sparking and exploding are not the same.

"When the spark occurs it at once explodes the gas around the electrodes of the plugs and the flame then spreads as an explosion wave through the rest of the mixture, which takes some time, and although the time is short it must be taken into account that there is a brief interval between the spark and the full force of the explosion. To get the full effect of the explosion, therefore, the spark must occur shortly before the end of the compression stroke. This is done by advancing the spark. How much the spark ought to be advanced depends upon the speed of your piston and the velocity of the explosion wave.

"At top speed a piston travels about 120 to 130 feet a second. An explosion wave travels with varied speed according to the nature of the mixture, but from experience it has been found that an explosion wave may travel 80 feet per second, say about 300 inches. Now if we assume that the distance from spark to piston at the end of the compression stroke is about one inch, the explosion wave will take about one 300th of a second to attain its full force. In the meantime the piston would travel about an inch, therefore to get the greatest effect the spark must come in advance of full compression by 1/300 part of a second. This can only be found by trial in operating the car.

"The above calculation is given to make the principle as clear as possible. When the car is to go slowly the conditions are altered. The piston will travel much slower. If the spark came at the same piston position as before, the full force of the explosion would be felt before it reached the end of the compression stroke, which would tend to retard the engine and give rise to back firing, or in any case it would throw a burden on the fly wheel, the weight of which would be necessary to carry the piston over center through a cushion of fiery gas, which would cause the engine to stall.

"The spark must be retarded in conjunction with the speed of the piston if one desires to have the car operate smoothly at all speeds. For instance, if an operator of a car desires to try this as an experiment, try a hill with the spark far advanced, and as the speed of your motor decreases retard your spark and note how the car will instantly cease laboring and gradually pick up and gain speed. If the carburetor should happen to be of the flexible kind that is adjustable for all speeds and purposes—

"It is indeed evident the slight knowledge displayed of the fundamental principles of the carburetor as shown by many in the manner in which they tinker with them, as it is a fact that whenever a motor is hard to start, the cause of which may be any one of the many, they invariably jump to the carburetor and change the adjustment without giving the consideration to the fact that when a carburetor is adjusted once it is adjusted for all time and under all atmospheric conditions. What should be done is to ascertain whether the tank contains any gasoline, if the vent hole in the tank cap is free from dirt and if there is any foreign matter in the feed pipe preventing the gasoline from flowing freely. Another thing which I have found has given a deal of trouble is that there are many who do not know that a spark plug is dirty until it is filled up from the electrodes with carbon and oil. They do not realize that as soon as the core or porcelain of the plug is thickly coated black with carbon, that it is an easy way for the current to go to the ground in preference to jumping the gap. It is a well known fact that to jump across two electrodes a distance of 1/32 of an inch in a gasoline vapor compressed to 4 or 5 atmospheres requires at least 1,000 to 20,000 volts, so that it follows should there be an easier or shorter way to ground, the electric current will take it.

"The operation of the carburetor is simple. The piston creates a suction through the inlet valve during the charging stroke. This suction causes air to enter at the lower end of the vaporizing chamber or below the needle valve. This air has to pass through the narrow or contracting portion of the chamber and is thereby throttled or rarified so that there is a slight degree of vacuum formed around the spraying nozzle. Since the liquid in the float chamber has upon it the full effect of the atmosphere, gasoline is forced through the spraying nozzle in the form of mist to fill this partial vacuum. This spray becomes intimately mingled with the air and the mixture passes the throttle and through the intake pipe and valve to the cylinder. When the carburetor is correctly set the entering air must be mixed with such a proportion of gasoline as to produce perfect explosive, no matter whether the engine is drawing gas rapidly or slowly, for if it is not drawing mixture rapidly the vacuum produced around the spraying nozzle will be quite moderate, while if a high rate of gas supply is demanded the entering air will be considerably contracted, quite a strong vacuum formed and a deal more of gasoline will enter the cylinders.

"In carburetors as made a few years ago it was difficult to get a good mixture at all speeds, but at this time there are carburetors made which come near doing this, especially where there is a compensating air valve for high speeds and gasoline adjustments which are varied automatically according to the opening of the throttle. To adjust the carburetor it is well to get an expert and to then let it alone, but should it be once necessary to adjust one and no expert convenient it is well to remember that in this rarified atmosphere you require all the air it is possible to give. In the first place adjust the compensating valve so that the valve will strike lightly against the face of the valve seat, then the gasoline adjustments must be adjusted to suit the volume of air. It is well to remember that the needle valve must be hardly raised from its seat. In [illegible] screw the needle valve down, but not too tight so as to put a groove in the needle, then open it about 3/4 of a turn, then turn on your gasoline and start your motor, open your throttle slightly with the spark advanced just a little. Should the motor miss, then open your throttle wide. If the mixture is too rare it will bark back into the carburetor; if too rich the motor will stagger. In the case of too lean a mixture open [illegible] a little more [illegible] this [illegible] the stiffness required [illegible] adjustment just a little, which will produce a greater vacuum and generally give the necessary results."

STEEL CONTRACT FOR THE BUICK

Specifies Delivery of 10,000 Tons--Sheet Metal Alone Is 7500 Tons.

The American Sheet & Tin Plate Company is authority for the statement that the Buick Motor Company's contract on cold rolled steel is the largest single contract on cold rolled steel and shafting ever placed in the United States.

The Buick contract specifies delivery during 1910 of 10,000 tons of cold rolled steel, and the American company says this exceeds the next largest by 3000 tons.

This in itself should be sufficient evidence as to the large scale on which the Buick operations are conducted at the great Flint plants, but other figures are equally interesting as showing the vast quantity of raw material required by the Buick company.

The contract on sheet steel, which is used for fenders, hoods, drip aprons, etc., will amount to 7500 tons for 1910, and 1000 tons of steel forgings are used per month.

THE NEW LANE STEAMER MAKES ITS APPEARANCE

Woman Demonstrator, First on the Coast, to Sell New Cars; Local Doings During Past Week

By J. A. HOULIHAN.

The Lane Steamer Company, incorporated under the laws of California, has just taken out the entire Pacific Coast agency for the well known Lane steamer.

A carload shipment of these cars, among them a seven passenger touring car, a five passenger roadster and a close-coupled car, were received this week.

The lines of the Lane are strikingly attractive. The prices of the different models range from $1400 to $2450. One of the mechanical features of the cars is the use of distillate instead of gasoline as fuel supply.

Mrs. Lucern T. Langworthy, who has joined the sales force of the new company, is probably the first lady demonstrator on the Coast. She will devote her energies toward educating the women on this side of the bay on the superiority of the steamer over either the gasoline or electric vehicles.

LOCO TO WILCOX

Mr. E. J. Wilcox of Oakland has taken delivery of a 30-horsepower Locomobile touring car.

The Regal Plugger, which made a transcontinental trip last year, is again participating in another lengthy grind. This time the car will travel through 14 Eastern States, stop in 64 cities and cover in all about 5000 miles.

Osen & Hunter Auto Company report a shipment of 10 Mitchell cars en route for this city which should arrive here some time during the coming week.

CADILLAC MODEL FOR MECHANICS

Fine Points of Car Explained to Students as Part of Instruction.

In the line with the policy adopted in recent years by leading technical schools and institutions throughout the country, instructors in such schools are giving their students valuable object lessons in mechanical construction and workmanship.

With all that has been published regarding the construction of the Cadillac "30" it seems more than probable that this car was selected with a definite view for the study of the sort mentioned. Several schools which have taken up the subject of motor car construction have recognized the Cadillac as representative of the higher forms of mechanical work. The latest instance of the kind was in Rochester, N. Y., where the class of about sixty mechanic students from the Rochester Institute was taken to the sales room of the local Cadillac dealer and listened to a lecture which covered the handling of every part of the car and the final assembly of the parts into a complete automobile.

Being built on a scale of measurements which is the thousandth part of an inch, the limit of variation permitted in more than one hundred parts, the Cadillac seems particularly adapted to serve as the basis for a lecture on mechanical accuracy.

MANY ENTRIES MEMORIAL DAY

Big List Promises Splendid Racing in Coming Meet on Decoration Day.

When seen yesterday Tony Nichols, chairman of the contest committee, reported satisfactory progress in arrangements for the big Good Road Motor meet to be held at Tanforan May 29th and 30th by the San Francisco Motor Club. Many cars have already promised to contest, among them being the 6 cylinder Pennsylvania, Knox, White, Buick, Corbin, Pope Hartford, Maxwell, Ford, Palmer Singer and Apperson. This comprises one of the highest class entry lists ever offered for any meet held on the coast. Speaking of the arrangements up to date, Nichols said: "One of the big features of the meet is to be a grand 20 mile handicap open to first and second place cars of each class event. Handicaps will be made according to piston displacement and not according to price as is sometimes done. This will insure much more evenly contested and exciting races. Interest in the aeroplane events is exceeding our expectations. This section has more embryonic aeronauts than we had realized, as shown since we opened entries for this side of the game. All contestants who wish to contest should enter as soon as possible. Entries are now open and can be made at my office, 369 Golden Gate avenue."

The Satisfaction of Being Up-to-Date

A Little Talk on Owning a

White Gasoline Car

There is a certain real satisfaction which comes through the possession of any article which is, in every respect, thoroughly up to date. In fact almost all "shopping" consists of a search for the goods of latest pattern and embodying the latest ideas. In purchasing a motor car, it is particularly important to secure the latest design, because the art has been advancing so rapidly that those cars the design of which dates back two or three years do not possess many of the desirable features which the present state of the art makes possible.

The owner of a White gasoline car has the satisfaction of knowing that the design of his car is at least one year in advance of any other American machine and that he will see the features which he now has in his car adopted by other makers next year and the year after. Among these up-to-date features are the "long-stroke" engine, the casting of the four cylinders en bloc with only about one fourth of the usual amount of piping, the four-speed transmission, etc.

The owner of a White gasoline car can be even more proud of its QUALITY than of its up-to-date design. There is no part of the car which could be made of any better material, or could be constructed with more care, even if the selling price of the car were one thousand dollars greater.

SPRING SIGNS ON THE SKIN

Pimples, Itching Spots, Eruptions, Blotches, Fever Blisters.

The little blotches, itching spots, discolorations, pimples, fever blisters, etc., which appear on the skin at this time of the year, indicate that the pores are overtaxed in their work of helping to renovate the system. A little poslam applied as soon as these troubles show will cause them to quickly disappear, leaving the skin in perfect condition to perform its duties.

In skin troubles of every form, affecting both infants and adults, poslam produces beneficial results from first application, stopping all itching at once. Eczema, acne, herpes, tetter and similar diseases yield to it readily. Poslam is non-greasy, flesh-colored and cannot be detected in the day time. When used for scaly scalp, dandruff, boils, sores, chafing, hives, etc., it drives away soreness and cures rapidly.

Poslam is on sale for 50 cents at The Owl Drug Co., as well as all drug stores. But a supply sufficient for most minor troubles, to clear the complexion overnight and rid the face of pimples, will be sent free of charge to any one who will write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City.

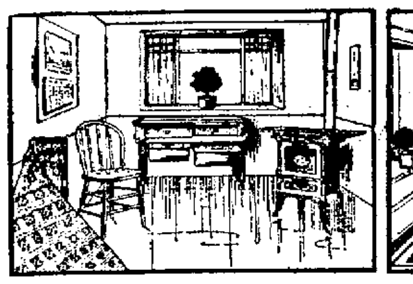
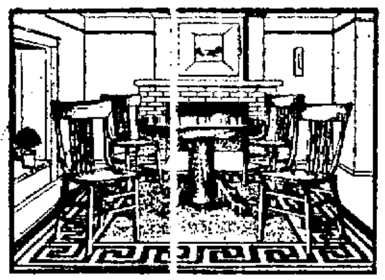
Dignified Credit— JACKSON'S 519 12th St. OAKLAND

Note: Twenty-yard roll of good Matting (choice of patterns); also a handsomely decorated Dinner Set of forty-eight pieces goes with this three-room outfit for $65.00. Terms: $6.50 cash, $6.50 month.

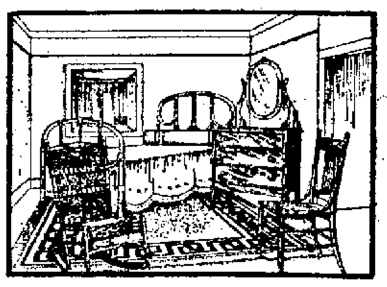
This home outfit if bought piece by piece would cost nearly $100. Our experience in making up outfits has made us experts in selecting just what young people need—who want a cozy, artistic, inexpensive home.



THE OUTFIT CONSISTS OF: A gas range with oven and broiler, kitchen chair and kitchen queen, with flour bins, kneading boards, drawers, etc.

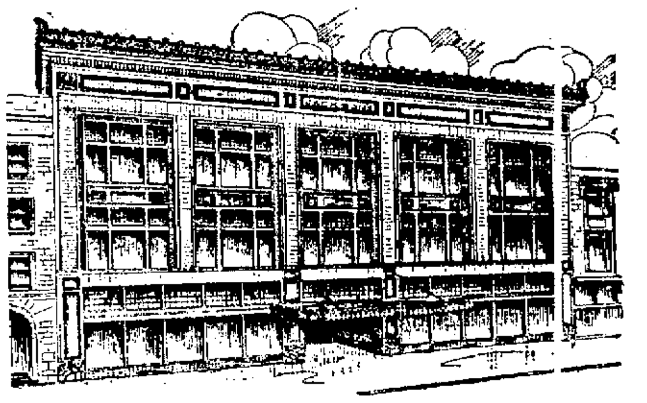


IN THE DINING ROOM there's a solid oak round pedestal extension table with four solid oak chairs to match, a 20-yard roll of good matting and a 48-piece decorated dinner set.



IN THE BEDROOM there's a pretty iron bed, good spring and sanitary mattress, golden oak dresser, bedroom chair and comfortable reed rocker.

Even the men folks take notice of Jackson's dignified credit plan
Shows how easy it is for any wage-earner to have a comfortable home



Our new Building as It Will Look When Completed.

Makes it clear to them how $6.50 cash and a promise as a salary-earner to pay the balance in small monthly amounts of $6.50 (if satisfied), is all that is required to secure immediate delivery of a three-room outfit, and one to be proud of. It's displayed in our Eleventh-street window and is exactly as illustrated and described. Furthermore, you are protected when you furnish your home at Jackson's.

We have money enough to carry your account without interest through trouble or sickness. We never sell below cost and seldom at cost. We make a fair, legitimate profit on everything we sell. This keeps our business in a healthy condition and enables us to sell on credit as low, if not lower, than you can get for cash anywhere. In this way we sell twice as many goods as would be possible were we a conservative credit house—

For it's the quantity of goods a merchant sells that enables him to make a low price (not the cash sales). The merchant with good credit who can buy two carloads of an article gets a lower price than the merchant who pays cash and only buys half a carload. Therefore, the merchant who sells three hundred of one article to people whose credit is good can certainly make them a lower price than the merchant who only sells fifty and demands a cash or nearly cash price.

Jackson's prices are the same, cash or credit; everybody's dollar the same value.

That's why we say dignified credit.

WOMEN TO GRACE FRENCH ACADEMY

Mrs. Belmont and Mrs. Clarence Mackay May Be Included.

PARIS, May 7.—Mrs. Belmont, Mrs. Clarence Mackay and other eminent leaders of feminism in America will be delighted to learn that many of our "Immortals" favor admission of women to the academy. There is, however, the academy's costume to be considered, consisting of a green coat, a cocked hat and a sword and, of course, trousers. Now, will this custom appeal to the fair sex? I doubt it, even though the trousers could be translated into the divided skirt. On the other hand there have been academicians elected from the clergy who were not forced to don this fantastic costume. Emile Daguet, the eminent "Immortal," who made the address recently when Reno Doumic was admitted, speaking of the election of women, says he has long satisfied himself of the intellectual equality of men and women. And he is right. It seems ridiculous that such women as Madame de Sevigne, Madame de La Fayette and Madame de Maintenon were not elected as members of the academy. Let us now make amends for the past by electing Madame Dupuis-Dupont Durand! The standard of admission should not be one of sex but intellect. Jules Claretie, the director of the Theater Francais, also one of the "Immortals" is strongly in favor of the election of women; likewise Paul Herview and Eugene Brieux. The academy of the "Forty Immortals" was founded by Cardinal Richlieu.

Suspected Robbers In Placerville Jail

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Postal authorities have received word that two men, suspected of having robbed the postoffice at Dutch Flat Tuesday night, have been arrested and jailed at Placerville, El Dorado county. The officers are now in pursuit of two other suspicious characters, who were seen near Clipper Gap soon after the postoffice robbery.

CHAMPS DE MARS FOR WEALTH ONLY

Quarter Pointed Out as Place Where Captain Dreyfus Was Degraded.

(By MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE.)

PARIS, May 7.—The Champs de Mars quarter is now pointed out to visitors as the place where Captain Dreyfus was degraded sixteen years ago. Since it has become one of the most fashionable residential districts of Paris. This is largely due to the architect, Duchesne, the man who built Mr. Clarence Mackay's house and also planned a palace for Thomas Fortune Ryan. It was while doing his work for these millionaires that it occurred to him to introduce American comforts in Parisian homes. This was a happy inspiration and has met with great success.

Machinery Hall, which once occupied a large part of the Champs de Mars, has been removed, and fashionable houses are taking its place. In this neighborhood the former Duchesse de Valencay, now Madame Helen Morton, has a residence. The Comtesse de Bearn, who recently sold her yacht to the Austrian government for a torpedo destroyer, also lives in this quarter.

Occasionally trades people and celebrated actors break into the charmed circle. For instance, Worth the dressmaker has built one of these Franco-American homes in the Champs de Mars. Guitry, the celebrated actor who created the role of "Chantecler" in Rostand's new play, also lives here. The neighborhood represents many millions. The Comtesse de Bearn's income is one thousand dollars a day. The Champs de Mars has now become a favorite horseback promenade for smart officers, so that the Avenue des Acasias in the Bois is deserted for the ever growing popular Champs de Mars.

Production of Gold To Blame, Says Gaynor

NEW YORK, May 7.—Mayor Gaynor sides with those who declare that the high cost of living is due chiefly to increased production of gold. A delegation representing several hundred Italian butchers called on him to protest that they are not responsible for the high price of meat and to urge him to say a good word for them to the public.

"Are you responsible for the high prices of meat?" asked the mayor.

"No," replied the butchers in chorus.

"Well, who is?"

"Perhaps it's the farmers," ventured one.

"No, it's not the farmers," he said. "It's the over-production of gold, and that's something neither you nor I can control."

Pleasant Reading for the Fat.

What a simple and inexpensive solving of the fat woman's problem the Marmola Prescription Tablets provide. She takes one of these harmless, pleasant, little tablets after each meal and at bed time and loses from 12 to 16 ounces of fat each day, and yet suffers no harm, creates no disturbances inwardly, and produces no wrinkles. This elegant preparation (made exactly in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) has rendered exercising and dieting for the reduction of excess flesh as superfluous as a fifth wheel. A further recommendation is that it is the least expensive fat reducer on the market, a large case (costing only 75 cents) from any druggist or by mail from the Marmola Co., 238 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., containing a quantity of tablets large enough to give very decided results in most every case.

Progress and Prosperity Shown in Bank Clearings and Building Improvements

OAKLAND GROWING APACE

Marvelous Expansion of Business Center in Progress

Oakland continues to grow apace. There is no stop to the expansion of both its business and residential quarters. New residences are still going up at the rate of at least forty a week. Homeseekers are buying lots on which to build in the various popular subdivisions opened to new settlement. These new dwellings are being tenanted as fast as they are being built, which proves conclusively the rapid growth of population.

The growth of Oakland's business is shown in the increase of the bank clearings, their weekly percentage of gain over corresponding periods in the year 1909 being larger, for some months past, than any other city west of Chicago. But owing to the imperfect methods of checking the banking business in Oakland these weekly reports of bank clearings do not in any sense show the actual amount of business done here over the counters of the banks.

Another sign of the strenuous efforts of Oakland to accommodate itself to its growing business is the activity in building and rebuilding in its old retail business district and its expansion by invasion on what was only three or four years ago a residence quarter. The operations that are now in progress within a distance of one and one-half blocks of the city hall demonstrate the intensity of the effort that is being made to pick up. Approximately $400,000 worth of new business structures are in progress of construction in three adjoining blocks. This scene of structural activity is like that associated with the building of a new city under tremendous stress. And the rapidity with which the changes are being made in this quarter are truly marvelous. It is only a few weeks since the big pit for the four-story Laffey block on Fourteenth street between Clay and Jefferson streets was being excavated. Now the walls have reached the roof line. Contractor Percy J. Walker said when he started operations that the building would be constructed more rapidly than any business block erected on either side of the bay, and he is making good his word. The building was leased to the Metropolitan Furniture Company for a period of ten years before a shovelful of dirt for the basement and foundation excavation was turned.

In a few weeks a similar scene of building activity will be in evidence in the Oakland (bankers') hotel site. The influence of this big structure is being felt in other communities. The brickyards at Carnegie, in the northeastern corner of Alameda county, have stirred into activity as they are under contract to furnish one million bricks for the new hotel.

The brickyards at Niles are kept busy to fill orders for Oakland new structures. They are under contract to deliver a million bricks here this month. Advance orders have been secured also by the new brick-making plant just established at Decoto.

All of these matters point to the progress Oakland is making and the prosperous future before it.

The prospects of a satisfactory agreement being reached between the city and the Realty Syndicate regarding the disposition of the lands fronting on the basin on the western water front between the Southern Pacific mole and the Key Route pier and the wharfing out rights to deep channel is advancing the project for extensive water front improvements in that quarter in addition to those which the city intends making, and F. M. Smith is now East financing the project. As soon as a settlement of the interests of the Syndicate and the city is consummated the harbor commission will get busy on plans for the erection of a municipal wharf there and dredging alongside for ships to load and discharge cargoes.

OAKLAND BANK OF SAVINGS BUILDING

Two Additional Stories Completed---New Structure Has Rapid Growth.

The two story addition to the Oakland Bank of Savings has been finished finally, the tenants are in occupancy of the premises and the scaffolding and construction elevator shaft is being torn down.

The two additional stories to the building which have made it an eight story structure, cost about $90,000. In its present form it is a far handsomer building than it was when completed as a six story building.

The addition of these two stories has been a marvel of constructive engineering. Percy J. Walker, the contractor, has carried on the work without interfering with sidewalk or street travel and traffic. Not even when the heavy steel girders and pillars were delivered on the premises or hoist into position was one car or vehicle at any time delayed, and the public had the unobstructed use of the sidewalk. The scaffolding on which the bricklayers and metal workers carried on their operations was bracketed to the sixth story in such a way as not to interfere with the light or comfort of a single tenant. The only time when sidewalk traffic has been diverted is now when the skeleton of the elevator shaft is being torn down.

The eighth, or upper floor of the building was occupied this week by the Wickham-Havens Inc. Company, which has vacated the premises in the Realty Syndicate building. The entire eighth floor of the bank building is occupied by the Wickham-Havens Inc Company under a lease. The floor has been subdivided into offices on a plan peculiarly adapted for the use of the various departments, insuring each one against intrusion and insuring perfect privacy. The offices are elegantly outfitted, and all of the finish and furniture is in mahogany. All of the offices are, moreover, elegantly carpeted. The whole effect is, therefore, simply superb. It is claimed that it is the most handsomely and best arranged real estate office on the Pacific coast, and it will take the casual observer that the claim is well grounded.

Inventor Lays Claim To Wireless 'Phone

LONDON, May 7.—The wireless telephone which has long been the dream of inventors, seems to have been realized, with limitations.

Mr Grindell Matthews, a Gloucestershire man who ever since he was 10 years of age, has been experimenting with electricity, and who, on reaching the years of discretion, became an electrical engineer, claims to have invented a telephone which will work as great a revolution in this method of communication as the Marconi system has accomplished in telegraphy.

PROGRESS OF PORT RICHMOND

RICHMOND, May 7.—As showing in the most emphatic way the progress in the development of this city it is pointed out by City Engineer Orlin Hudson that at this time there are fourteen entirely different pieces of street improvement and sewer work under way within the city confines at present.

The amount of money which is being expended in this work totals the big sum of $200,000. In addition to this work there are the big movements of the Santa Fe company and the Cutting people, which are being carried out with much energy in the canal district.

Innocent Tombstone Cause of Libel Suit

BERLIN, May 7.—A tomb stone in a Heligoland graveyard is the cause of a curious libel action. The widow of the late lighthouse keeper had a cross erected over her husband's grave bearing the words "Neglect shortened thy life in the spring of thy years." The local doctor considered the inscription to reflect on his treatment of the deceased, and accordingly had a writ for libel issued. The widow, on the other hand, disputes the doctor's allegations and says that the words remind her that her own neglect was responsible for the death of her husband.

SATISFACTORY REALTY WEEK

Many Deals of Importance to Oakland's Progress and Prosperity on the Way.

William J. Laymance of the Laymance Real Estate Company says that his firm started and closed a number of deals this week that would have a permanent effect upon Oakland's growth and progress. "We have negotiated several leases this week, one of which will mean the erection of a new business block in Oakland's center.

"The number of inside properties transferred this week and the influx of outside money in large sums for improvements, while not the largest in volume of business, shows a splendid circulative activity.

"The sale by our firm of the elegant residence of W. F. Kelly, general manager of the Oakland Traction Company, to [illegible] N. Griffith, a Fresno millionaire, is another evidence of outsiders selecting Oakland as a place of abode and business. The property is situated on the northeast corner of Perry and Chetwood streets and consists of a fine ten-room house and lot with 230 feet city frontage. The purchase price is $16,000.

"We have also had an offer by an outside capitalist for a down-town business block up in the six figures."

NEW RECORDS IN BUILDING MADE

April, 1910, Overshadows Any Previous Month for New Construction.

April made a new monthly record in the valuation of new buildings in Oakland, when 839 applications for building permits were filed, representing a total valuation of $1,644,194, only the sum of $63,888 being for alterations, additions and repairs. It beat the building record of October, 1906, when Oakland was making strenuous efforts to enable San Francisco merchants to save the trade put in jeopardy by the great earthquake and fire of April that year by $662,697.50. It beat the records set in March and April, 1907, when the permits for the Oakland Bank of Savings and the First National Bank buildings were filed. The March record of that year was beaten by $555,669 and the April record by $186,530.90.

The record of last month is not destined, however, to last long, for municipal changes and buildings are sure to establish a new record before the summer is far advanced. Then there is in addition a long list of large and costly business blocks in prospect, the plans of which are either completed or in the course of preparation. When the applications for these improvements come in startling changes are sure to be made in Oakland's new building records.

TO GIVE AN "AT HOME"

ALAMEDA, May 7.—An "at home" will be given by the members of Isle City Council of the Young Ladies' Institute in Lafayette hall on Monday evening, May 16. The affair is to be invitational.

LULL IN ALAMEDA NEW BUILDING

Steel Frame Addition to the Savings Bank Now Being Erected.

ALAMEDA, May 7.—There was a slight improvement noticed this week in the building line, the contractors and realty men say, but the amount of building now under way and planned is less than it was during the corresponding season last year. The only large structure at present under way is the two-story business block being constructed by the Alameda Savings bank, an addition to the structure now occupied by the financial institution. The steel beams are all in place and the joists for the second floor are in position. The building is located between the Alameda Savings bank and the building of the People's Water company. Part of the lower floor of the addition is to be utilized by the bank, and the rest will be laid out for a store.

Max Dill, the comedian, who is having twelve bungalows built at the west end, believes that he used good business judgment in having the dwellings laid out on small lines and cozily constructed. Each bungalow is to have four rooms. Every late convenience for domestic purposes is to be installed in the little houses. Several of the bungalows are completed and tenanted. Dill expects to find tenants for his houses as fast as the dwellings are ready to receive occupants. Actors and actresses have taken a fancy to the cozy little homes.

Renting continues quiet, according to the dealers, but they look for the usual demand for homes for the summer season. Many persons from San Francisco and other places make it a practice to take a house here during the warm season.

SUCCESS REIGNING HERE

Week's Record of Bank Clearings Shows This City Leads United States

For many weeks past Oakland has shown an amazing gain in its bank clearings as compared with the record of the corresponding period last year. On several occasions of late its percentage of gains in its weekly bank clearings have been close to the head in the Bradstreet bank clearing reports of ninety-five of the leading cities in the United States.

The record of the clearing houses of the country for the week ending at noon Thursday shows that, for the first time in its history, Oakland stands at the head of the Bradstreet list in the matter of the percentage of gain, with 69 per cent of an increase as compared with the corresponding week of 1909 noted to its credit. With the single exception of Canton, Ohio, not a city in the country possessing a bank clearing house approaches Oakland in the volume of gain, Canton being credited with a percentage of increase amounting to 60.8. But the total of the week's bank clearings of Canton is less than one-third Oakland's bank clearings, which amounted to $3,244,000.

It is generally understood that these reports of the weekly growth of bank clearings, imperfect and as far short they fall of showing the actual volume of business done over the counters of Oakland's banks, are attracting attention at home and abroad, particularly in the latter, for they are correctly accepted as marking the pulsations of its financial pulse and denoting the degree of its commercial progress and material prosperity. As a natural result, a city which shows such substantial proof of growth and success is regarded as a good place for investment in realty, for home making and for embarking capital in its various industries. That these results are being attained is evident from the increasing inquiries which Oakland's real estate dealers and chamber of commerce and merchants' exchange are receiving from outside sources regarding the opportunities offered here for investment in realty manufacturing and commerce. These are multiplying weekly at a rapid rate. Moreover, outside capital is being invested in Oakland realty in larger volume than it has been at any previous period. Oakland is in the public eye all over the country.

BERKELEY REAL ESTATE DOINGS

Many Lots Being Sold---Lively May Market---Revival of Improvements.

BERKELEY, May 7.—Local realty dealers are relying on the University of California jubilee celebration beginning next week to bring a large numer of home-seekers to Berkeley who will be interested in the attractions of the large tracts of land placed upon the market in this city. Preparations are being made to receive the visitors in Berkeley, and local dealers will make them welcome and will distribute literature among them, and plan several auto excursions for their about the city.

ACTIVE MARKET.

The realty market has shown great activity in the past week, according to dealers in this city. The activity has not been confined to the tracts that are being boomed by the large companies, but a large number of lots in the central residence sections of the city have been purchased and preparations are being made by the owners to build.

In the newer sections of the city such as Northbrae and Berkeley Heights, the attractive manner in which the streets are being laid out, with public parks and playgrounds, and the restrictions which are being imposed, insure only the most desirable residents, and many of those who have bought in this charming neighborhood are already building. By autumn there will be at least a score of handsome houses on this tract.

REALTY TRANSFERS.

Mason-McDuffie Company report the sale of 17 lots in Berkeley Heights last week, and two of these included contracts to build residences at once. These houses will be artistic places and it is safe to say they will stimulate other owners to build this summer. There will also be a fine $5000 residence built on one of the lots adjoining Indian Rock park, and a dozen bungalows in various parts of the tract. The same firm sold last week three lots in Claremont, and one house and lot in the same tract, two lots in San Pablo Park, two in Claremont Court, and a beautiful piece of ground in Piedmont avenue.

Other dealers reported similar business, and it is evident that the season is to be a lively one in the real estate business in Berkeley. The confidence shown by the railroads which are building lines and expensive depots in the northern part of the city has much to do with the doom in that direction.

BUILDING IMPROVEMENTS.

The week has been marked by the commencement of a large amount of building activity in all sections. Cottages, bungalows, twostory residences, as well as stores and apartment houses are be[illegible]ng put up, the contractors taking advantage of the fine weather.

The folowing permits were issued dur[illegible] the week from the office of Building [illegible]pector [illegible]

RECORD BREAKING IN REALTY MART

More Sales Being Made by Oakland Dealers Than Ever Before.

There is no better indication of the prosperity of a community than its bank clearings, and Oakland during the past three months has increased her bank clearings over those of last year by a greater percentage than any other city on the Pacific coast. During January, February and March Oakland's average of increase was more than 70 per cent—for the month of March alone it was more than 84 per cent.

The increase in San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Seattle, averaged from 23 per cent to 25 per cent, and none of these cities even approached the record made by Oakland.

Another indication of business conditions is the effect of the realty market, which, during the past sixty days has eclipsed all previous records.

In speaking of the matter, E. B. Bull, manager of the Frank K. Mott Company, stated that February, March and April had been by far the biggest months in their history.

"The sales that we made in Grand Avenue Heights in February and March, and those that we made in "Eastlawn" in April, beat all the records of our office," said Mr. Bull. "Last Sunday at the opening of our Eastlawn properties, we entertained one of the biggest crowds that ever assembled at a tract opening in Oakland, and our sales went well over the $100,000 mark. We find that Oakland properties are not only being purchased by local people, but that hundreds of outsiders are taking advantage of conditions and securing all the property in Oakland that they can afford to buy. There is no question but what this city has a wonderful future, and this fact is beginning to be appreciated not only throughout California, but throughout the entire country.

"Our Chamber of Commerce is receiving hundreds of letters from all over the United States inquiring about Oakland properties, and scores of these people who have visited Oakland have either made purchases in local realty or have left with the intention of doing so in the very near future," continued Mr. Bull. "In fact, never in my experience have I seen such a demand from outside sources for Oakland properties. This demand is not confined to business real estate, but is extending throughout the suburban districts into the various residential tracts that are now being placed upon the market. The shrewdest investors are putting their money into there outside districts and it seems to be the consensus of opinion that Oakland's greatest development in the next ten years will be in the increase in value in residential holdings. Blocks are now being sold, not only by ourselves, but by a number of other real estate concerns in Oakland that ought to double in price within the next few years. There is no question but that the development of the Canal, the World's Fair, and the general upbuilding of the Pacific coast will have a tendency to increase the population of Oakland very materially, and this will create a demand for outside residential properties, and the value of the choicest properties will unquestionably be greatly enhanced."

Parrot's Talk Was Aid to Mistress

NEW YORK, May 3.—Mrs. Philippa Carterio, who had arrived from Italy on the steamer San Georgio, passed through the runway at Ellis Island yesterday to undergo the catechism of the registry clerk. She was bound for Easton, Pa., where she formerly resided. She said she had lived in this country 24 years, but had gone back to Italy during the hard times two years ago.

"Do you speak English?" inquired the clerk.

"No, Signor, I no speaka da English," she replied.

"That's very strange," said the clerk. "You say you lived in this country 24 years and yet you can't speak English. This looks suspicious."

The clerk was about to indorse her card "S. I." meaning "Special Inquiry" when he heard a voice say hoarsely: "Hello! Cut that out. Cut that out."

"Signor," said Mrs. Carterio, "He speak da Engleesh." She drew off a cloth from a cage which she carried and disclosed a large green parrot.

BEAUTIFUL NEW PIEDMONT HOME

Residence of Dr. Murray L. Johnson on Sierra Avenue Just Finished.

Photographic perspective of the new residence of Dr. Murrey L. Johnson on Sierra avenue, near Highland avenue, Piedmont, is presented in this department of The Tribune today. The building has just been finished and occupied and the grounds around it are being laid out in lawn and shrubbery.

It is practically a two-story and attic structure of attractive design, the work of Architect Charles W. McCall. This residence has been so designed that the living room and terrace commands a splendid view of a long sweep of the bay. The first floor contains besides the living room, which has a specially designed ceiling and wall finish and a dressed stone mantel which gives it an exceptionally pleasing effect, a dining room finished in solid oak, a den fronting on the garden and a sun porch off the living room.

The second floor contains four bedrooms, three bath rooms, two dressing rooms and a sleeping porch.

The third floor or attic contains one specious bedroom. The house is one of the most attractive residences recently built in the Piedmont hills.

TRIBUNAL HOLDS MEETING IN PARIS

Anarchists Assemble to Judge Dr. Reichmann; His Life in Danger.

PARIS, May 7.—For some days past a revolutionary "Tribunal" has done Paris the honor of holding quasi-public sittings within its precincts. It is not one of those tribunals which sent people with express speed to the guillotine during the days of terror under Robespierre, but a private tribunal, the members of which were nominated with the proper formalities by the high-srung, freedom-loving anarchists of Paris and the rest of the world, to judge a Dr. Reichmann, whose photograph, by the way, appears in the illustrated papers, and who is accused of having organized a sham plot in Bucharest in December, 1909, for the purpose of rapping the Roumanian anarchists.

This curious revolutionary court or jury meets in a room on the first floor of a cafe, near the Hotel de Ville, and consists of about twenty anarchists from all countries. The French element is represented by an editor of the Guerre Sociale, a member of the Labor Confederation, and a "lady anarchist."

The question at issue is whether Dr. Richmann is guilty, and, if so, whether he should be hung up and quartered, or blown up with a bomb. Dr. Richmann, however, far from hiding himself, has come to Paris, takes his meals quietly at the restaurants in public, shakes hands with any friends in the Roumanian colony whom he may happen to meet on the "terrasses" of the cafes where he sips his aperitif, and in the evening, quite as calmly attends the meeting of the revolutionary tribunal to answer all questions and speak in his defense. The "prosecution" for the anarchist side has finished its evidence, and at the last sitting the doctor began a lengthy speech in his defense. The sitting lasted until midnight, for all the sittings take place at night, as behooves a revolutionary assembly, and the continuation of the case was adjourned with all the sedate formality of an ordinary court.

Oil Scares Skeeters From Jersey State

NEW YORK, May 3.—There will be no mosquitoes in New Jersey this year, according to State Entomologist (meaning insect expert) William S. Smith. He made the solemn declaration in Jersey City today to Mayor Wittpen that he had examined all the swamps and mud holes in Hudson county and finds that the larvae of the mosquito have all been destroyed. A preparation of oil represented by the inventor to be sure death to the immature mosquito did the work.

According to Mr. Smith, all that is needed is unremitting attention to business to forever keep the mosquito out of New Jersey. Despite his report, however, the Jerseyites are screening their porches and windows and doors just as of yore.

SHIPPED HIMSELF IS POLICE CHARGE

Charles Plantus Is Arrested for Trying to Swindle the Express Company.

DETROIT, Mich., May 4.—Charles Plantus is in the custody of the police here on suspicion of having shipped himself in a mammoth wooden box in furtherance of a plan to swindle the American Express Company.

The box in question, six feet long and three feet square, was delivered to the express company here on March 31 for shipment to West Pawlet, Vt. The box and contents weighed 215 pounds and, according to the man who acted as shipper and for whom the police are seeking, contained machinery and glass.

When the box addressed to Antonio Buttoloto, reached West Pawlet, it was empty, except for a bag of muddy crackers and its weight was just 173 pounds short. The shipper was notified of the lightness, and of the remarkable falling of in weight and Plantus promptly announced himself as the owner of the goods shipped in the box and put in a claim for $2010 as their value. He asserts that the box had contained six dozen gold watches, six dozen gold bracelets and other valuable jewelry, some tools and four pictures of saints.

The express company began an investigation, and soon learned that a man, now supposed to have been Plantus, had been seen to jump from the express car at Fletcher, Ontario, when the train stopped for a few minutes.

If the assertion of Lady Durand wife of the former British Ambassador be true the term debutante is wrongly applied in this country and a coming out party is a farce. In America she says, girls come out at 6 years old and remain belles until they are past 60."

Fruitvale Eagles' Carnival Closes In Blaze of Glory, Fun and Frolic

THOUSANDS VISIT LIVELY LANE ON LAST NIGHT

Bedecked Revelers Make Merry Up to Last Minute of the Big Festival.

QUEEN SAYS FAREWELL TO FAITHFUL SUBJECTS

Grand Ball Brings to End Successful Week of Fete That Made History.

FRUITVALE May 8—The zenith of the big street fair and carnival of the Fruitvale Eagles was reached last night when on the closing evening of the successful event thousands of visitors clad in gaudy costumes and making merry up to the last moment partook of the entertainment of the Mardi Gras festival on East Fourteenth street and at the fair grounds.

It is estimated that 10,000 visitors were on the grounds and the concessions were crowded. The queen and her attendant accompanied by the drum corps of the Richmond Lodge of Eagles, marched up to the decorated throne for the last time at 8 o'clock amid the cheers of the crowds that thronged Lively lane.

QUEEN SAYS FAREWELL.

The entertainment of the evening consisting of the five free acts that have been entertaining the visitors during the past week were then presented after which Queen Ada made a short farewell address to the visitors and with her attendants made the final rounds of all concessions after which they were driven to the new Eagles' hall on East Fourteenth street where the closing grand ball of the week under the auspices of the Fruitvale Aerie of Eagles was held. Queen Ada and her ladies in waiting and pages led the grand march accompanied by Supervisor W B Bridge grand marshal of the carnival. Dancing was continued until almost dawn and the last grand ball of the successful carnival ended with the playing of the 'Eagles' Waltz,' which was especially composed for the carnival dances.

It is reported by the committees in charge that the carnival has been a financial success as well as affording great entertainment to the large crowds that were present every night of the week of fun, although no definite financial results can be obtained for several days.

THANK MANAGER.

The carnival company, including about twenty five concessions left last night for San Jose where the same concessions will appear in the Santa Clara county rose carnival under the personal direction of J J Donalie.

The committee in charge of the Fruitvale Eagles carnival in executive session yesterday afternoon extended a vote of thanks to Manager J C Holland for his earnest work on the big street fair and also to the Suburban Light and Power Company which donated power for all street lights during the carnival.

A feature of the afternoon's program on the last day of the carnival was the laying of the corner stone of the new $10,000 hall of the Carpenters Union. The new hall will be for the exclusive use of the union members. It is situated on the northwest corner of Fruitvale avenue and East Twelfth street.

More than two hundred and fifty members of the Carpenters Union were present at the impressive ceremonies yesterday afternoon. Music was furnished by a band of twenty-five pieces, the address of the occasion being made by President Alexander McPherson of the Union. Other speakers were David Wilson business agent of the organization, A Johannan an official of the union, and J Hansen coast representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

CHARGES FALSE, SAYS RICHARDSON

Postmaster of Sacramento and Registrar Hurl Defiance at Accusers

SACRAMENTO May 7—In defense of charges made against them by State Engineer Nat Ellery candidate for governor that they have been taking an active part in politics Sacramento's postmaster E M Richardson and John Inge district receiver of federal lands tonight gave out a statement in which they asserted that the charges made against them were unfounded.

The complaints were sent to the postal department the interior department and to President Taft and accuse Richardson and Inge of campaigning for the interest of Alden Anderson in violation of the civil service regulations.

"I am familiar with the rule forbidding offensive partisanship and have carefully observed it," said Richardson. "Probably the impression has been formed that I have interested myself in Alden Anderson's candidacy for the reason of my personal friendship for him.

DEFINES LAW ON SUBJECT.

"I feel that I know the rules governing my office which I endeavor to fulfil at all times. Anyone who knows me knows that I have taken no active part in politics though I am a member of the Anderson club and I believe I have a right to be so as a citizen. What is meant by taking offensive part in politics as has been defined is to neglect your office, create a scandal or coerce your employes. That being the case I do not understand why charges of this nature should be brought against me."

Inge stated that he had become acquainted with Anderson when the latter was president of the chamber of commerce and he was the secretary. The interest he has taken in the Anderson campaign, he says, was prompted from friendship.

Ellery says:

"[illegible] have taken [illegible] the matter up with the department of the interior and the postmaster general besides calling the attention of President Taft to the matter," said Manager W H Fraser of the Nat Ellery headquarters last evening.

"If the direct primary law means anything it means that the people themselves shall have the prerogative of selecting their candidates for public offices without any attempt at dictation on the part of federal officeholders as well as professional politicians.

"John Inge, register of the land office at Sacramento and Postmaster Richardson of the Sacramento office have been actively engaged in what I do not hesitate to term pernicious politics on behalf of Alden Anderson, the regular organization candidate. And there have been certain other federal appointees in different parts of the state who have shown their hands very clearly in this campaign.

WILL FIGHT TO THE END

"Ellery's friends at Washington and it would not be difficult to secure considerable pressure to be brought to bear in certain quarters in behalf of his candidacy if he so desired. But he believes in the direct primary law. He is following out the spirit of that law to the letter.

"Let the names and the records of the various candidates for gubernatorial honors be presented to the voters and let them decide who shall be the standard bearer in the coming campaign.

"There will be no let up. We will follow this matter to the end. And the sooner our friends Inge and Richardson find out that we mean business the better for all concerned."

PRINCIPAL STOCKS BOUGHT QUICKLY

Yesterday's Decline Serves to Discount Disturbance of King's Death.

NEW YORK May 7—Buying orders of seeming urgency for some of the principal stocks were executed at the opening of the market. There was no sign of disturbance on account of the death of the King of England. The decline in stocks which occurred yesterday apparently served to more than discount that event.

The London Stock Exchange did not open today and there were no quotations from there to furnish a clue to speculative sentiment. The first stock quoted in New York was Chesapeake and Ohio at last night's prices. There followed other quotations showing small gains and losses mixed.

[illegible] sales of 4000 shares of Southern Pacific at [illegible] to 123¾ compared with 127⅞ last night. The opening sales of United States Steel were 37,000 shares at 81⅛ to 82¾ compared with 81 last night and of Union Pacific 4000 shares at 180 to 180¾ compared with 179¼ last night.

Canadian Pacific rose 1⅝. Amalgamated Copper and American Woolen 1 and Pennsylvania, Great Northern preferred and American Car large fractions. Colorado and Southern lost 1¼.

The market closed somewhat irregular and active. Extensive profit taking wiped out about all of the advances and forced some of the international stocks below yesterday's closing. Trading then became quieter but there was a steady recovery which carried prices to the highest.

The decision to close the exchange at 11 o'clock prompted covering by shorts. Reading, New York Central, Rhode Island and Chesapeake and Ohio rose 1, St Paul 1½, Union Pacific and American Smelting 1⅜, Tennessee Copper 1¾ and Canadian Pacific 2¾. There were some recessions in the final dealings.

BOGUS COUNT TO FACE VICTIM IN COURT

M. Daulby, Son of Tailor, Must Answer for Sale of Spurious Paintings.

WIFE HELPS HIM PREPARE DEFENSE

Package of Perfumed "Love Letters" Will Figure in Sensational Case

(By VANCE THOMPSON.)

PARIS May 7—M Daulby son of a London tailor who posed as the Count de Gatigny and sold a whole gallery of spurious old and young masters to Mrs Hamilton Paine widow of the Boston copper king, has sent his letters to his London and Paris lawyers. His wife who was formerly Miss I[illegible] of Boston aids him in his preparation.

The defense consists of two parts. Part the first will consist of reading in open court of 200 love letters which Daulby says he received from the beautiful white haired widow. Part the second will be a critical examination of the pictures and terms of sale. The lawyers are now going over the 200 letters and portions of these letters are now known owing it is said to the indiscretion of the 'Countess,' for some of the letters fell into the hands of the former Boston belle.

For a while she held them over her husband's head but when Mrs Payne had her arrested she decided to take her revenge upon the woman who not only stole my husband's love but sent me to prison.

Otherwise this package of perfumed letters would have been used in a divorce suit against the 'Count' instead of being part of his defense against Mrs Paine's charges.

The letters are written with a warmth more Parisian than Bostonian and are studded with such gems as "precious presence," "constant adoration," "languorous eyes," "long look of affinity," "heart beating in unison." Then there is a stanza entitled 'Love's Philosophy,' beginning and ending 'What are all these kissings worth if thou kiss not me?'

In fact the letters are dotted with eruptive spots of poetry. The letters cover a period of several years and the bogus Countess argues for their authenticity by pointing out that many were written from San Moritz where Mrs Paine has been in the habit of passing the winter some dated Paris and others mailed from different parts of Italy at the time Mrs Paine made a motor trip through that country. Several were written from the steamship Ivernia.

KEPT FOR WEAPON.

The care with which the bogus Count numbered and preserved these letters suggests that he kept them for use as a weapon against the writer. He even had duplicate typewritten copies made. It is understood that Mrs Paine's lawyers will argue that the letters are garbled or outright forgeries.

The second part of Daulby's defense which concerns the pictures states that he did not guarantee the authenticity of all the pictures. He pointed out that a copy may sometimes be as valuable as the original. For instance he says there are copies of the old masters by Lager de la Croix which are of great value. Daulby adds that he affixed no false signatures but merely sold the pictures in the same state as he bought them and that who forged the signatures is a query now impossible to answer. Some of the pictures he adds, belong to the finest manner or youthful period of the artists and that experts are unable to refute this. "The very size of my bills is proof of my sincerity," he says.

Finally he intimates that his bills were higher because they covered musical compositions which he allowed Mrs Paine to present as the product of her own musical genius and which were sung by Maggie Teste of the Opera Comique to the enthusiastic applause of Mrs Paine's guests who supposed they were applauding the compositions of their hostess.

TWO WILL MEET

Legal confrontation will take place at Tours a fortnight hence. This means that Mrs Paine and the Count de Gatigny will meet face to face in court. Hundreds of Parisians if the ceremony be public will flock to Tours to witness the sensational encounter.

Probably the most pathetic as well as the most distinguished figure in Paris today is ex-Governor William L Sprague the last of the great war Governors of the United States. He is now in his eighty-first year. The immediate reason of his coming to Paris was the burning of his ancestral home at Narragansett Pier. This historic property was one of the finest country residences in America.

Governor Sprague is seen in company with three distinguished American gentlemen to whom he issued army commissions in his fiery youth. One of these officers is Harris Phipps who lives in the home of the ex-King of Hanover and has become a French citizen. A second is Colonel Schlesinger brother of Sebastian H Schlesinger formerly a Boston banker and now well known to the Paris musical world. The third is Colonel Frank H Mason the American Consul General at Paris.

Governor Sprague may be seen on sunny days strolling along the Champs Elysees his tiny granddaughter clinging affectionately to his aged hand.

ALLIANCE AROUSES INTEREST OF LONDON

Anglo-American Engagement Is Announced, Stirs Both Sides of the Ocean.

BARRYMORE-ELIOT WEDDING IN JUNE

Young Waldorf Astor's Health Worries Wife and Rich Father.

(By CHARLES P NORCROSS.)

LONDON May 7—An Anglo-American engagement of great interest is that of Miss Helen [illegible], better known as Nellie Post, the daughter of Lady Barrymore by her first marriage to the late Arthur Post of New York, to Montague Eliot, [illegible]. It was [illegible] announced [illegible] in 19[illegible] [illegible] delayed. Now it is confirmed and the wedding will take place probably in June at the Chapel Royal.

The reason why the engagement was not heretofore announced was the serious state of health of Lady Barrymore who is a daughter of the late General James Wadsworth of New York but now her health after a trip to South Africa is greatly improved.

Mr Eliot is a nephew of Lord St Germans and is a distinguished looking and popular sportsman. Miss Post is very popular in the circle of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught.

The engagement of Miss Post leaves the Princess Patricia of Connaught the last of that coterie of girls who four years ago were the belles of the season. The Crown Princess of Sweden, then Princess Margaret of Connaught, Mrs John Ward and Lady Innes-Ker were the others. They went to balls and other festivities together, one never accepting an invitation if the others were not invited except in those cases where the princesses were obliged to attend state affairs. Princess Pat, who has been Miss Nellie's boon companion, declares she will not wed until the King allows her to choose for herself.

SMALL DOWRY

Miss Post will not have a large dowry and as Mr Eliot has only a modest income there will be no attempt to keep up the extravagance of the Anglo-American set in London.

The Maidstone-Drexel wedding will positively take place on June 9 at St Margaret's Church Westminster where the Bishop of London will officiate. The bridal robe is being made by Worth of Paris. The ten bridesmaids' dresses are being made in London.

Miss Mildred Carter, whose wedding will take place a fortnight later will be the chief bridesmaid. Two other bridesmaids will be Americans—Miss Edith Wayne of Philadelphia and Miss Nellie Post. The others are the Lady Gladys Finch Hatton sister of Viscount Maidstone, Lady Letty Manners, Miss Rhoda Astley daughter of [illegible] Hastings, Miss Margaret Compton daughter of Lady Constance [illegible], Miss Sybil Fellowes daughter of Lord Ramsay and the two small daughters of Lady Muriel Paget. Miss Drexel will give the bridesmaids the latest thing in jewelry called "a bundle of charms" which comprises the three latest mascots a bell a ball and a tiny [illegible] gold studded [illegible] on a chain of gold encrusted with diamonds.

Young Waldorf Astor's health for some time worried his wife and father. He had lost flesh and it was feared his lungs were affected. He underwent the open air cure in Scotland in Arctic winter and returned wonderfully improved. He will spend the next winter in Switzerland.

Young Astor is a keen racing man and popular on the turf. His filly Winkipop, recently won the thousand guineas stake. He expects to entertain Colonel Roosevelt at Cliveden.

Another Riverside host of Mr Roosevelt will be Mrs Harcourt at Nuneham on May 18 when the ex-President visits that place. Mrs Harcourt who is a niece of J P Morgan will have a host of distinguished people at her house for the occasion.

Cecil Grace whose daring aeroplane flights over the warships at Sheerness were universally praised is a naturalized Englishman. He is a son of the late John Grace an American citizen of Irish parentage, and is a brother of Lady Greville. The machine used was a Wright model.

NOT MECHANIC

Unlike his brother Percy Cecil is not a mechanic. Their uncle Michael Grace who owns [illegible] house in Pelham Street [illegible] Battle Abbey one of the most interesting historical houses in England was brother of William Grace once Mayor of New York. One of Michael Grace's daughters is Mrs Hay Phipps who divides her year between England and Long Island.

Mrs William Leeds's big dinner party was one of the events of the week. A large number of socially prominent people attended including Mrs Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs [illegible].

The Duchess of Marlborough is becoming quite a [illegible]. She will hold a drawing room this time at Sunderland House on June 2 in aid of the building fund of [illegible] club for women and deliver an address.

Owing to the death of the Countess Telfener sister of Mrs John W Mackay the latter's magnificent house in Carlton House terrace will be closed soon. It has been the scene of many brilliant functions during the [illegible]. Mrs Mackay will divide her time between Italy, France and America.

Popularity and Price Cause Expansion

When we put Rock Ridge Park on the market the 17th of last October we thought that the [illegible] would easily last a year and give us time to complete all improvements in Rock Ridge Place before offering it for sale. There is good property left in the park but nothing with the marine view, and the constant demand for lots with this view of the bay and the Golden Gate makes it necessary for us to open Rock Ridge Place to the public almost immediately.

The high grade of street and sewer work in Rock Ridge Park will be maintained in the new tract. Some of the [illegible] macadamizing is done and we have contracts with bonds to show that the grade, sewer and cement work in Rock Ridge Place will be finished within fifty, ninety and one hundred days respectively.

While it is not yet possible to announce the actual day of the opening of Rock Ridge Place it can be positively stated that prices for the new tract will be no higher than they were in Rock Ridge Park. Twenty to thirty dollars per front foot will be the price and lots will average sixty feet in width.

Natural Advantages of Rock Ridge Place

Rock Ridge Place is a natural amphitheater lying at the foot of Rock Ridge Park, on level and lightly sloping land. On one side of it is the Country Club golf links and the P. E. Bowles estate while Temescal creek, the Charles Butters estate and Claremont adjoin it on the north. Though surrounded by these beautiful private places which will never be built up solidly, and enjoying all the advantages of the country, Rock Ridge Place is within easy access of town, for the College avenue car is only one block west.

Business is in reality only fifteen minutes away from the business man when he is at home here, and yet because of the great open spaces, the country stillness and the restrictions on building business houses on the tract he can fancy himself miles away from his office. On account of the religious, social and theatrical advantages he enjoys he will occasionally remember that he has not left civilization, even though the meadow larks do wake him every morning.

Small Boy's Impression Of Rock Ridge Park

(Editor's Note: A boy of 12 who is a friend of ours went out to Rock Ridge Park with his sister who expects to make her home there after her marriage. We asked the lad to write us what he thought of the park and here it is unedited.)

Dear Mr. Reed:

I think it's great out here where I went with [illegible]. Do you own it all? If I was you I wouldn't sell it.

You asked me to tell you what I liked best in the [illegible] and to [illegible] I think [illegible] all about [illegible] the [illegible] best [illegible] I wished I had had my [illegible] the meadow larks [illegible] the birds singing [illegible]

Belle went around saying oh and if this isn't just too wonderful for anything and [illegible] from here Charlie but I wasn't half so interested in [illegible] watching the men work on [illegible] pavements. Those roads aren't like [illegible] Oak and [illegible] run all around [illegible] automobile [illegible] pretty [illegible] way for it isn't [illegible] It only took fifteen minutes on the [illegible] by my new watch and not three minutes to get from the crossroad where we got off to Belle's lot.

Funny how I was [illegible] in on that trip. [illegible] Belle is going to marry couldn't bring her out and she wanted to go to see about where she wanted the steps and George says Charlie would like to go with you. Well I thought Charlie wouldn't but George had been pretty good to me and Belle said we'd fix up a fine lunch with lots of lettuce sandwiches so I didn't say a word.

Next to the quail [illegible] the streets being made I liked to [illegible]. It was so still in the park and smelled of pines and [illegible] name for [illegible] out and like this [illegible] until Belle said Charlie [illegible] will think you crazy if you don't [illegible] then I ran up and down hill [illegible] the place was named [illegible] and then I [illegible] I was starved.

When I [illegible] going to take [illegible] with me and maybe we'll both go out and live with Belle and George after they get [illegible] I'd like to live in the country like that where I could take a car and see a moving picture show any old time and see quails when I was at home.

Your friend
CHARLIE

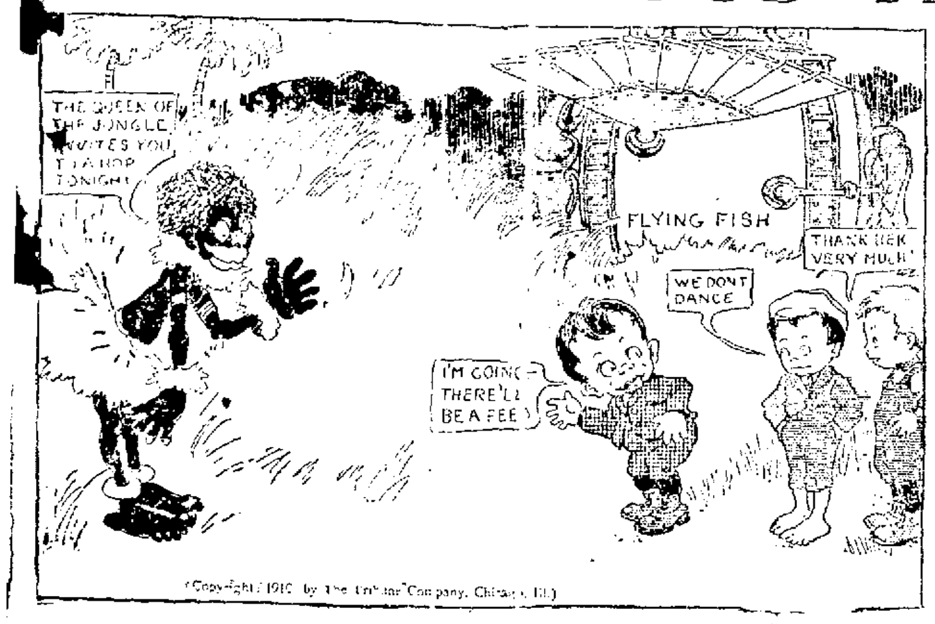
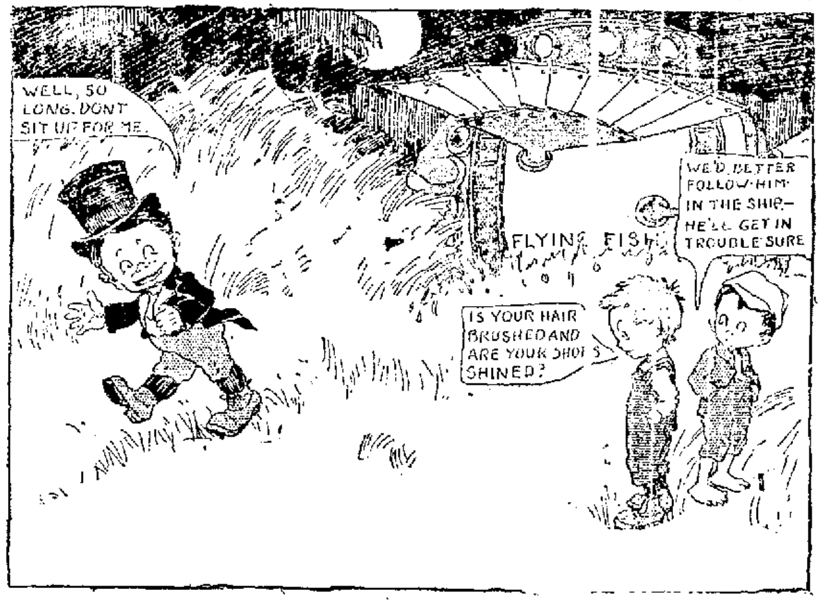
THE BIRD BOYS AND THEIR AIRSHIP, THE FLYING FISH.



THE QUEEN OF THE JUNGLE INVITES YOU TO A HOP TONIGHT
FLYING FISH
THANK HER VERY MUCH
WE DONT DANCE
I'M GOING — THERE'LL BE A FEED

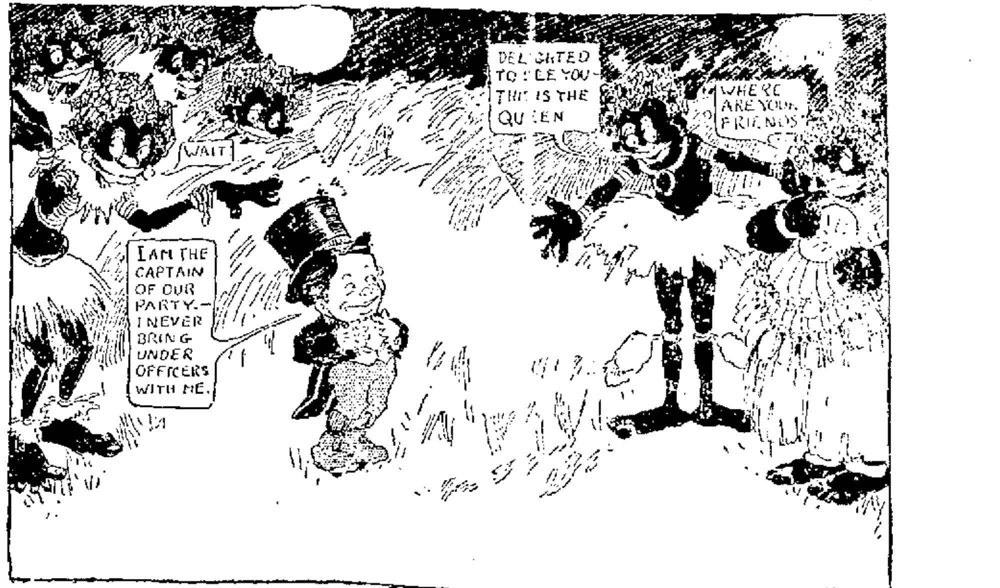
(Copyright 1910 by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

The Bird Boys leave the mermaid's strand, ere long to penetrate
The jungle of an island where weird dangers lie in wait.
An envoy of the jungle queen soon hails the airship crew,
Both Bill and Bud decline his bid, but Bulgy grabs the cue,



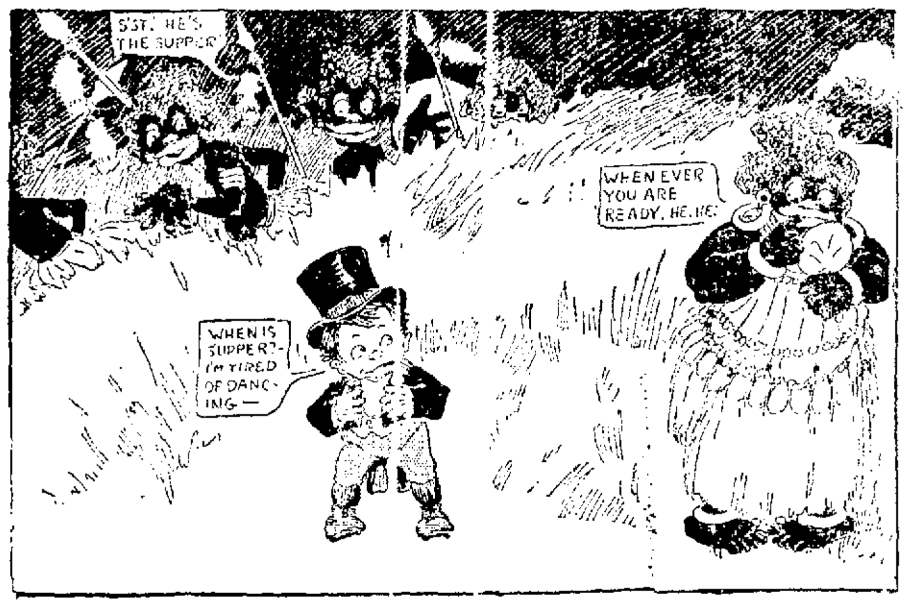
WELL, SO LONG. DONT SIT UP FOR ME.
FLYING FISH
WE'D BETTER FOLLOW HIM IN THE SHIP— HE'LL GET IN TROUBLE SURE
IS YOUR HAIR BRUSHED AND ARE YOUR SHOES SHINED?

That evening, in a glossy tile and other garments fine,
Bold Bulgy sallies forth to dance—and more, he thinks, to dine,
The Bird Boys do not go with him because they have their doubts.
Their fear for Bulgy prompts them, though, to sneak behind as scouts.



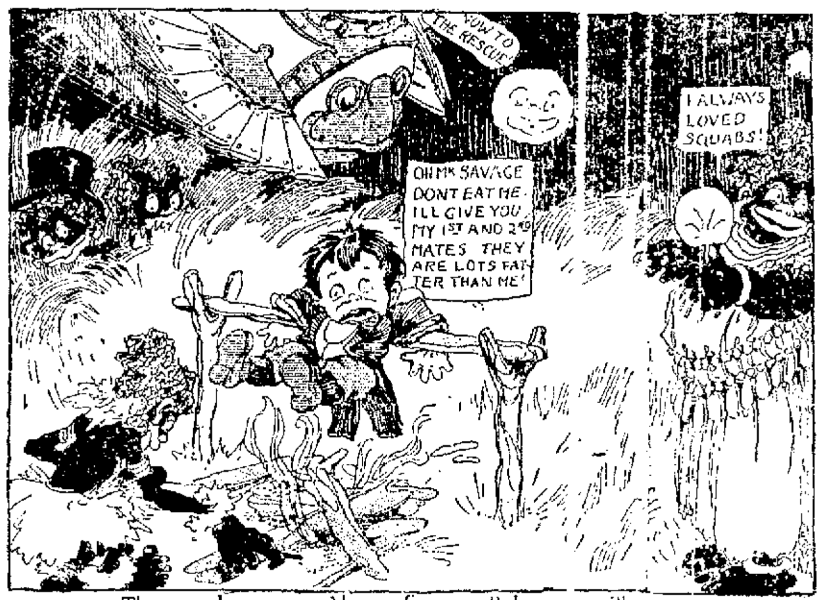
DELIGHTED TO SEE YOU THIS IS THE QUEEN
WHERE ARE YOUR FRIENDS
WAIT
I AM THE CAPTAIN OF OUR PARTY.— I NEVER BRING UNDER OFFICERS WITH ME.

Now Bulgy meets the jungle queen, arrayed in robes of state.
She seems so pleased to meet him that the youngster votes her "great."
She asks about his paleskin friends, and if they'll come for lunch.
Then Bulgy proudly boasts that he's the captain of the bunch.



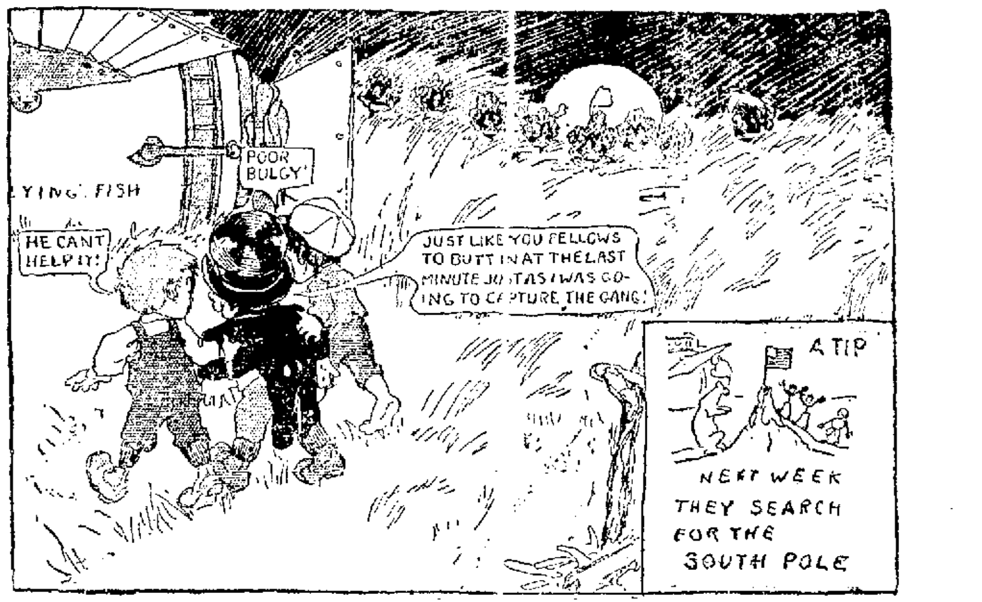
S'ST. HE'S THE SUPPER
WHEN EVER YOU ARE READY, HE HE
WHEN IS SUPPER?— I'M TIRED OF DANCING —

They dance to beat of tom-tams all across a grassy floor.
The whirling is prolonged until poor Bulgy's feet are sore.
He asks when supper will be served. He gets a quick reply,
"Whenever you are ready," says the queen in manner sly.



YOW TO THE RESCUE
OH MR SAVAGE DONT EAT ME I'LL GIVE YOU MY 1ST AND 2ND MATES THEY ARE LOTS FATTER THAN ME!
I ALWAYS LOVED SQUABS!

The worst has come. Above a fire poor Bulgy soon will roast.
That is, unless the queen resigns the titbit she likes most.
The wood is piled, the torch applied, and Bulgy's end seems near.
But look! Beyond the silv'ry moon the airship boys appear!



YING FISH
POOR BULGY!
HE CANT HELP IT!
JUST LIKE YOU FELLOWS TO BUTT IN AT THE LAST MINUTE JUST AS I WAS GOING TO CAPTURE THE GANG!
A TIP
NEXT WEEK THEY SEARCH FOR THE SOUTH POLE

The rescue is an easy deed. The jungle fiends all dread
The magic power of white skinned boys who flutter overhead. tague.
As Bulgy's led away from there he shivers like a leaf,
But still he chides poor Bill and Bud for coming to relief.

Poor Denny is a captive for a great gorilla's paw
Holds tight our shudd'ring hero, 'round his ear, his neck and jaw

They confiscate his treasured plates, and gaze at them agrin,
The while, the print destroying beams of sunlight amble in.

A family group is next desired. The parents and their child
Sit still While Denny snaps the apes—their manner is quite mild.

His savagery returns—this fact his optics' glitter shows

The flashlight to the rescue comes. It makes a frightful noise,
The fierce gorillas scamper off like naughty little boys.

They clamber up the swaying trees, their rout not wholly loss,
For when brave Denny ventures near, huge cocoanuts they toss.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright: 1910; by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

Unless memory play me false, Bud, that orang-outang is a grandson of old Boomerang Bang, a wonderful animal I captured in Africa years ago and presented to this zoo. How did I do it? Well, it's an interesting story. I worked a ruse and a half nelson on him.

To begin with, I acquired from an old seafaring friend of mine a smattering of the 'rang language. Then I prepared a wonderful disguise that made a perfect monkey of me—so perfect, in fact, that I had difficulty in refraining from an attempt to capture myself.

Then, arrived in the jungle with my hat in one hand and my grip in the other, I practiced the different characteristic antics of this specie of wild animal, hanging by my portable tail to the limb of a tree and gibbering intelligently in 'rang language.

Becoming thoroughly efficient in monkey tricks, I hung my hat and grip on the trunk of a tree and crawled far out on the gigantic limb of another tree and issued, in his language, a challenge to the man-killing monster who held the natives terror-stricken.

Well, hardly had my cry reverberated through the tangle of trees and vines when the surroundings became alive with orang-outangs of every species and size. The jungle rang with their excited chattering, and suddenly, a few feet in front of me, swinging from thick vines, appeared the very orang-outang for which, I instantly knew, I was in search. My goodness, but he was a large, fierce-looking old orang-outang, with bulging eyes and muscles that stood out even greater than my own. For one brief instant we gazed defiance at each other.

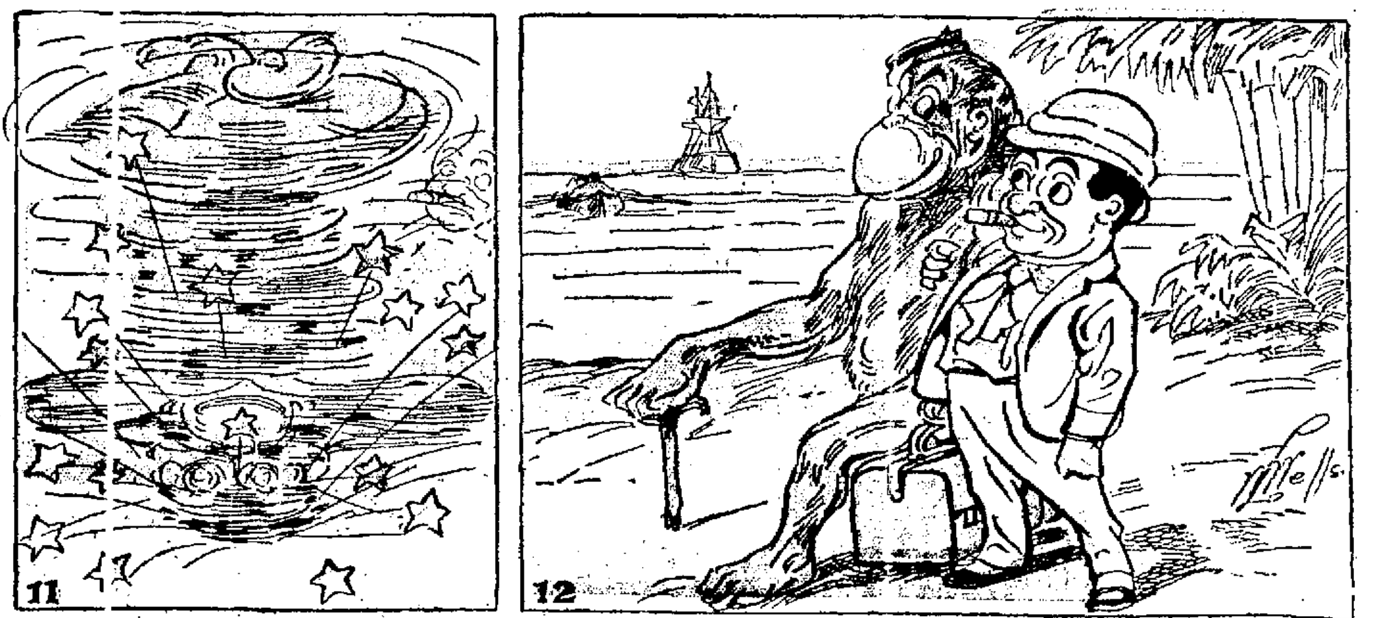
"He's outlived his usefulness," said the big orang-outang's mate, and I could tell from her enunciation that she was a well-educated but cruel lady. "I think he has, too," replied Boomerang Bang (for so I had mentally named him), and with that he sprang for the tree trunk on which I perched. Quickly I fell backwards and hung by my tail and toes beneath the tree trunk while old Bang, unable to check himself, went diving headlong over me, clutching frantically at the leaves and small branches.

He hit the ground with a resounding thud and lay panting on his back. I did not want to take undue advantage of him so I waited until he regained his wind, then I swiftly darted from the tree toward his prostrate form.

But the sly old duffer was expecting just such a move on my part, for as I sprang at him he raised his feet, planted them in my chest and hurled me high in air toward the other 'rangs. I doubled up and eluded their clutches by a narrow margin.

He was standing as I fell and naturally had me at a big disadvantage, for he immediately grappled with me and threw me with much force to the ground, endeavoring to hold me there while he in his huge hairy paws grasped my throat in a grip of death.

Then it was that I resorted to good old wrestling tactics I had learned when a boy. I gave him the simpler holds, for I was much adverse to hurting him, and a few seconds later I had him powerless as I playfully rubbed his nose in the soft earth.



Well, finally I stood him on his head and spun him around until he was so dizzy he didn't know anything. Then I stood him on his feet. He was subdued and held out his hand which I grasped in a warm grip of fellowship. We then walked back arm in arm to where the boys awaited my return, he wearing a hat I had given him. He said he was sorry to be taken captive just then as he had entertained hopes of meeting McCutcheon and having his picture drawn, but he knew Mac would do it later on if I would speak to him about it.
